TO ABOLISH THE GRADE CROSSINGS

Court Grants Petition for Appointment of Commission to Deal With Ones to be Abolished

City Solicitor J. Joseph Hennessy this morning received a notification from the superior court to the effect that the petition recently presented to the court asking that a commission be appointed to look into the advisability of doing away with the railroad grade crossings at Middlesex and Fletcher streets and Western avenue, had been granted, and that such a commission will be appointed.

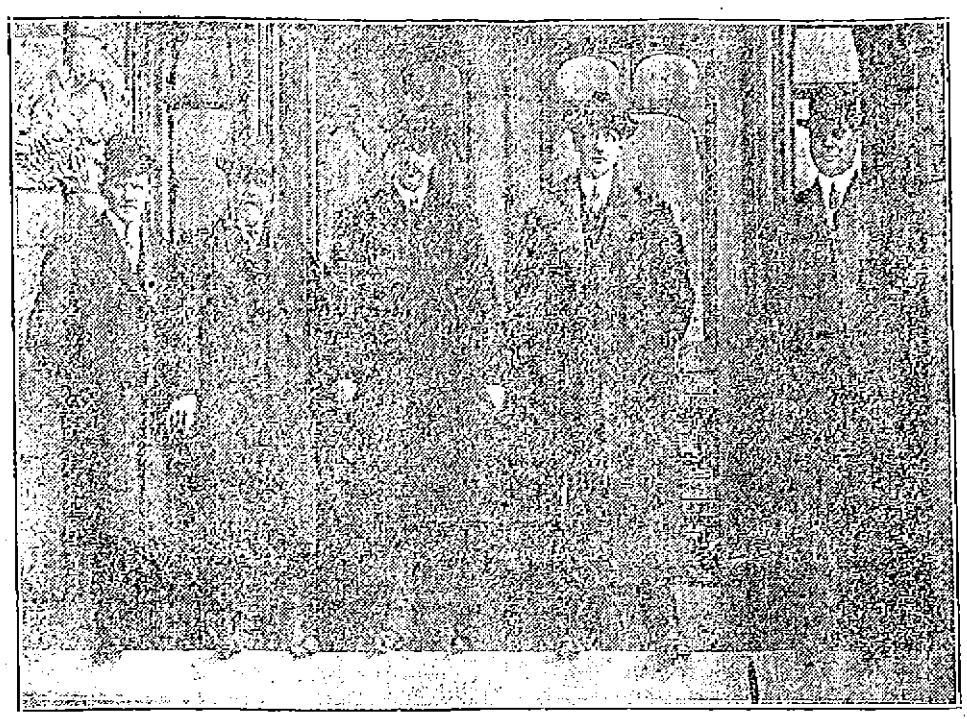

It will be remembered that when the petition was presented attorneys for the Boston & Maine and Lowell & Nashua railroads objected to the appointment of the said commission and gave for reasons that there was no demand in Lowell for the abolition of the crossings.

In order to ascertain if there was really a demand for the abolition of the said crossings, the court ordered a hearing and the same was held last week with the result that several prominent citizens of Lowell were heard in reference to the crossings. It was brought out at the hearing that there has been a movement on foot in Lowell for many years past to have these railroad crossings abolished, and also that the said crossings are a nuisance and a menace to public safety. The court took the matter under advisement and this morning the city solicitor was notified that the commission will be appointed.

The parties interested are the Boston & Maine railroad, the Lowell & Nashua railroad, the city of Lowell and the commonwealth of Massachusetts. Under the law these parties may agree that the state railroad commission be appointed to look into the matter, but in the event that the parties interested do not agree, they may submit a stipulation requesting the court to appoint men whose names will be furnished by them, and again if the parties interested cannot come to some agreement, they may ask the court to appoint the said commission.

The city solicitor stated this morning he will take up the matter at once and will endeavor to have the four parties interested meet as soon as convenient and come to some understanding, as to the appointment of the said commission.

MERRIMACK VALLEY WATERWAY BOARD

Interestingly Discussed at State House Today---Mass. Has Muffed Golden Opportunity

The Massachusetts Waterway convention held under the auspices of the harbor and land commission and the Massachusetts real estate exchange at room 431, State House, today, was attended by delegations from various towns and cities, and no city interested sent as small a delegation as did Lowell.

The morning session was scheduled to open at 10 o'clock but it was 10.30 o'clock when the presiding officer Hon. W. S. McNary, chairman of the harbor and land commission, called to order and before proceeding with the opening address Mr. McNary requested that each of the associations present appoint a secretary, and John H. Murphy, secretary of the Lowell board of trade, who was on the list of speakers for the forenoon session, was nominated and elected secretary of the Merrimack River and Valley association.

Some of the delegates had left their dress suit cases and grips in the corridor outside the hearing room and Mr. McNary said that the sergeant-at-arms was a bit anxious as to the safety of them.

"The fact that the dress suit cases were left there is a splendid tribute to Boston's honesty, but in order to

SUPERIOR COURT SESSION OPENED

In This City Today—Long List of Cases—Judge Chase Presides—The Jurors

The October sitting of the superior court opened at the court house on Gorham street at 10 o'clock this morning with Judge Chase presiding. At the opening, prayer was offered by the Rev. N. W. Matthews, pastor of the Gorham Street Methodist church.

A large number of lawyers gathered in the court room prior to the calling of the list and many requested that the cases in which they are interested be continued for a space of time. Judging from the trial calendar the Lowell sitting will last about twelve weeks.

As there was no case ready for trial court was adjourned at 11 o'clock until tomorrow morning at 10.

List of Jurors

The jurors that will hear the trials are: Fred A. Barber, North Reading; Edson J. Blaisdell, Westford; Warren M. Blood, Pepperell; Fred A. Child, North Reading; Alfred W. Cobleigh, Boxborough; Jeffrey Cossette, Lowell; Frank H. Cunningham, Lincoln; Archie A. Dadman, Sudbury; William H. Davis, Littleton; Waldo L. Dean, Wilmington; Stephen H. LURED BY PHONE CALL AND KILLED

Mystery Still Shrouds Murder of Miss Ida Leegson at Chicago

Called to a Fake Address —Body Found in Clump of Bushes

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Mystery shrouds the murder of Miss Ida Leegson, an art student, who was lured by a telephone call to the prairie southwest of the city Saturday and strangled with a silken cord. Little has been found to indicate a motive for the crime.

Miss Leegson is said to have led an exemplary life, had no men callers at any of the places where she is known to have resided and is not thought to have possessed any large amount of money.

Only a few hours before she was lured to her death she answered an advertisement for a domestic, saying she had to have funds to enable her to continue her studies and was not too proud to do kitchen work.

Late Saturday afternoon, a man who gave the name of Wilson telephoned the residence where Miss Leegson lived and asked her to take a position as nurse in a maternity case. She was directed to go to Seventy-First street and Western avenue and walk to an address four miles west. The body was found three miles west in a clump of bushes. The address to which she had been directed does not exist.

There also were fresh tracks made by an automobile.

LAYING OF 24 INCH MAIN

River Rises 3 Inches and the High Water Holds Up Work

Attendance Officers are Still Busy—Other City Hall News

On account of the rising of the water in the Merrimack river, work on the laying of the 24-inch water main in the bed of the river, was this morning suspended for the day. However, the men are not idle, for the gang which worked in the bed of the river was transferred to Aiken street, where the work is being hurried along.

During yesterday the water in the river rose about three inches, and this morning when the men gathered on the job, it was found that it would be impossible to continue the work until the water recedes. However, Commissioner Barrett believes the river will take its normal condition before tomorrow morning.

That portion from the pumping station in West Sixth street to the river bed by way of Ferry lane, is nearly finished, and the bulk of the work is now on Aiken street from the bridge to Hall street. About 600 feet of pipe have been laid in Aiken street, and next week work will be started in Hall street. The main will be extended as far as the corner of Cabot street, where it will connect with the 20-inch main

BULL MOOSE CONVENTION

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—A method of procedure new to Massachusetts political conventions was introduced when the party managers extended an invitation to the public to take a hand in shaping the platform to be adopted at the progressive party state convention in Tremont temple today. The committee on resolutions had drawn up a tentative draft as a basis for discussion and it was announced that in addition to suggestions from accredited delegates any legitimate proposition advanced by a visitor would be considered.

Of the 2200 delegates given credentials, more than 100 were women. Chairman Matthew Hale of the state committee called the convention to order. Charles S. Hird, the party candidate for governor, was not present, as he is engaged in a campaign trip in the western part of the state.

SAYS HE KILLED OVER 20 PEOPLE

Henry Spencer Confesses to Murder of Mrs. Rexroat and so Many More That He Cannot Remember All

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The police today began their investigation of the confession last night of Henry Spencer that he is the murderer of 15 persons. Possessing evidence that he killed Mrs. Rexroat, the dancing teacher, on Sept. 25, the authorities are convinced that they will in a short time establish Spencer's guilt of many, if not all, the crimes of his career.

Following his arrest last night for the Rexroat murder, which was made at the home of a woman who had notified the police of his coming, detectives went to Spencer's room, where they found the rattan suitcase that Mrs. Rexroat had taken with her on her fatal trip to Wayne.

En route to the detective bureau, Spencer admitted to Chief of Police Halpin, "that you've got the goods on me; I know I'll hang for this."

Murdered 16 Persons

Then began his extraordinary recital of the murders he has committed, the list of victims growing longer as the questioning continued on through the night. By morning Spencer had asserted that he had murdered 15 persons, of whom six were men and ten women, including two to whom he had been married.

Spencer says he does not know his real name and that the first he remembers he was in the Home for the Friendless, located within a block of the scene of his arrest last night. He has spent half of his 32 years in the state penitentiry at Joliet. He was sentenced twice for wholesale robberies and was returned twice following violation of paroles.

He is short, weighs about 145 pounds, wears glasses and has the appearance of a clerk. He has been a regular attendant at the prayer meetings of the Immanuel Baptist church and was at the wedding of its pastor's daughter three nights before he murdered Mrs. Rexroat.

"Beat 'em and Shot 'em"

Details as to names and dates of his many murders, Spencer could not always supply, but as to whether he "beat 'em in the head with a hammer" or "shot 'em to death," his memory was better. He also remembered approximately how much money or jewelry he got from the victims. His

Mill Cashier Held Up by Masked Men and Robbed at Stonington

Searchers Picked Up Money in Stone Wall, Short Distance Away

STONINGTON, Conn., Oct. 6.—Carl A. Koelb, cashier of the American Velvet Co., was held up at the point of a gun and robbed of $16,000 this forenoon by two masked men as he was driving with the money from the First National bank to the mill. After securing the money the robbers disappeared in a northerly direction. Searching parties have started in pursuit.

The money was found in a stone wall, a short distance from where the holdup occurred.

The highwaymen are thought to be in a cemetery and men armed with guns are attempting to surround that place in hope of capturing them.

Robber Fired

The holdup occurred on Bay View avenue and was particularly bold because there are occupied houses along the street. The money was in a large valise which the cashier held on his knees as he was being driven to the mill in an express wagon, the robbers hid around a bend in the road until the wagon was almost upon them. Then they jumped out and covering the cashier and the driver, Charles Ryan, with revolvers, commanded them to stop.

As the wagon halted one of the men covered the driver while the other, revolver in hand, attempted to snatch the valise from Koelb. The latter held on and he was dragged from his seat off the wagon and across the roadway before he was finally compelled to give up his hold by a shot from the robber's revolver which glanced over the back of his hand. With the valise in their possession, the highwaymen jumped over the fence at the side of the road and started north through vacant lots with Koelb running after them. The robbers fired two shots but whether to give the alarm to confederates who might be in waiting with an auto or team, or to scare back pursuers is not known. A trolley car came by before the men disappeared and crew and passengers gave chase.

A little later the valise with the money intact was found in a stone wall near the scene of the holdup, where it had been hidden by the highwaymen when the pursuit became too hot. About noon a report was received that the men were believed to be in hiding in a cemetery to the north of the town and posses were hurried there to surround it.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. George Fedneault of West Centralville.

The many friends of Mrs. J. B. Boudreau of Gershom avenue, who recently underwent a severe operation at the Lowell General hospital, will be pleasd to learn that she is on the way to recovery and yesterday was removed to her home

Solicitor Folk Rules that None of Prisoner's Rights Was Violated

Finds No Infringement on Part of Canadian Immigration Officials

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—None of Harry K. Thaw's treaty rights as an American citizen was violated when Canadian immigration authorities forcibly deported him a few weeks ago. That was the ruling today by Solicitor Joseph Folk of the state department.

Thaw asked the state department to make representations to the British embassy in protest against his deportation on Sept. 10. In holding that none of his right had been violated, the department declined to do so.

Solicitor Folk issued this statement: "After careful examination of the treaties between this government and

GREEKS AWAIT THE CALL

They are All Ready to Start for Fatherland if Required to Fight Their Ancient Enemy

The local Greek colony is much disturbed over the present situation between Greece and Turkey, and it is very probable if war is declared between these two countries, Lowell will lose what remains here of the Sons of Athens. The coffee houses in the district are the scenes of large gatherings and the main topic of discussion is the trouble between their motherland and her bitter enemy. Every line of The Sun is scrutinized daily for news from abroad and in this manner the Greeks are keeping constantly in touch with the doings of both countries.

It was stated this morning in the district that in the event of the declaration of war between the two countries, all the Lowell Greeks who are still able to handle a gun will go to the front, and the enthusiasm has reached such a degree that it is believed the men will leave the Spindle City before an order for their return is issued.

Some of the Lowell boys who fought in the Balkan conflict were expected to return to this city within a couple of weeks, but this new trouble has caused their friends and relatives in Lowell to believe they will not return for some time unless a sudden change in the situation takes place. It is feared war will be declared soon and this will eventually cause many Greeks to return to the fatherland.

There are about 2500 Greeks in Lowell who are preparing to return to Greece in the event of a new war, and already arrangements are being made for the care of women and children during the absence of the soldiers. Those who are in business, so stated a prominent member of the colony, are arranging matters so that their establishment will be conducted in the same way during their absence.

In the colony is a regiment of young soldiers which was organized shortly after the Holy Regiment left for the battlefield, and these young men who number nearly 500 are well trained for war maneuvers, and they are anxiously awaiting the call to depart for Greece.

RT. REV. DR. LAWRENCE

His 20th Anniversary Subject of Sermon by Rev. Appleton Grannis at St. Anne's

Yesterday marked the 20th anniversary of the consecration of Right Rev. William Lawrence, D. D. as bishop of Massachusetts and at St. Anne's church much interest was manifested in the morning service. The rector, Rev. Appleton Grannis, preached an appropriate sermon and the choir sang the same hymns that were sung at the service twenty years ago. Mr. Grannis said in part:

"Twenty years ago today, in Trinity church, Boston, Bishop Lawrence was consecrated bishop of the diocese of Massachusetts. It is fitting and proper that the event should receive special commemoration, for it marks the beginning of a period of conspicuous growth in the life of the Episcopal church in this state. I shall, therefore, speak to you this morning of Bishop Lawrence and of the development that has taken place in the diocese of which he is head.

"The leader in any movement is the embodiment in the popular mind of the cause which he represents. He is closely observed, his words are carefully weighed and his mistakes and failures are noted. Given the right kind of leadership and many an undertaking can be carried through to a successful issue which otherwise would be barren of any results. There are scores of problems today as yet unsolved, not because they are unrecognized, but because the right kind of men, with insight and masterful purpose, have not come forward to grapple with them. When some one appears who will take the lead, others follow.

"But the born leader is rare in any profession or calling. Certain qualities are necessary which are seldom found combined in any single individual—faith and knowledge, tact and courtesy, confidence, courage, the ability to inspire men with enthusiasm and to compel them to act; that indefinable something which for want of a better term we call personal magnetism. All these are essential. And when to these are added soundness of judgment, sincerity and high moral purpose, the individual possessing them becomes a great power for good.

"Bishop Lawrence is, without question, a leader of men, and his personality has played no small part in the achievements that the diocese of Massachusetts has witnessed under his ministrations.

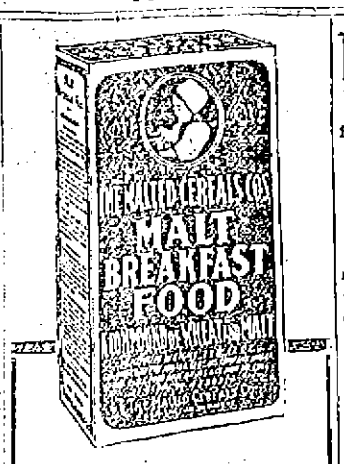

"In 1871 Bishop Lawrence graduated from Harvard university. Four years later he graduated from the Episcopal Theological school in Cambridge and that same year was ordained to the deaconate, and the next year to the priesthood. He served the first two years of his ministry as assistant in Grace church, Lawrence, and was rector of that parish from 1877 to 1883, when he was called to a professorship in the Episcopal Theological school at Cambridge. Three years later he was made dean of that institution, a position which he held until he was elected bishop of Massachusetts to succeed Bishop Brooks, in 1893.

"To the arduous demands of the episcopate, Bishop Lawrence has brought not only habits of industry and the trained and disciplined mind of the student, but a rare insight into men and a vigorous grasp of the vital problems of the day. He has been able to lead men because he knows their needs. And men have trusted his leadership because they have had confidence in his sincerity and common sense. He has been a man of faith and courage; he has had his visions, but they have been translated into realities.

"Let us see some of the things that have been accomplished. In 1893 the diocese of Massachusetts embraced the entire state. There were then 225 clergymen, 169 church edifices, 202 chapels and missions and 52 rectories. The baptisms in that year numbered 2961, the confirmations 1935 and the communicants 31,036. There were 23,653 children in the Sunday schools and the offerings for all purposes totalled $365,668. The value of all parish property amounted to $5,228,614.

"In 1902, 11 years ago, a new diocese was created—the diocese of western Massachusetts—this embraced the western portion of the state, including the cities of Worcester and Springfield. It was set apart by itself under Bishop Vinton. The work of the church in Massachusetts had grown too large to be administered by one man. But what do we find today? In spite of the loss of this large amount of territory, for the diocese covers now but three-fifths of the state, there are 240 clergymen, 150 church buildings, 93 rectories and 102 chapels and missions. The baptisms for the year ending May 1, 1913 were 3400, the confirmations 2573 and the communicants had increased from 31,000 to 49,301. The church property had increased in value from $5,228,614, to over $11,000,000 and the contributions from $365,668, to $1,033,373.

"This growth of the diocese necessitated the appointment of an assistant to Bishop Lawrence and in June last Bishop Babcock was consecrated suffragan bishop."

AT NORTH BILLERICA

Rev. E. J. Cornell Preached Last Sermon at St. Andrew's Church—Other Churches

Rev. E. J. Cornell, O. M. I. officiated at both masses at St. Andrew's church yesterday and during the 8 o'clock service a large number of people received holy communion. Rev. David J. Murphy, the newly appointed pastor of the church, was present and delivered a short address to his future parishioners.

"How to Be Happy" was the subject of the Rev. C. H. Williams at the No. Billerica Baptist church yesterday morning. During the course of his sermon Mr. Williams said "Bearing the world's sorrows and striving for achievements and helping those with whom you come in contact is following in the footsteps of Jesus." At the evening service music was furnished by the chorus choir with J. C. Richardson as soloist.

SEC. M'ADOO TO STAY

REPORT THAT HE WILL RESIGN FROM PRES. WILSON'S CABINET IS DENIED AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—From Boston has come a revival of the rumor started in Washington some weeks ago that Sec. of the Treas. McAdoo would soon resign from the cabinet. Coupled with this, according to a story apparently current in Boston, is the report that Charles S. Hamlin of Boston, who for the second time in his career is serving as assistant secretary in charge of customs, will succeed Mr. McAdoo upon the latter's retirement.

It is impossible to obtain in Washington the slightest confirmation of this report. On the contrary it is denied right and left by public officials who ought to know what they are talking about. Furthermore every scrap of evidence worth considering supports these denials.

As a matter of fact there is nothing to indicate that Mr. McAdoo has any desire to quit the cabinet or that the president wants him to leave or would even willingly let him go if the initiative came from Mr. McAdoo. Up to date Mr. McAdoo has shown himself the strongest man in the Wilson cabinet so far as influence at the White House and among his fellow members of the cabinet is concerned.

WANTS TO RETURN TO JOB

Toshesky, Miner, Rescued After Eight Days' Entombment, Receives Congratulations

CENTRALIA, Pa., Oct. 6.—Thomas Toshesky, who was entombed in the Continental mine eight days, his release being effected Saturday morning by a rescuing party headed by Supt. J. H. Hoffner, after a long night's sleep, ate a hearty breakfast yesterday morning, later accompanying his wife to Mt. Carmel, where they attended services at the Lithuanian Catholic church. The edifice was crowded, the miner being the center of interest.

He joined in a general prayer of thanksgiving on account of his remarkable rescue, after which he returned here, many people calling at his residence to congratulate and shake hands with him.

He said he was strong enough to start working again at the mines today. Dr. H. G. Fortner, who had charge of the feeding of the Lithuanian while the latter was entombed, said it was dangerous for Tohesky to resume toil so early after the entombment, whereupon the Lehigh officials announced that they would not allow Toshesky to return to work for some time. It is believed thay will pay him well for the time he was entombed and for his enforced vacation.

He has the record of having been entombed and rescued alive longer than any man in the history of the anthracite region.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends and neighbors who lent their assistance during our recent bereavement in the death of F. O. Hadley; also to all who sent floral offerings.
Mrs. Mary E. Munroe and Family.
Billerica, Mass.

Examinations were held Saturday at the high school for the positions of principals and teachers of the evening elementary schools. The examinations were limited to college and normal school graduates and between 15 and 20 men and women took the test.

Rev. F. G. Alger gave an illustrated lecture at the Pawtucket church last night on what the American missionary people are doing in foreign lands. Nearly 90 colored stereopticon slides were thrown on the screen showing the homes of the missionaries and pictures of various educational institutions that are maintained by the evangelists.

W. S. HOLT IS PLEASED

His Petition to Stock Forge Pond With White Perch is Granted From Washington

Mr. Willis S. Holt, father of the Lowell Fish and Game association, has just received good news for the fishermen of our vicinity from Washington, D. C. in a letter from United States Fish Commissioner H. M. Smith of the bureau of fisheries.

Mr. Holt filed a petition for white perch fry with Congressman John Jacob Rogers for Forge Pond in the towns of Westford and Littleton.

Mr. Smith has notified Mr. Holt that his petition has been allowed and that a brood stock will be shipped in the spring of 1914 ample to supply the pond in question.

A brood stock of 600,000 white perch was planted by Mr. Holt May 7th, 1912. These fry were from the United States fisheries commission at Washington, D. C. Several small plantings of white perch 4 inches to 10 inches long have been made in the past three years and in a year or two good perch fishing ought to be the rule on this beautiful lake called Mattawanakee lake many years ago by the Indians of our vicinity. At the meeting of the Lowell Fish and Game Assn. Tuesday evening, Oct. 7th, other petitions for fish and game will be talked up. More fish and more game for our streams and ponds and our woodland covers and protection to our song and insectivorous birds are the worthy objects of this live and busy association.

ORGAN AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Used With Fine Effect—Processions in Several Churches Yesterday

The feast of the Holy Rosary was celebrated throughout the city in the Catholic churches and in several of them, processions were held. The feast day was observed with special services, and sermons dealing with the importance of the devotion of The Rosary.

St. Michael's

The services at St. Michael's church took place with the special distinction which the formal inauguration of the great Cole organ contributed at the high mass at 10.45. The new organist, Miss Ella M. Reilly, began her duties at the church at the Holy Hour service on last Friday evening and her efforts to bring out the best qualities of the grand instrument yesterday were highly appreciated. Rev. Fr. Mullin was the celebrant of the 10.45 o'clock high mass, and the preacher was Rev. Dennis Murphy. Rev. Fr. Murphy delivered an impressive discourse on the Holy Rosary, the subject being most appropriate to the feast.

The rosary, said the speaker, is a beautiful prayer, and in itself in the various prayers which it embraces, it embodies the main principles of the foundation of the Catholic faith. In its mysteries, joyful, glorious and sorrowful, it portrays and calls to the mind of the faithful Catholic, the various incidents in the life of Christ, His birth, early life, His works, and finally His suffering and death, and also the life of the virgin mother of God, and her final triumphant crowning in heaven. In the opening prayers, it tells of the principles of faith as enumerated in the creed of the apostles, while in each "Hail Mary" are repeated the words of the Angel Gabriel who announced to the Blessed Virgin that she was to be the mother of God.

Such is the rosary, and one can easily realize its value as a means of gaining the intercession of the mother of God in obtaining the various graces needed for happiness in this life and for proper preparation for the life to come.

The choir was under the direction of Mr. James Murphy, and rendered an excellenet program which was as follows:

Asperges ..... Novello
Church Choir.
Processional, "Hail Holy Queen," Waddington
Chancel Choir.
Introit, Gaudeamus omnes, Quartet.
Mass (St. Mary Magdalen) Fr. Turner
Church Choir.
Offertory, "In Me Gratia."
Quartet.
Ave Maria ..... Verdi
Mrs. Mabel Ware-Murphy
Communion, "Florete Flores,"
Quartet.
Recessional, Hark, Hark, My Soul, Richardson
Chancel Choir.

There was the special afternoon service at 3 o'clock in observance of the feast of the Holy Rosary, and at this hour, the procession of the Holy Rosary was held, being participated in by the children of the parochial school of the parish. The procession was led by the clergy of the parish, and proceeded about the aisles of the church. The officiating priest was Rev. Francis J. Mullin, who led the recitation of the rosary. The ceremony was closed with vesper service and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament at which Rev. Fr. Mullin officiated assisted by Rev. Frs. Shaw and Murphy. There were large congregations at both morning and afternoon services.

Everyone was highly pleased with the grand new organ and members of the parish as well as those from the other parishes were not slow in giving expression to the appreciation of the instrument. The organ was built by James Cole Co. of Boston, one of the most prominent firms of its kind in the country, and was especially constructed for St. Michael's. It is a most modern and up-to-date instrument, the case being of oak, beautifully finished, and the pipes gilded. The action is characterized as pneumatic, the power being provided by an electric motor. Miss Ella M. Reilly gave a brief recital previous to the 10.45 mass. On Sunday evening, October 26, through arrangements which are now being made by Mr. Murphy, the choir director, there will be an organ recital by a prominent Boston organist, and a concert by the choir of the church. Mr. Murphy intends to get the best organ-

At St. Patrick's Church

Yesterday afternoon the procession in observance of the Holy Rosary feast was held at St. Patrick's church and was participated in by members of the various sodalities and other societies of the parish. The procession was headed by Edward O'Neil, who bore the cross and he was followed by the two acolytes. Next came the junior sodalities and Holy Name society, consisting of the pupils of the parochial school. They were followed by the Holy Angels' sodality, Children of Mary and Immaculate Conception sodality and senior Holy Name societies. The clergymen of the church brought up the rear. The procession moved from the church through the side entrance into Fenwick street, thence to Suffolk to the main door, through the beautiful church yard and into the edifice, proceeding along the centre aisle. The rosary was recited as the procession moved about the church and grounds. This was followed by solemn vespers, celebrated by Rev. Timothy V. Callahan, assisted by Rev. Joseph Curtin and Rev. John Kerrigan. Rt. Rev. Mgr. William O'Brien, P. R., was present at the services. The congregations at both morning and afternoon services were extremely large. Special music was rendered by the choir, directed by Mr. Michael J. Johnson, who also presided at the organ. The soloists were Mr. Andrew A. McCarthy and Miss Alice Murphy.

Immaculate Conception Church

The observance of the feast of the Holy Rosary was held in the evening at the church of the Immaculate Conception, a procession about the aisles of the church being held at 6.30 o'clock. There was a large congregation in attendance, and the procession was made up of the children of the parochial schools, the Holy Rosary society and the Immaculate Conception sodality, and the line moved about the aisles of the church. The procession was followed by vespers and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Rev. Fr. Tighe, O. M. I., was the celebrant of the high mass at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and the preacher was Rev. Fr. Fox, O. M. I. of the Tewksbury novitiate. His subject dealt in the main with the importance to every Catholic of the devotion of the Holy Rosary. Rev. Fr. Tighe was also the celebrant of the evening services. At the 11 o'clock mass Rev. Fr. O'Brien, O. M. I., dealt with the history of the Rosary and the three epochs in which the church claims to have secured divine help through the devotion to the rosary.

St. Peter's Parish News

Rev. John F. Burns celebrated the high mass at St. Peter's church yesterday morning and Rev. Dr. Keleher preached an instructive sermon, appropriate to the feast of the Holy Rosary. At the offertory Miss Gertrude E. Keleher rendered a beautiful "Ave Maria," accompanied by Miss Carolyn White at the organ.

Announcement was made of the fact that next Sunday is the regular communion Sunday of the Holy Name society of the parish and the members were urged by the speakers at all of the masses, to attend to a man and keep up the record established by the organization in this regard. Rev. Fr. Burns, the director, is working to greatly increase the membership of the already magnificent society, and the results of his endeavors are becoming daily evident. There will be a communion breakfast in Lincoln hall following the service and at this there will be an entertainment.

The committees in charge of the Columbus dancing party of St. Margaret's parish, which is to be held in Lincoln hall on Monday evening next, are forwarding the elaborate preparations for this event, the opening social for the parish.

The opening of the winter series of whist parties under the auspices of the Ladies' sodality of St. Columba's church will be held in the parish house on Thursday evening.

Yesterday the annual collection for the charities of the archdiocese was taken up in all the Catholic churches.

INSPECT BOSTON HARBOR

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—An inspection of Boston harbor was made today by 15 members of the house committee on rivers and harbors. The committee, which left Washington Friday night for a New England tour, was accompanied by a delegation from the Boston chamber of commerce on its trip about the harbor on a government steamer. Among the points visited was the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. at Quincy, where several warships are under construction. On their return to the city the committeemen were entertained at luncheon at the Algonquin club, where they met Governor Foss and Mayor Fitzgerald.

Baby's Terrible Skin Humor Cured

Milk Crust Formed a Solid Scab, But Resinol Cured in Four Days

Detroit, June 21, 1913—"About a year ago my two-months old baby was troubled with what they call milk-crusts. The lower part of her body was a mass of sores. It began with small pimples, then they turned to one whole scab. The scab would break open and then it would bleed. She suffered much, as she cried night and day. For one month I tried everything—all kinds of salves, but without relief, until I sent for a sample of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. Upon the first application I noticed a change, and after four days my baby was entirely cured. I cannot praise your remedies too highly, and recommend them to all my friends." (Signed) Mrs. Henry Mosher, 154 Lewerenz Ave.

You need never hesitate to use Resinol. It is a doctor's prescription, that has been used by other physicians for eighteen years in the treatment of eczema, ringworm, pimples and all sorts of skin affections. It contains absolutely nothing that could injure the tenderest skin. Practically every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. For free trial, write to Dept. 12-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

MANUEL ANGRY

Says That False Reports Have Been Circulated About Bride's Illness

MUNICH, Oct. 6.—Ex-King Manuel of Portugal is furious over the insinuations as to the nature of his bride's illness which have been scattered broadcast throughout the world. Prince Wilhelm, the father of the bride, is also extremely angry over the matter. Both attribute the circulation of these rumors to Portuguese republican agents, who are said to be overrunning this place and who never allow the ex-king to get out of their sight if they can possibly help it.

Lieutenant Lavredio, the ex-king's aide-de-camp, Professor von Romberg, who has charge of the case, and the hospital authorities, say that the princess is suffering from influenza of the lower abdominal regions, complicated with inteslinal disturbances which caused a high temperature for a few days. She is attended by two ordinary hospital nurses, as her illness is not serious enough to require private nurses.

AERONAUT WAS KILLED

Tried to Reach Hand to Spectator Carried Up By Rope and Fell to the Ground

BARCELONA, Oct. 6—At a balloon ascension here yesterday, a spectator accidentally caught hold of the guide rope and was carried up. The aeronaut in an attempt to assist him fell out of the basket and was killed. The spectator retained his grip on the rope and landed unhurt a few miles from the city.

LAST VIEW OF CULEBRA CUT BEFORE BEING FLOODED; HUGE DREDGES TO CLEAR CANNEL

FIRST WATER IN CULEBRA CUT

HOW DREDGES WILL WORK IN CULEBRA CUT

PHOTOS BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

After the great Culebra cut in the Panama canal has been fully flooded by the destruction of the Gamboa dike on Oct. 10 steam dredges will begin the work of cleaning out the channel of the cut, now filled by the debris from the slides. The bottom picture shows the dredges as they will look at work. The top one is a view of a part of the cut as it looked when the engineers began to let the water in from Gatun lake through pipes under the dike. They planned to let enough water in to act as a cushion for the force of the water from Gatun lake when the dike was blown up. This is the last view of the cut before the bottom of it was covered.

DISCUSS CURRENCY BILL

Annual Convention of American Bankers' Association Opened in Boston Today

BOSTON, Oct. 6—A meeting of country bankers late this afternoon stands out as the first important event of the annual convention of the American Bankers' Association which has brought nearly 5000 bankers from all parts of the country to Boston. This meeting was called by a number of country bankers for the purpose of discussing the currency bill now before congress.

Thus far, said Gordon Jones, president of the First National bank of [illegible], Col., and one of the speakers, all the bill has been considered entirely from the viewpoint of the banks in the reserve cities. It is desired to give the country bankers an opportunity to consider certain features which apply peculiarly to their own business. By country banks is meant the small banks, those of $250,000 capital and less, the little fellows in the one and two and three banks, towns out on the agricultural and industrial firing line. Such banks compose at least 75 per cent. of all the banks of the United States.

Consideration of the currency bill is expected to be the dominant feature of the regular sessions of the association, which open Monday.

Meetings of important committees of the association occupied the attention of many of the delegates during the day. In addition the visitors were entertained with automobile rides. This evening there will be a water carnival and fireworks display on the Charles river basin.

Everything is announced to be in readiness for the grand anniversary banquet of the Mathew Temperance Institute on Thursday evening at their hall in Central street. It is the formal observance of the 125th anniversary of the birth of Rev. Theobald Matthew, known as the Apostle of Temperance.

A most enjoyable municipal concert was given by the Spinale City band, John C. Fairbrother, conductor, on the North common yesterday afternoon, and the musical event was attended by several hundred people who showed their appreciation by their great applause. A feature of the concert was the cornet solo, "Columbia," artistically rendered by John S. Carlson.

THE MINOR LAW

Officers Busy Changing Certificates and Issuing New Ones

It was stated at the office of the attendance officers at city hall, that 1000 minors have had their certificates changed and issued as required by the new law. Attendance Officer Thornton has been requested to address the overseers at the mills of the Lawrence Mfg. Co. some time this week. The new law governing the employment of minors is much more complicated than was the old law, and mill men and others are not very certain as to their understanding of it. In order that the mill overseers would acquire a proper knowledge of the law, Mr. Thornton thought it would be well for the overseers of the different mills to meet him at his office for the purpose of discussing the new law. It seems, however, that the mill men preferred to discuss the matter in the mills and Mr. Thornton agreed to meet them at their places of business.

If you are a doctor, doesn't it pain you to see your patients, after walking up two or three flights, come into your office completely exhausted? Wouldn't it be better to provide an office in a building where your patients would be carried right up to your office door in an easy running and absolutely safe elevator? The new Sun building provides such a service. Think it over, doctor!

LAYING MAIN

which was installed some time ago as far as the corner of Cross and Adams streets. In a couple of weeks, it is believed, work will be started at the corner of Cross and Adams streets on the laying of a continuance of the 20-inch main as far as Liberty square by way of Adams street.

Mayor Busy

Mayor James E. O'Donnell has accepted an invitation to be the guest of the International union of Steam and Operating Engineers at the celebration of the seventh anniversary of the founding of this organization, which will be held at the union's quarters, 36 Central street, Wednesday evening Oct. 8.

His Honor left this noon for Boston, where he is to attend the waterways convention, which is being held at the state house. This evening the mayor will serve on the reception committee at the dinner which will be tendered the delegates at Young's hotel.

Still At It

The attendance officers are still busy distributing age and school certificates to minors, and Mr. Thompson stated this morning over 1000 certificates have thus far been exchanged for old ones, and before the task is completed several hundred more papers will be given away. Young men and women keep flocking into the office of the attendance officers, which is situated on the third floor of city hall, next to the school department's office, and the officers have a hard time to get away even for luncheon.

LOWELL COUNCIL, K. OF C.

To Be Visited by Official of Supreme Council in November—Mass For Deceased Members

Grand Knight William F. Thornton of Lowell Council 72, Knights of Columbus, is in receipt of a communication from Supreme Special Agent F. J. Sherlock, containing the information that the latter will visit Lowell council on Thursday evening, November 13, for a general inspection. Mr. Sherlock goes about the state inspecting the various councils. He will examine the books, accounts and records, the standing of the members, the local laws and general conditions and submit a report of his visit to the supreme authorities. It is believed that he will address the members of Lowell council at a meeting on the evening of his visit here. His subject will deal with matters pertaining to the general welfare of the order.

Lowell Council is having a high mass of requiem celebrated on Saturday morning, October 11, at the Church of Notre Dame De Lourdes for the repose of the soul of the late Clarence Emond, a former member of the local council. The mass will be celebrated at 8 o'clock and will be attended by members of the order.

GARDNER MAY RETIRE

The Republican State Convention Turns Down Candidate's Personal Platform

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Four planks offered by Congressman Gardner, candidate for governor, as substitutes for those prepared by the committee, were rejected by the republican state convention Saturday. Gardner after the fight mounted the platform and expressed his disappointment. Holding aloft his prepared speech, he said it would not be delivered as its four cardinal features had been eliminated by the action of the convention.

Mr. Gardner said: "I have in my hand the speech which I was to deliver to this convention but I shall not make it. I shall have to enter the campaign without the four cardinal features of my own platform and I don't like to do so.

"If the republican party stands for liberalism and progressiveness it will win and the progressives will go into oblivion. But if the party becomes stagnant the progressives are bound to succeed. If the party cannot liberalize itself I shall leave public life, but I shall leave it as a republican, for I have no sympathy with those who have fed at our board and are now 'howling at the heels of wounded greatness.'"

A ripple of applause followed the brief remarks of Mr. Gardner:

Just before Mr. Gardner took the platform, Col. Everett C. Benton, whom he defeated at the primaries, came into the hall and took a seat on the platform. The other candidates on the state ticket were then heard.

Athletes and Athletics

Jimmy Clabby made a great showing in his battle with Sailor Petroskey and is being hailed by the coast followers of the game as the logical middleweight champion. A match is now trying to be arranged between Clabby and Jack Dillon as the Frisco boxing fans hope to see the middleweight title decided in their city.

Ray Keating could not keep out of trouble even in the "Big show." The ex-Lawrence twirler was suspended only a few weeks before the close of the season for not keeping strictly to the training rules of his club.

Connie Mack has bowed to the ruling of the commission in regard to the Athletic players posing as baseball scribes. Baker and Collins have signed agreements to cover the series for several big dailies and it is said that their contracts call for a large sum. Mack has announced that if the commission does not allow his players to keep their agreement that he will play without them and still give them their share of the profits of the series.

Walter Johnson was beaten yesterday at Schenectady when his club of All-Stars failed to do much against a team of negroes. Wickware, the noted colored twirler, shut out the premier pitcher's team by a 1 to 0 score. Two hits were all that Johnson allowed but errors behind him lost the game.

The Giants and the Phillies play an exhibition game today at the Polo grounds in preparation for tomorrow's contest, the first of the world's series. McGraw will use his pitchers very little today, two or three innings being the limit. Both Mathewson and Marquard will doubtless work out.

Tonight will see a line several blocks in length in front of the ticket office waiting until the wicket shall be lifted tomorrow morning. These all night waiters are a regular "thing" in the world's series and simply go to show how wild the baseball public is to watch the struggle.

Joe Finneran was clubbed pretty hard last Friday when he essayed the role of rescuer for the Phillies. Joe may be used today in the exhibition game with the Giants.

Connie Mack and his Athletics engaged in secret practice yesterday afternoon behind closed gates at Shibe park. Every offensive move of the Giants was thoroughly discussed and the manner in which to cut off the various ladies McGraw is expected to use was gone into. All the entrances to the ball park were heavily guarded by special officers during the time that Mack and his club worked out.

The betting on the world's series is very light this year. Even money is the proposition on either team with each club picked to win its first home game. The dopesters are of the opinion that McGraw's team will win tomorrow's contest.

Jack Coombs, once the mainstay of Mack's pitching staff, is in bed in a Philadelphia hospital and will hear the reports of the games by a telephone which his manager has had installed in his room. The surgeons have again diagnosed Coombs' case and assert that he is suffering from a disease of the spine which may yield to treatment although it is doubtful if Coombs ever pitches another game.

Walter Johnson, Washington's great pitcher, and First Baseman Laubert of Brooklyn are the two players who have been chosen by the committee of sporting writers as the men most valuable to their clubs during the 1913 season. Each has been presented with an automobile.

Ty Cobb again stands at the head of the American league batters and his average of .390 stands 29 points ahead of Cleveland's plugger, Jackson. Tinsling of Brooklyn in 36 games, batted for .407 while McDonald of the Braves came next to him with .357. Daubert of Brooklyn is the real leader having played in 140 games and hit for .350.

President Gaffney of the Boston Braves is more than satisfied with the showing made by his club. Fifth place for the Boston Nationals is quite a surprise to the Hub fans. Manager Stallings has come in for much praise for his manipulation of the tailenders of last season.

Athletics Excel Giants in Bumming Their Way to First

If the team that wins the world's championship is to be the one that has proved most successful in procuring favors from the pitcher this season, then there will be general rejoicing in the Quaker City on or about Oct. 15 and general gloom in Manhattan. For the Athletics have this year proved more adroit in working the hurlers for transportation than have the Giants. The Muckmen have been getting about four bases on balls in each controversy this year, while the McGrawites have been obtaining about three.

To September 1 the American league's pace setters had received 429 walks of the regulation kind while the National league's leaders had been acquiring 349. On neither combination was the lead-off man the individual who had worried the pitcher the most, for the White Elephant who had received the greatest number of passes—Eddie Collins—bats third in the Athletic lineup and the Giant who had been awarded transportation most frequently—Larry Doyle, strikes from fourth place in the McGraw alignment.

Collins has been favored with 75 passes this year, Doyle with 52.

However, both Geo. Burns and Eddie Murphy, the men who lead off for the teams that are to figure in the world's series, have done splendidly this season in getting gratuities, the National leaguer having obtained 59 and the American leaguer 61. Other patient and persevering pitcher workers are Fred Snodgrass, Frank Baker and Tilly Shafer. Snodgrass and Baker each have drawn 46 bases on balls and Shafer has been favored with 43. Many of the passes handed J. Franklin Baker, it is hardly necessary to remark, have been presented to him with malice aforethought.

Selecting the best team of walkers from among the players to play in the world's serious would bring about a combination that would have McInnis at first, Collins at second, Shafer at short, Baker at third, Burns in left, Snodgrass in centre, Eddie Murphy in right, Meyers behind the bat and either Plank or Mathewson on the rubber.

The number of bases on balls received by each New York National and Philadelphia American league player this season will be found below:

EVE OF THE BIG SERIES

Vanguard of Fans Pouring Into New York for Opening Game—Final Arrangements

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—This, the eve of the world series in New York, found the vanguard of fans pouring into the city on every train and with the exception of minor details to be disposed of by the national commission everything is in readiness for the opening contest at the polo grounds tomorrow afternoon. The meeting of the national commission was set for this forenoon shortly after the arrival of President Johnson of the American league. The much discussed question of players writing for the newspapers, it was thought, would not develop the controversy that had been predicted and it was said that whatever action was taken would govern future series rather than the present one.

There was the usual talk this morning that speculators had secured a choice allotment of reserved seats and signs were displayed in a number of ticket agencies announcing this. The casual fan who arrived today found all the 8000 reserved seats disposed of and nothing left for him to do but get in line at the polo grounds early tomorrow morning when the 30,000 unreserved seats are thrown open. It was said again today that it was doubtful whether Snodgrass, the Giants centerfielder, who is suffering with a "charley horse," would be able to take part in the series. Larry Doyle's injured shoulder has completely recovered, however, and it is certain he will be in the opening game. If Snodgrass does not play it is more than probable that Shafer will take his place in the field and Herzog will go to third base.

Even Money Betting

Generally speaking, betting on the series has been light. Some few big bets have been recorded but neither team can be called the favorite. An even-money proposition has been the rule in most bets.

At an exhibition game with the Philadelphia Nationals today, the Giants will have their final workout. Both Mathewson and Marquard will pitch an inning or two, after which McGraw will make his selection of one to open the series.

The Athletics are expected here either late this afternoon or early this evening. Nothing had developed today to indicate that Connie Mack would vary from his regular lineup for the opening game.

How many tickets the speculators have been able to get was a matter of general discussion prior to the national commission meeting. It was said that if it developed they had secured any considerable number of choice seats the commission would institute an investigation at once.

All police arrangements have been completed for handling the vast crowds at the Polo grounds. One hundred and fifty men have been detailed for the work. Thirty men were stationed at the grounds today on the expectation that throngs would besiege the gates, thinking that there was to be a ticket sale as had at first been planned.

The national commission was so busy distributing its allotment of tickets during the early part of the day that it was decided not to call the meeting until the afternoon. Chairman Herrmann said it would be a routine affair, consisting mainly of the instructions to umpires and scorers.

FEW .300 MEN

If all Pitchers Were Like Walter Johnson of the Senators

There would be mighty few .300 hitters in the American league if the scouts employed by the clubs of the junior organization could pick up a few more pitchers like Walter Johnson, who stands an excellent chance of winning the title offered to the American league's most valuable player this season. The Idaho phenom has held his opponents to a collective batting average of .184 in the contests in which he had engaged up to last Monday, no team coming anywhere near acquiring a .300 batting average at his expense. In fact, only one club—Cleveland—had managed to hit better than .200 against Washington's eminent gunner, even the coming champions, the Athletics, who have triumphed over Johnson thrice this season, only having batted at a .185 clip in the games in which they have faced him.

Johnson has twirled 315 and 2-3 innings of ball for the Senators this season, or about 37 nine-inning games. In these contests his opponents have made 295 hits in 1112 times at bat and have scored 49 runs, the average number of safeties and tallies per game being 5.57 and 1.3 respectively. The greatest number of hits made off him in a contest was fifteen, the Red Sox obtaining this total on July 3 in a contest that lasted 15 innings. Cleveland made 13 safeties off Johnson on May 22 in eight rounds and ten on July 13 in nine periods of play. The only team that has knocked Johnson off the rubber is Philadelphia, the Mack-men compelling him to retire on June 25 after he yielded five hits and four runs in three innings. Two days later Sir Walter avenged himself by shutting the coming champions out 2 to 0, and by limiting them to three hits.

The American league pitching averages this year are to show the number of runs earned off the boxmen—information which the National league records revealed last season. Of the 49 runs now charged up against Johnson 36 have been earned, which is just a trifle more than one to the game. Cleveland earned fourteen runs off his delivery, Philadelphia, thirteen, Chicago four, Detroit, three, Boston, one and St. Louis one. The Highlanders have obtained only one run off Washington's great pitcher in 37 innings his year and that run was unearned.

Batsmen have found it hard to make sacrifices, either of the new or old fashioned kind, off Johnson this year. His opponents now are credited with ten sacrifice bunts and three sacrifice flies. Players who have had the honor of making home runs off him this year are Frank Baker, Harry Lord, Ray Schalk, Joe Jackson, Harry Hooper, "Buck" Weaver and D. Johnson. Baker has made a pair of four-baggers off the man who generally is conceded to be the greatest pitcher in captivity.

RUBBER SERIES

Giants and Athletics Have Twice Before Figured in Big Games

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—When the Philadelphia Athletics and the New York Giants meet in the initial game of the 1913 world's series tomorrow a peculiar combination of baseball complications will be resumed after the lapse of two years. To begin with the coming series will be in the nature of rubber games since these two clubs have twice before figured in world's series and each has a championship to its credit. In 1905, two years after the opening of the existing series between the National and American league pennant winners, the Philadelphia and New York clubs were the contenders. The Giants triumphed in what in many respects was the most sensational world's series ever played. The New York team under McGraw won four out of five games and every game of the series was a shutout.

Joe McGinnity, the Giants' "Iron Man," was at the height of his pitching career while Christy Mathewson was just developing into a master twirler. McGinnity officiated at the polo grounds games while Matty did the pitching for the Giants in Philadelphia. These two famous huxmen proved effective in every game except the second, when Connie Mack's Indian hurler, Bender, did even better, winning a 3 to 0 victory for his club, the only one gained by the Athletics. The scores in the remarkable series were as follows: New York 3, Philadelphia 0; Philadelphia 3, New York 0; New York 9, Philadelphia 0; New York 1, Philadelphia 0; New York 2, Philadelphia 0.

Connie Mack and his Athletics had to wait six years for revenge but they did not forget and in the autumn of 1911 Philadelphia won the world's championship at the expense of the Giants in such a decisive manner as to leave no question as to which was the better team. In a six game series the Athletics won four. All the games, with one exception, were close, the victor's margin never exceeding two runs and two games went into extra innings. The exception was the final contest played at Philadelphia, when the Athletics broke down the Giants' defense and won by a score of 13 to 2. Of all the players who participated in the 1905 series but five wear the uniforms of the Athletics and Giants today. Danny Murphy, who played second base; Davis of first base fame, and the two pitchers, Bender and Plank, are the Philadelphia veterans, while Mathewson is the sole survivor of the New York team which won the world's highest baseball honors but eight years ago. Of the twenty-nine players who figured in the series of 1911 between these two clubs four are missing from the ranks of eligibles for the present conflict, Lord of the Athletics is no longer under Mack's control and McGraw has released or traded Devore, Becker and Ames.

The batting averages of the players who participated in the series of 1905 and 1911 and who are still eligible for the 1913 games follow:

OWLS' ANNUAL FIELD DAY HELD

Large Crowd Gathered at Spaulding Park Saturday

There was a merry crowd at Spaulding park Saturday afternoon and evening, the occasion being the annual field day of the members of the local nest of Owls and their many friends. The affair was attended by several hundred people and despite the threatening weather, a most pleasant afternoon and evening was spent.

The affair was to have been held a couple of weeks ago, but on account of rain the event was postponed, and this gave an opportunity to many more to take part in the event. The committee in charge spared nothing to make the field day a success, and their efforts were well repaid, for the entire program was carried out to the satisfaction of all present, while the receipts were very substantial.

A feature of the afternoon was a baseball game between the C. M. A. C. and the South Ends, the two strongest amateur aggregations of this city, the stake being a $25 purse and the championship of Lowell. The palm went to the South Ends, who won by a score of three to nothing. The game was a good one throughout and was much enjoyed by the large number of rooters, who cheered for their respective favorites.

This game was followed by another, the contestants being the married and unmarried men of the Lowell nest. This part of the program was very amusing and at the close of the contest it was announced that the married men had won by a score of 8 to 3.

A varied list of sports and field events was carried out and the events and winners were as follows:

Two-mile run, first, Joe Christe, $5; second, Goddard, prize $3; third, Lemire, prize $1.

Quoit pitching, 12 two-men teams entered—First, T. Underwood and T. Proctor, prizes, safety razors; second, H. Leavitt and R. Dube; third, J. O'Neill and J. H. O'Hare.

Hop, step and jump—First, Harris, prize, a hat; second, Liberty, prize, a watch.

100-yard dash, open—First, E. Brady, prize, a suit case; second, M. Brady, prize, umbrella.

50-yard dash for ladies—First, Miss Chase prize, gold inkwell; second, Mabel Burns, prize, collar and cuff set; third, Catherine Dempsey, prize, box of candy.

JOHN E. McCALLUM

Maire, prize, gold mantle clock; second, J. Jarett, prize, gold scarf pin.

A midway consisting of booths of all descriptions, where goodies and valuable articles were on sale, had been installed in the rear of the grandstand and an immense business was conducted in that small district.

Refreshments of all kinds were served and in the evening dancing was enjoyed in the open air under the sweet strains of music furnished by the Colonial orchestra. It was late when the crowd left the park as all were unanimous in saying the affair was the best ever.

Those responsible for the success of the event were: John E. McCallum, chairman and secretary; Thomas Burns, Cornelius F. Harrington, William E. Hollingsworth, and James H. Rogers.

SUBURBAN CHAMPIONS

The Carlisleford Cubs by defeating the fast Tyngsboro club last Sunday by the score of 7 to 3 on the North Chelmsford grounds clinched their claim to the title of suburban champions. The batteries for the Cubs was McNulty and Russon, for Tyngsboro Davis and Dolan.

CAPTURE SAN QUENTIN

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 6.—Mexicans from Lower California report a clash on Friday [illegible] constitutionalists under General Obregon captured San Quentin. The port of Pulpo on the eastern coast was captured two weeks ago by the constitutionalists they reported.

MARATHON RUNNER DEAD

WILLIAM J. HACKETT, TWICE WINNER OF BROCKTON RACES, DIED YESTERDAY

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—William J. Hackett, 27, living at 12 Lovell street, North Weymouth, and twice winner of the Brockton marathon, died yesterday.

Ever since 1911, when young Hackett was training for the Olympic games at London, he has been in failing health. The strain of the long distance running is said to be primarily the cause of his illness.

In 1910 Hackett was given a diamond ring by the town of Weymouth in recognition of his victories in athletics. In both 1909 and 1910 Hackett captured the Brockton marathons. He also held several line records for long distance running.

DELMONT POPULAR

Boston Boxer Has Appeared in Many Battles—Will Meet Phil McGovern, Brother of Terrible Terry

This week's entertainment at the Lowell Athletic club should prove a hummer. The matchmaker has arranged one of the best cards of the season and without a doubt the members will turn out in large numbers to see what should be one of the best shows ever staged by the club. The principals in this week's bout are well known by boxing fans throughout the country. Al Delmont of Boston will be pitted against Phil McGovern of New York. This bout should be a treat as both boys are past masters of scientific boxing. Delmont is boxing in old time form as he recently demonstrated when he defeated Paddy Callahan at the Atlas club in Boston. McGovern needs no introduction to the members as he appeared here on two occasions last year. He fought Johnny Dunne a draw and knocked out Tommy Flanagan. The semi-final bout should be as good as any main bout staged this year. Joe Morgan of Manchester, one of the cleverest boys in the game will meet Gus Lenny of Boston. Lenny defeated Young Aronson at the club last week and is under the management of Hector McInnis. Morgan is under the management of Mike Gardiner this year. In the first preliminary Young Rivet will endeavor to teach young Hamilton a few points. Willie Jones will meet Young Tibetts in the other bout.

ST. COLUMBAS WON

The St. Columbas defeated the Maples Saturday by the score of 7 to 2. The feature of the game was the pitching of McDonald and the fielding of the winners. The St. Columbas claim the championship at 15 years old and would like to play the Glenmores next Saturday.

COBB HOLDS ON

Detroit Slugger Has a Good Lead—Jackson Drops to Third Place

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Joe Jackson dropped to third place among American league batters this week. Cobb still leads but the Cleveland batsman must have found the pace too swift for Olaf Henriksen of Boston, back in the game once more, crowded into second place close on the heels of the Detroit star. The unofficial averages are:

Cobb, .397; Henriksen, .385; Jackson, .367; Speaker, Boston, .364; Collins, Philadelphia, .347; Baker, Philadelphia, .345; Gilhooley, New York, .337; Lajoie, Cleveland, .336; McInnis, Philadelphia, .331; Gandil, Washington, .329; D. Murphy, Philadelphia, .315; Leliveit, Cleveland, .314; Crawford, Detroit, .314; Bauman, Detroit, .303; Stoval, St. Louis, .286.

Milan, Washington and Moeller, Washington, are still one two among the base stealers, the former with 60 and the latter with 59.

Walter Johnson tops the pitchers in games won and lost. The first five rank:

World's Series Games

That local fans will again have the opportunity of seeing the World's Series games this fall without leaving this city became assured when negotiations were recently completed for the installation at Mathew's hall, Dutton street, of that most ingenious device called the "Perfect Ball Player." This invention was exhibited at the Lowell Opera House during the World's Series last year and proved a tremendous success. It is large enough to fill the entire stage opening and is operated in an upright position.

On the front surface is a complete representation of a baseball field with diamond, bases, pitcher's box, foul lines, etc. By means of a direct telegraph wire from the ball grounds to the stage, every movement of the ball and players is accurately reproduced on this miniature field.

The space below the field is devoted to recording the umpire's decisions, each ball, strike, foul, out, etc., being clearly shown.

The entire operation is so perfect and realistic that the spectator cannot but feel the same enthusiasm as though seated in the grand stand at the game itself. Each contest of the World's Series will be simultaneously reproduced at Mathew's hall on this remarkable device every afternoon that the games are played, beginning at 2 p. m., tomorrow.

Y. M. C. I. NOTES

At a well attended meeting held yesterday, business of importance was transacted. The Columbus night committee reported that everything is progressing for one of the best dancing parties of the season to be held that evening in the Y. M. C. I. rooms. The ladies' night committee for Oct. 7 also made a very encouraging report and all is in readiness for a large attendance on that evening. There were ten new members admitted while twenty-four propositions for membership were turned over to the investigating committee. The committee in charge of the alleys reported that the bowling and pool had started in earnest during the past week and looks forward to a very successful season. Next Sunday morning it is expected a very interesting debate on a question laid over from yesterday's meeting will take place. Brother McGuire is expecting to form an orchestra this winter.

The first of the winter series of ladies' nights is to be observed tomorrow evening next with a delightful and varied program. Members and their lady friends will gather at the club rooms early in the evening when the festivities will begin. The billiard and pool tables, bowling alleys, cards and various other games will be open to the guests, and contests have been arranged for their amusement. There will be a concert by the Manhattan orchestra, and general dancing in the spacious hall of the club-house.

Last season, these ladies' nights were held at quite frequent intervals and were in every instance very largely attended, everyone commending the ability of the Y. M. C. I. boys as hosts an entertainers. This year throughout the winter, the ladies' nights will be held on every Tuesday evening.

The bowling alleys of the institute have been open to the members for about three weeks, but no definite steps toward the forming of the league have been taken as yet. The Y. M. C. I. bowling league has a reputation throughout the city and the ability of the members of the various teams is well known among followers of the game. This is one of the most important and most interesting departments of the society and at the end of the season, the winning team is given a banquet. There will be a meeting of the committee soon to start a movement toward the resumption of activities in the bowling league.

HEARING ON IMMIGRATION

It is becoming recognized more and more yearly that the problems of the immigrant are worthy of the deepest study whether we regard him in his relation to the community in general in which he is to live and whose ideals he will eventually absorb or in relation to the state towards which his ideas are necessarily vague. On coming here from their various countries the minds of immigrants are open and receptive, and on their first impression and the treatment they receive will largely depend whether they are to become a menace to the nation or members of the great army of law-abiding citizens. Fully aware of this fact there are a great many thoughtful people whose interest in the immigrant is manifested in other ways than in the literacy test advocated by Augustus P. Gardner and twice kept off the statute books by presidential veto in recent years.

The last legislature created a commission on immigration for the purpose of making a full investigation of "the way of living, distribution, occupation, educational opportunities and business opportunities and facilities" of our immigrant population and also its "relation to the industrial, social and economic conditions of all the people of the commonwealth." This large program of intended investigation would seem too vague and complex to achieve any real good were it not that the act creating the commission gives as its ultimate object the framing of laws which shall bring "non-English speaking foreigners into sympathetic relations with American institutions and customs."

Naturally this commission will look upon Lowell as the most logical city of the commonwealth in which to make their investigation. This city has been a mecca for the emigrating populations of the earth and the conditions under which they live here are fairly typical of conditions throughout the country, while they are in sufficient numbers to make the study reliable. Consequently all who are human enough and American enough to take an interest in the future of the immigrant will be glad to note that the legislative commission is to hold a hearing in the council chamber of the city hall October 10, at 7 p. m. It is to be hoped that church and fraternal societies, representatives of the various nationalities and any others who have positive views on the various aspects of the immigrant, his troubles, his obligations, his burdens, will be present to help the commission in getting a real insight of conditions as they exist here.

The immigrant problem is far more complex now than formerly owing to the fact that the largest influx of immigrants comes from countries where English is not spoken and consequently are automatically shut out from ready assimilation with other classes here. Their handicaps make them unduly conservative, even suspicious, and make them herd in racial groups, still further preventing them from becoming what we commonly designate as "Americanized." On the other hand the lot of the immigrant now is not nearly so hard as that of the earlier settlers who had to face a far greater degree of dislike and prejudice than that by which the foreigners of today are regarded. Human brotherhood is better developed than it was 50 years ago.

The legislative commission has a great field to cover. It must delve into the housing, working conditions, educational opportunities, social atmosphere, etc., of a great part of our population; it must also go further and make laws that will break down the walls of mutual reserve that keep immigrants outside the community limits proper. Let us hope that the local hearing will help them in their good work.

ONLY HALF WAY

President Wilson had made many more eloquent speeches than that which followed his signing of the tariff bill but he has never made one for which the stage was more appropriately set or which was more significant. One who has followed the slow progress of the bill in its various stages and the firm stand of the chief executive which alone kept some of his followers from wavering, could easily excuse him if he let a note of pardonable personal pride steal into his felicitations, but it is to his credit that he did not indulge in what he called "campaign eloquence" and simply referred to the completed task of such gigantic proportions as a service promised to the people and accomplished as promised. He was greater in his simplicity than he would have been in flights of the loftiest eloquence.

One thing, however, he said that is especially deserving of the closest attention because of its context and the legislative struggle it presages. He followed his expression of satisfaction at the success of the tariff bill by declaring that he and his supporters had arrived at the "accomplishment of only half the journey," and pictured the rest of the way that is to be trod as the arduous way of currency revision. With keen discrimination he argued: "There is no use taking away the conditions of monopoly. If we do not take away also the power to create monopoly." Business and finance is so firmly interlocked that a revision in the one must be followed by a revision in the other if the commercial balance is to be maintained.

If the enormous personal power of the president during the trying tariff discussion may be taken as an index of what is to come in currency revision, we may expect the latter before the next regular session. It is not strictly speaking considered such a peculiarly party measure as was the tariff, but the appeals of the president would result in an almost united party vote, as they have always in the past. It will be well indeed if his followers and supporters are actuated by the fine idealism that prompted him to say:

"I feel tonight like a man who is lodging happily in the inn which lies half way along the journey and that in the morning with a fresh impulse we shall go the rest of the journey and sleep at the journey's end like men with a quiet conscience, knowing that we have served our fellowmen and have thereby tried to serve God."

SHORTER HOURS OF LABOR

On the one hand we are confronted with the growing demand of practically all classes of labor for a uniform eight hour day, and on the other we have the recent protests of mill girls and others against the new law which prevents any one under 18; and all women who work in more than one place, from working more than 54 hours in any one week. Here is a positive contradiction, but in laws of this nature we must expect contradictions. Laws such as the amended one which shortens the hours of women and children and the still more generally unsatisfactory juvenile law will never prove popular with those whose pay envelope is affected by their provision, and unfortunately we still have a great many people to whom the pay envelope is the most important consideration. The poor girl earning $6.00 in the mill, on which a sick mother and younger brothers and sisters are dependent, is not liable to be thrilled with the noble humanitarianism underlying such well meant legislation, if it deprives her of the additional $2.00 made in the store.

If such laws are to be made a benefit instead of the hardship which they have proved themselves in far too many cases, they must be followed by others which will give to the poor the financial relief taken away by the conflicting regulations that are now in vogue. It is preposterous to assume that reform laws are passed for the purpose of throwing women and children on public charity. Before compelling such radical changes in the industrial fabric the state should have arranged to meet the consequences in some adequate manner. No mother of five or six children should be sent to work because the new law takes a boy of 14 out of the mill.

In time, the wisdom of the recent regulations governing labor may be seen but at present their glaring errors are more to the front than their good qualities. When confronted with many examples of their injurious effects it is folly to rave over their paternal idealism.

THE MUTINOUS GARDNER

In refusing to read his prepared speech or to subordinate his personal views to those of the republican convention on Saturday, Congressman Gardner took up an attitude that will undoubtedly mean a lessening of his vote at the coming elections. Even in the present disorganized condition of his party, many of its members will show their mutinous candidate that he is not greater than the political body whose badge he bears. If his grandstand play was meant as an empty manifestation of progressiveness, it missed its mark, for his action is regarded both in his party and outside as an imprudent act of vain presumption. His failure to saddle his hobbies on his party may be taken as a strong indication of his failure to impose on the republican voters of the commonwealth.

It is not surprising, in view of the party's recent past, that Mr. Gardner should try to create the impression of being in the party but not of it. His personal, social and political connections are directly contrary to what popular opinion favors in legislation, and even though his protestations of progressiveness are sincere, he is so hedged with those representing the old order of things that he cannot effect reforms. Mere mouthing will not work wonders, and though we do not know what was in that prepared speech which he refused to deliver, the public was spared the farce of listening to a declaration of the candidate's schemes to catch votes.

Seen and Heard

"Daughter," called the father from his position at the top of the stairs, at the well known hour of 11.15 p. m., "doesn't the young man know how to say good-night?"

"Does he," echoed the young lady in the darkened hall; "well, I should say he does."—Lady's Home Journal.

"Press agents are all very well," said Alfred Noyes, the English poet, at a picnic luncheon at Nahant, "but a press agent won't advance you to success unless you have the real qualities of success within you."

"Before the press agent blows the trumpet of fame for you, you yourself have got to raise the wind."—New York World.

Senator William H. Thompson, the "boy senator" from Kansas, served a long time as judge in his native state before assuming the toga. Kansas is a prohibition state, and there was a great deal of trouble with what is known as the "bootleggers" in that section; that is, men who carry whiskey around for illegal sale in the legs of their boots or otherwise conceal-d.

A great many of these cases came before Thompson and he frequently paroled the offender. This made for him several enemies, one of whom told on the senator a story which states that one day as Thompson was coming out of the court room he bumped into a big burly colored man standing in a dark part of the hall.

"I begs yer pardin, jedge," exclaimed the son of Ham, bowing profusely.

"I cannot grant you a pardon," Thompson is reported to have replied. "But I will give you a parole."—Washington Star.

Lieut.-Gov. O'Hara said the other day in Chicago, apropos of an employer who paid young women employes $5 a week and less:

"It's all very well for this man to say that starvation wages never lead to vice. He has his viewpoint, his underpaid girls have theirs. And the difference in these viewpoints is startling. It's like the two birds.

"The bird in the hand, tapping the bird in the bush on the shoulder, said seductively:

"'Look here, old chap, it's universally conceded that my job is worth twice as much as yours, but I'll change places with you without asking for a cent of compensation.'

"And the bird in the bush, strange as it may seem, refused this flattering proposal very positively and hastened to fly away."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Tody Hamilton had an experience with an editor of a crossroads weekly up in Michigan when he was general press representative with the Barnum & Bailey show that gave him a new view of finance.

The big show was billed to appear at Owosso, Mich., and the contract agent with No. 1 advertising car had failed to come to terms with the editor of a weekly at a little junction point 20 miles distant. Hamilton went to the little town, sought out the editor and prepared copy for a double column advertisement.

"I'll give you $10 and 20 tickets for two weeks' service in your paper, two columns, mostly cuts," said Hamilton to the editor.

"Oh, no you won't; you'll give me $63 or the advertisement won't go," replied the editor coolly.

"Sixty-three dollars! Great Scott!" roared Hamilton. "That's more than your infernal paper is worth. I never give more than $10 and 20 tickets for our stuff in any country weekly. Man, you're crazy, stark mad!"

All efforts at persuasion failed. The editor remained obdurate. It was $63 or nothing. Finally in despair Hamilton exclaimed:

"Why do you make it $63. You might as well make it $163. It's just as unreasonable."

"I'll tell you, friend," replied the editor calmly. "I have a note coming due shortly for just that amount—and you have got to pay it."

Hamilton did, for he needed the advertising in that particular weekly and the editor knew it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

LOVE SONG

Sweet in her green dell the flower of beauty slumbers,
Lulled by the faint breeze sighing through her hair!
Sleeps she, and hears not the melancholy numbers
Breathed to my sad lute amid the lonely air.
Down from the high cliffs the rivulet is teeming,
To wind round the willow banks that lure him from above;
Oh, that in tears from my rock prison streaming,
I, too, could glide to the bower of my love.
Ah, where the woodbines, with sleepy arms have wound her,
Opens she her eyelids at the dream of my lay,
Listening, like the dove, while the fountains echo round her,
To her lost mate's call in the forest far away.
Come then, my bird, for the pearl thou ever bearest,
Still Heaven's messenger comfort to me—
Come! this fond bosom, my faithfulest, my fairest,
Bleeds with its death wound—but deeper yet for thee.
—George Darley.

GIRLS! THICKEN AND BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Bring Back Its Gloss, Lustre, Charm and Get Rid of Dandruff

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance; freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower; destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

USED COMFORT POWDER FOURTEEN YEARS, FINDS NOTHING BETTER

Mrs. W. G. Conler writes from Asheville, N. C.: "I have used Comfort Powder daily for over 14 years and just cannot do without it. I took six boxes to Panama with me but run out of it on board ship and the minute I struck New York I sent out for two cans. I can't find any other powder that will half way do. To heal and comfort the skin there is nothing like Comfort Powder." Physicians, Trained Nurses and Hospitals everywhere do not hesitate to give Comfort Powder most unqualified endorsement. Be sure you get the genuine with signature of E. S. Sykes on box.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

SPLENDID IDEA

Lawrence Sun: An exchange notes that the suggestion is made that the passengers in rear-end railroad smashups would escape injury if the baggage and express cars were hauled at the rear of trains. This change would, perhaps, meet the approval of everybody except the baggagemen and express messengers, but one amateur railroad expert goes even further and suggests a plan to do away with all rear-end collisions by leaving on the last car entirely.

HUMAN INTEREST

Nashua Telegraph: Doubtless there are a great many like the grateful mother in Ohio who has written to Postmaster General Burleson to thank him for the "blessing" of the parcel post which enables her to "send packages from the home garden to the children who have gone to the city to make their living."

TURKEY

Newport News: The phrase "the sick man of the east" was applied to Turkey by a Russian diplomat more than a century ago. Though the sick man has lost a good deal of flesh since then, he is still far from dead. From time to time it has seemed as if the Ottoman empire were on its last legs, but it has kept on them.

GOOD ADVICE

Brockton Times: The new federal regulations for the protection of migratory birds did not go into effect Oct. 1, as planned, because of difficulty in arranging the cooperation with the various states, but let hunters remember the state laws have not been suspended. If in doubt, don't shoot.

QUITE A DIFFERENCE

Philadelphia Public Ledger: The difference between Mr. Bryan and Governor Sulzer seems to be that one worked for his money and the other worked his friends for it.

READ TWICE

Manchester Union: "But I decided when I became governor of New York to change my ways. I had always tried to be an honest man." We venture a guess that this part of Governor Sulzer's published statement does not read precisely as the governor would have written it on second thought.

SENATOR LODGE

Springfield Union: Senator Lodge has the sympathy and good wishes of the people of Massachusetts in his present illness and the hope for his speedy recovery is shared by all regardless of their party affiliations, for however they may differ with him politically they all must concede that he is a man of rare gifts and strong personality whose public service has done much to strengthen the power and prestige of Massachusetts in the affairs of the nation.

THE TARIFF

Providence Tribune: It must be remembered that a considerable measure of protection is still to be given to most of the important industries of the country and the increase in foreign trade and general commercial intercourse with the world at large will help New York and other large seaports very much if the prosperity of the country behind them is not impaired.

MARRIED 25 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Emery F. Gordon Observed Their Silver Wedding—The Affair Was Largely Attended

Mr. and Mrs. Emery F. Gordon, of 9 Wachusett street, observed their silver wedding at their home Saturday. The affair was largely attended by relatives and friends of the happy couple, who showered them with congratulations, best wishes and numerous gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon were married 25 years ago by Rev. G. N. Howard, then pastor of the Paige Street Free Baptist church, and have two children, Harold E. and Marion E. Mr. Gordon is employed by the J. W. Stewart Co. in Bridge street, and is well known in this city. Mrs. Gordon up to a few years ago was very well known as a singer of rare ability and she has held positions in some of the leading choirs of the city.

LOCAL TEACHERS TO MEET

ORGANIZATION WILL RESUME FALL TERM WITH MEETING AT HIGH SCHOOL TOMORROW

Tomorrow, Tuesday afternoon, at 4.15, in High school hall, the Lowell Teachers' organization will hold its first meeting since the opening of the fall term.

A pleasant social hour will follow the brief business session, and the members extend an invitation to every teacher in Lowell and the surrounding towns to be present. Owing to the large size of the teaching force of Lowell it is not often that the teachers have an opportunity to come together for social purposes, and since there are always additions to the teaching staff, each year the officers and members of the organization feel that early in the year is a good time to start a spirit of friendly intercourse.

State Federation to Meet

On Saturday, Oct. 11, the Massachusetts State Federation of Teachers' Clubs will hold its annual meeting at the Riverbank Court hotel, Boston. A social hour at 11 a. m. will be followed by a luncheon at 12, at which delegates from all over the state, members of the state board of education, and invited guests will be present.

The Federation, which has over 5000 members, counts the Lowell Teachers' organization one of its most important affiliations. At the yearly meeting, which comes the second Saturday in October, all important questions are discussed and voted upon by the delegates from affiliated societies. Lowell will number among its representatives Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, president of the Lowell Teachers' organization; Mr. Henry Harris, Miss Agnes Bailey, Miss Ellen Stillings, Miss Mary Tobin, Miss Bessie Huntoon and Miss Marie Sullivan.

The Federation is rapidly gaining in numbers and strength, and through its efficient officers, handles matters of vital importance to public school teachers of the state, such as matters requiring legislation, like the tenure of office bill.

Miss Belle Batchelder, Miss Stillings, Mr. Harris and Miss Sullivan are members of standing committees in the Federation.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Horace Irons of Winnipeg, Man., and Miss Esther Spencer of this city, were married Saturday by Rev. N. W. Matthews at his home, 15 Ellsworth street. The happy couple will make their home in Lowell.

GOODWIN—KERR

George C. Goodwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Goodwin of Danvers and formerly of this city, and Miss Margaret W. Kerr of Peabody, were united in marriage, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride, 65 Washington street, Peabody, the officiating clergyman being Rev. H. W. Winkley. A brief reception was held after which the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip and upon their return January 1 they will make their home at 8 Putnam street, Danvers.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

All who saw "Her Supreme Sacrifice" at the Opera House last week should not fail to see "Back to Life," the big three-reel feature from the house of Warner which is being shown there today and tomorrow. The story tells of Helen Graydon, a beautiful society bud, who refuses to marry Granville Norton, a wealthy bachelor, and instead gives her heart to Tom Bradley, her brother's chum. Norton's one controlling thought is to dispose of his rival and win Helen. He employs an ex-convict and orders him to kidnap Bradley. The plot is carried out and on the day set for his wedding Bradley regains consciousness in an underground prison, to discover that he is chained hand and foot. Norton makes Helen believe that her lover has committed suicide when threatened with a scandal. The lie serves its purpose and Helen agrees to marry Norton. Bradley, after a whole lot of difficulty, makes his escape from his underground prison and arrives at the church in time to prevent the wedding of Helen and Norton. The scene closes on the wedding of Bradley and Helen.

KEITH'S THEATRE

"A Bachelor's Dinner," touted as the most legitimate offering on the vaudeville stage today, appears at the B. F. Keith theatre, this week, coming here direct from a week's successful run at the Keith Boston house. It will be presented here by Mr. A. Seymour Brown, the author of the lyrics, score and situations of the piece, and its principal actor. Associated with Mr. Brown will appear not fewer than 25 persons, including a dancing sextet, which comes direct from one of the big musical comedies. These young women have been picked because of their classy appearance, although they are required to sing and dance not infrequently. The costuming during the big scenes is noteworthy.

Mr. Brown, in his story, tells of the last night of bachelorhood of one "Dick Marlowe." All the friends of the young man concoct the plan to tender him a mammoth bachelor dinner. They scour the town and get the Bohemian friends of the young man and plan a night of gaiety. Mazie, one of the women friends of the man, makes arrangements to get to the place an elderly man, after midnight. This man wants to take just one last dip into the frivolities of life and is pleased at the opportunity. He proves to be none other than the prospective father-in-law of "Marlowe." Of course there are some rip-roaring situations following the disclosure of the elderly guest, but everything is amicably patched up at the fall of the curtain.

Mr. Brown has written some bright musical numbers, which will easily be whistled and which are given in the production with all possible accessories. Among these are: "When Love Comes Knocking at Your Heart," "That Tingling Tango Tune," "Adam and Eve Had a Wonderful Time," "Somebody Loves You." All together there are ten musical numbers, including ensemble numbers, dances, etc.

Several well known comedians assist in the fun. Prominent among them is Russel Randall, as "G. Wellington Smith," the prospective father-in-law; George Walton, as the valet, and John Coleman as "George Gibson." Pauline Thorne, as "Mazie," one of the prime movers in the supper is an attractive young woman, and Cecilia Santon, as "Dorothy Smith," beloved of "Dick," is said to be not only remarkably pretty but vocally of much ability. Others in the cast are Joseph Roberts, Robert Ward, John Ryan, Russell Brown, James Ryan and Arthur Drury, and Misses Martha Dean, Mae Bosch, Olive Dale, Florence Gordon, Kitty Gordon and Beatrice Eastwood.

"War is ——," a lively sketch by Val Trainor & Co., will make plenty of good fun. The act has never before appeared here, and it is built on an exceedingly fetching little idea. Assisting Mr. Trainor are three women, all in important roles. Al Holt, known as the "merry mimic," will give a number of personations of famous characters and will also do a line of work which is most uncommon today. He is said to be wonderfully versatile. Emmet and Emmet, in the placid little musical sketch of Ireland, called "On the Banks of Killarney," have one of the prettiest and sweetest of offerings. The music accompanying it is all delightfully reminiscent of the Emerald Isle, and the costuming is also very attractive. It will prove one of the best things of the week.

Billy Davis is a blackface comedian who has a fund of new stories, and who may be expected to deliver over something out of the general run of things. Boothby and Everdeen, in a singing and talking and piano skit, are well known light entertainers. The Richards Brothers are Roman ring artists of note. The bill will close with the Pathe Weekly, a group of motion pictures taken in many parts of the world. 'Phone 28.

THEATRE VOYONS

An historical episode of early frontier days in the west is the basis for the Kalem photo play, "The Attack on Fort Laramie," a two-reel production to be shown at the Theatre Voyons today. It is exceptionally well staged from an historical standpoint and there is plenty of excitement from start to finish. "Salvation Sal," a vitagraph, tells of the regeneration of a girl of the slums and in a most unusual way.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

A play that makes light work of serious business is "Sham," the delightful comedy in three acts, which is to be the week's presentation by the Merrimack Square theatre players. It was first seen here with Miss Henrietta Crosman as its star, but will be given its first stock showing at this popular theatre with Miss Grace Young in the leading role. It will also afford this popular actress opportunity for wearing her famous X-ray gown which she will do in the second act and allows full scope for excellent stage dressing which will no doubt be one of the many happy features connected with the week's offering. As usual the latest motion pictures will be shown. Seats on sale. Subscription list open at the box office. Why not place your name on it. It costs no more and assures you of your favorite seat every week.

AGAIN WARNS ENGINEERS

Foss Says R. R. Labor Organization is Just as Much Under Public Control as a Railroad

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Governor Foss made public last night a second letter to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in which he takes that organization to task for voting upon a strike before completing its negotiations with the New Haven road.

The governor states in his letter that the big railroad labor organization is just as much subject to public control as a railroad would be when it adopts "a course of action which would disorganize the business of our citizens, throw labor out of employment and interfere with the supply of food and fuel."

Governor's Letter

The letter is as follows:

"I have received your letter of Oct. 3 and must call your attention to the fact that the letter is written upon the assumption that your organization is engaged in a private calling and that the state or nation will in some way trespass upon the rights and freedom of your members if they undertake to regulate the conditions of employment.

"This assumption is wholly inadmissible. The railroads of the country are engaged in a public calling and are, therefore, subject to public regulation. The same is true of the employees of the railroads, and your organization has no more right to resent regulation by the state or nation than have the railroads to resent control by the same authorities.

"When your organization adopts a course of action which would disorganize the business of our citizens, throw labor out of employment and interfere with the supply of food and fuel, it is subject to public control just as much as the railroad would be if, in similar manner, it refused to operate its trains or otherwise perform its duties as a public carrier.

"Public regulation in the one case is as justified as it is in the other, and neither the railroads nor their employees have any right to object to such regulation as an interference with their freedom.

"When capital is invested in the business of transportation it thereby places itself in a public calling in which it is rightfully subject to public regulation, and the same is true of labor.

"The failure of your organization to realize that its members are engaged in a public calling is further evidenced by the fact that it has seen fit to take a vote upon the strike before the completion of negotiations with the company and, therefore, before either the members of the organization or the public, which is really a party to the controversy, are in a position to know fully the facts in the case and the proper course to pursue. There is great need that some means shall be provided by which a question like this, which affects the welfare of every man, woman and child in New England, shall not be determined by a private organization in advance of a full determination of the facts.

"Taking a vote upon the strike in advance of the conclusion of negotiations seems to indicate a desire to force a settlement by intimidation, rather than by free and open discussion of the merits of the case.

"Your letter further assumes that public regulation of the conditions under which the members of your organization are employed would subject them to the control of the railroads and involve disregard of their rights.

"Such an assumption is quite as unwarranted as would be the similar assumption that public control of the capital invested in the transportation industry involves disregard of the rights of capital. Both labor and capital have rights which must be respected in any plan of government regulation.

"In reference to this point I call your attention to the fact that my proposal is to provide adequate remedies, through an impartial tribunal, for all grievances of railroad employees at the same time that the commonwealth undertakes to prohibit strikes. By such legislation the interests of the employees will be carefully guarded at the same time that means are provided to insure due consideration of the rights of the public.

"Your letter makes clear that the rule of seniority is the real issue between your organization and the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. It does not, however, present any new arguments in favor of the rule and will not change the attitude of any fair-minded man. Upon that point I can only repeat that a strike undertaken upon this issue will alienate the sympathy of the public and compel this commonwealth to adopt suitable measures for the protection of its citizens.

"Yours very truly,

(Signed) "Eugene N. Foss,
"Governor."

DEMOCRATS IN HARMONY

Endorse State Ticket and Adopt Walsh's Platform at Convention in Boston

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—The democrats met in state convention at Faneuil hall Saturday, indorsed the ticket headed by Lieut. Gov. David I. Walsh and adopted a platform along lines already announced.

Walsh Makes Speech

Lieut. Governor David I. Walsh made a new departure in his speech of acceptance as the standard bearer of the democratic party in the present state campaign. Instead of leaving the matter to the chairman of the resolutions committee, the candidate for governor himself presented before the convention the tentative party platform. "In order," he said, "that I may identify myself as closely as possible with the party platform which you adopt, and make it clear to the people of Massachusetts that the principles and policies which it contains are not imposed upon me and accepted reluctantly to be shirked at the first opportunity, but spring from my own convictions as well as yours."

Mr. Walsh pledged himself to be true to the platform; then read it to the convention and later moved its acceptance.

In continuing his speech, he said in part:

"The position of our party in favor of many of these principles is by no means new or recent. It was begun by us years ago as political doctrine. For sixteen years we have waged battle for direct legislation. To advocate in those days the direct election of United States Senators by vote of the people, to urge the initiative, the referendum and the direct primary was to invite the most scathing criticism and to cause to be questioned our loyalty to the government and its sacred traditions.

"Time has vindicated us, not only by the adoption of most of these principles, but indeed too by the disintegration of the republican party.

"Is not the logical situation this: That the party that suggested these reforms, that was the backbone of the movement in legislative halls for their adoption, should now receive credit for the judgment and foresight and that all who believe in the wisdom of these principles should co-operate with us in pressing to completion the reforms yet to be adopted?

"The party of privilege in the nation has been defeated. Its alliance with wealth has been exposed and weakened. After years of struggle, of defeat and of humiliation, the day is here when the individual has come into his own politically. He can no longer be over-ridden in caucuses. He cannot be betrayed in conventions. He can cast his own vote for United States senator. He is to be taxed much less on what he consumes. Wealth has been made to assume some of the burdens of taxation. No longer the banker alone,—but the man of moderate means is to be recognized in currency legislation. The individual is on his feet again and his voice is more effective than ever in the making of the laws under which he is to live.

"Men are not ungrateful; gratitude over-rides partisanship; it is to the individual then, to the man who loves his government more than mere party labels, who feels now for the first time the new power and influence and responsibility that we have won for him, that we appeal hopefully and confidently.

"What party has brought about this revolution? Our party and our party alone. We have within six months triumphed over and driven from the halls of the national government the forces of wealth, of special privilege and of corporate aggrandizement that have been enthroned there for a generation.

"In the waging of this desperate contest, in the accomplishment of this trying work, it is but natural that those who have been half-hearted and insincere in their devotion to the cause of the people should be found missing from our ranks. Those whose influence has been weakened, whose power has been lost, whose service in our ranks has been for sordid and selfish purposes, rather than the principles we were fighting for, will still embarrass and hamper the progress of this great movement by working upon the prejudices of the people.

"The democratic party has demonstrated that it is no longer weak and tottering; it is no longer a mere party of theory and promises.

"We enter this contest with a platform of principles, every sentence of which is a call and a challenge to ameliorate the political and social conditions of the people.

"Our party in the national government has fulfilled its promises in six months, to a greater extent than even the most loyal and enthusiastic advocates deemed attainable. We may show in the state as our brave president is showing in the nation the sacred obligation of party pledges.

"Let this campaign be one of democratic jubilation! Let the pessimist, the doubter, the calamity crier, the disappointed seeker of public office, the beneficiaries of legislative privilege stand one side while the triumphant procession of democracy and its principles takes the lead on the straight and broad highway which leads to certain victory.

"Sound the loud timbrel o'er Egypt's dark sea!
Jehovah has triumphed—his people are free."

KILLED AT GAME

A Quarrel Over Cards Resulted in Death of Rumford, Me., Man

RUMFORD, Me., Oct. 6.—In a quarrel over a card game, Luigi Relas was killed and Mario Balba dangerously wounded yesterday. Balba, who is at the hospital with a bullet hole at the back of his mouth, is under police surveillance on the charge of shooting Relas.

According to the police, these two and others of a card party at Relas' home, engaged in a scrimmage, during which Relas and Balba rolled down a flight of stairs together wrestling for control of a revolver, which Balba had. Although fatally wounded by a bullet from the weapon, Relas managed in his last struggle to turn it upon his antagonist, inflicting a throat wound. Balba is expected to recover.

Relas was 35 years old and leaves a widow. He had been employed as a foreman of a ditching gang. The house where the shooting occurred was the scene of a tragedy two years ago, when Joseph Bill, now a life inmate of the state prison, shot and killed his wife there.

C. Y. M. L. EVENTS

One of the most important activities of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum at the present time is the forming of a debating society, and in this the members as a whole are showing deep interest. The preliminary steps for the organization of such a department in the Lyceum have already been taken and without doubt the result will be a full fledged debating club in a short time. It is the intention of those in charge of the arrangements to compete against the debating teams which are being formed by the other organizations of young men in this city, including the Burkes and the Matthews. This certainly would be a novel and enjoyable educational feature of the club life.

Plans for the Lawrence night on Oct. 16 on which evening the Lyceum will entertain the members of the Catholic Young Men's association of Lawrence, and their lady friends at the rooms in Suffolk street, are going forward at a rapid pace. A varied program is being arranged for the evening, including a concert, games and dancing, with refreshments during the evening. The Lawrence society will hold a Lowell night at their club rooms sometimes in the near future at which they will entertain the Lyceum members and their lady friends.

The Holy Name society of St. Patrick's was the winner in the recent tournament of games with the Lyceum at the latter's rooms, and another similar tournament will be held in the near future so successful was the last event. The members plan a very active social season.

Wanted!

Perfectly healthy men and women who will voluntarily submit to an experiment which may lead to temporary or permanent impairment of health, or possible death.

This experiment to be conducted with the coffee drug, "caffeine."

Would You Apply for the Job?

Thousands are trying the experiment every day in spite of the fact that physicians and government experts have proven:

That the average cup of coffee contains about 2 1-2 grs. of caffeine;

That caffeine is attributed to be one of the principal causes of headache, biliousness, heart disease, indigestion and kidney, liver and bowel trouble;

That caffeine in doses as small as that contained in two average cups of coffee has killed rabbits, guinea pigs and other animals at the laboratories of the Gov't in Washington and elsewhere.

To be sure a guinea pig or a rabbit may weigh but a pound or two, while the average human may weigh 100 times as much.

A few cups of coffee or a single cup (according to the resistance of the individual) will not kill, but the poison is there and can be added to day by day.

That's why so many coffee drinkers suffer from headache, dizziness, indigestion and other symptoms referable to the poison effect on heart, liver, nerves, kidneys and stomach.

If you know coffee has no bad effect in your particular case and you like it, why, bless your heart, stick to it, but if coffee drinking leaves its tell-tale mark by some symptoms of physical discomfort or peace of mind, it's a good idea to stop and use

POSTUM

This pure food-beverage, made of prime wheat and the juice of southern sugar-cane, makes a rich, seal-brown blend turning to golden-brown when cream is added, which tastes much like real Oriental Java but is absolutely free from the coffee drug, "caffeine."

Postum comes in two forms. One, called Regular Postum, must be boiled full 15 minutes.

The other, Instant Postum, is in powder form and a level teaspoonful in a cup or hot water makes the beverage instantly. Grocers keep both kinds.

Consumption Takes 350 People Daily

in the United States and the deadly germs claim more victims in cities than in rural districts, due no doubt to the increased number of indoor workers in confining quarters and their lack of sunshine.

Tubercular germs always attack when the system is weakened from colds or sickness, overwork, overstrain, confining duties or any drain which has reduced the resistive forces of the body. But nature always provides a corrector and the best physicians emphasize that during changing climate our blood should be kept rich and pure and active by taking Scott's Emulsion after meals; the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion warms the body by enriching the blood—it peculiarly strengthens the lungs and upbuilds the resistive forces of the body to avoid colds and prevent consumption.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or nervous, Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known; it builds energy and strength and is totally free from alcohol or any stupefying drug—every druggist has it.

POLICE COURT CASES

Long List of Offenders Before Judge Enright Today—Wayward Couples in Court

As if to make up for last week's scarcity of police court defendants this morning's docket showed a long list of drunks and various other cases of a more serious nature.

Chinamen Fined

Nine smiling Chinamen trooped in behind their counsel, Judge Pickman, and pleaded guilty to the charge of being present where gambling was being conducted. All of the defendants wore the customary smooth smile of the Mongolian race and seemed to regard the matter as a joke.

Judge Pickman informed the court that his advice was taken by his Chinese clients in the majority of cases and that they had all promised him to keep out of any further gambling scraps. He outlined to the court the kind of isolated life that the Chinamen led in this country and said that gaming was practically their only diversion. Whereas he did not offer this as an excuse for their offence Judge Pickman considered that this phase of the situation should be taken into account when sentence was imposed by the court. All of the defendants were ordered to pay the minimum fine of $2.

Wayward Couples

The two couples rounded up late Saturday night in upper Merrimack street by Sergt. Giroux and Patrolmen Nickels, Gennell and Gillis all appeared in court this morning.

Bernabe Fortier and Emma Caron, both pleaded guilty to the charge of adultery. The woman's husband was present and took the witness stand. He accused the man of stealing the affections of his wife and told the court that he had two children at home depending upon a mother's care. The wife was called up to the judge's bench weeping bitterly.

Judge Enright did his best to straighten out matters between man and wife and Caron finally said that he would take his wife back to the family domicile upon her promise to love, honor and obey him alone henceforth. Fortier was given the minimum fine, $15, and accepted his sentence with very poor grace, a sullen scowl being seated up his face throughout the proceedings.

Suttile Tangnay and Frederick Gelpas both pleaded guilty to a statutory offence, but as neither is a married person the penalty was not so heavy as in the previous case. Each defendant received a fine of $15 and was allowed a term of probation with in which to pay the same.

It was noticeable that a number of girls apparently of the number shut out of the mills by the new minor law were in attendance to hear the evidence in the two previous cases.

Sent to Jail

Officer Clark again appeared in the limelight when the case of William Alexander was brought to trial. The defendant had an idea that he was a better man physically than the officer, but found out to his sorrow that his hypothesis was altogether wrong. Alexander will spend the next two months in jail where he will have ample opportunity to find another way to circumvent the law as applied by Officer Clark.

Other Cases

Charles Odel had nothing to say in his own defence this morning. Officer Clark arrested him Saturday night in a drunken condition while in the act of taking out his exuberant feelings on the backs of his children with a horsewhip. His wife, a hard working woman who looked completely tired out today, informed Judge Enright that her husband has been drinking heavily of late. Odel was sent up to jail until Saturday when his case will once more be taken up and sentence imposed.

A young Pole by the name of Stanislaw Gogglevitch started something in Middle street last night which he couldn't finish. Officer McCann arrested him in the middle of the street while going through all the gestures of a ring artist. Just previous to this the glass in the doorway of Bertrand's tailor shop had sunken in with a crash, but as the officers did not see him actually break it, the charge was not pressed against him. He was let off with a fine of $2.

With a limp and a groan Peter Glynn took the stand to testify against Thomas Murphy who had beaten him up pretty badly during the sequence to a barroom argument. Although Murphy acknowledged his guilt the evidence in the case was put in before Judge Enright.

Glynn asserted that the defendant had struck him behind the ear after following him out of the saloon and that while he, Glynn, was lying upon the ground, Murphy had kicked him in the hip with such force that he could not use his bruised limb properly today. The arresting officer testified to seeing Murphy strike and kick Glynn.

"You ought to go to the house of correction," asserted the court. The defendant was fined $25.

Elizabeth McDermott was released from jail only a short time ago on account of her weak physical condition and again appeared before the local court on the charge of drunkenness. Judge Enright gave her an opportunity to straighten out, however, and gave her a suspended sentence to the state farm.

Emery Conois, a fourth offender for over-indulgence, received a sentence of four months to jail. His actions when he heard the sentence indicated that he expected a longer term.

John Clancy and James E. Butler, two parole men from the state farm, were sent back to that institution. Thos. J. Murray, who claims Hartford as his home, although he has not been there in over 30 years, was sent up to jail for 15 days in order to sober up.

John Smith, James Day and Adam Colby were fined $15 for their third arrest for imbibing. Joseph B. Weaver was fined $6 for the same offence. Probation Officer Slattery had a list of 12 first offenders all of whom he released.

G. & G. PANTMAKERS' OPENING

A new firm under the management of J. M. Lachance, has leased the store formerly occupied by Cruickshank, confectioner, at 67 Central street, and has transformed it into one of the most attractive on the street. After completing the alterations he stocked it with one of the finest assortments of pants to be seen anywhere in the country for the money. This store is exclusively given to the sale of pants. They have named very popular prices, one, two, and three dollars. From the opening Saturday until closing at night a steady stream of people called to inspect these goods and the new quarters and seemed highly pleased with the general appearance of the latter and delighted with the stock of pants displayed, of which there was a very large and selected stock.

This is the only establishment in our city that deals exclusively in this line of wearing apparel, and judging from the successful opening it looks as if there was no question about its success. Popular prices always catch. There were hundreds of orders received, and there were great values for the money. The store is well lighted, bright, airy and centrally located so that one can easily judge of shade and color of material. Mr. Lachance has engaged to assist him in supplying the public a number of competent clerks and all business done with this new firm is guaranteed to be exactly as represented. There will be no long waits or disappointments at the G. & G. Pant store, 67 Central St.

RICH, RED BLOOD RESISTS DISEASE

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make Pure Blood and Restore Health

Thin, pale people lack the power of resistance to disease that rich, red blood gives. Nervous breakdown is the direct result of thin blood. Pale people are always nervous. Such people need Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills are a doctor's prescription, not a patent medicine. The prescription was used by the doctor in his private practice and was found to have such a wide field of usefulness that this efficient remedy was given to the world by being placed on sale with complete directions for use, written by the doctor himself.

Good blood means health; impure blood means continued ill health. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make pure, clean, healthy blood. Don't put off trying them any longer, but get a 50-cent box from your druggist and begin the treatment today.

LINES OF ROAD

County Commissioners Gave Hearing to Residents of Tyngsboro

The Middlesex county commissioners gave a hearing at 10.15 this morning to residents of the town of Tyngsboro on the petition for defining the lines of the road leading from the end of Tyngsboro bridge toward Hudson, N. H.

The petition sought for definition of lines for but a short distance and County Engineer F. H. Kendall was instructed by the commissioners to go over the road carefully with the abutters and attempt to define lines satisfactory to all concerned and at the same time secure needed improvement of this narrow road.

A petition will be presented to the county officials asking that this entire road from Tyngsboro bridge to the New Hampshire line at Hudson, may be put in proper condition. Action on this in the way of a hearing will necessarily be delayed for a few weeks to comply with the requirements of the law.

Conferences were held by the town residents with the commissioners regarding changes in the village approaches to the big bridge to conform to improvements now being made by the town people where the fire occurred last June. It was also suggested that some action should soon be taken looking to reconstruction of Tyngsboro bridge. This is a county bridge, the only one in the county, and is really a portion of a state highway. The county stands ready to relinquish it to the proper authorities under legislative sanction.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system.

They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, you will know them by their olive color.

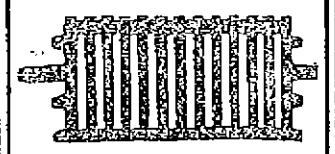

Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

CROXONE SAVES ELDERLY PEOPLE FROM KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Sleep Disturbing Bladder Weaknesses, Backache, Stiff Joints, Rheumatic Pains Disappear After Few Doses are Taken

While people along in years are naturally more subject to weak kidneys, they can easily avoid the tortures of backache and rheumatism, and be saved the annoyance of getting up at night with disagreeable bladder disorders.

Croxone relieves these conditions by promptly reaching the cause and making the kidneys filter the blood and sift out the poisonous acids and waste matter that cause these troubles.

It soaks right in and cleans out the stopped up, inactive kidneys, dissolves and drives out the uric acid and other poisonous impurities that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause rheumatism. It neutralizes the urine so it no longer irritates the bladder, overcomes unnecessary breaking of sleep and helps the kidneys and bladder regain health and strength.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what else you have used. It is practically impossible to take Croxone without results. It starts to work the minute you take it—the first time you use it. An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails in a single case.

W. E. ROGERS, Register.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents Edward Austin Auger, of Lowell, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Isabella Mitchell Auger, now of Magog, in the Province of Quebec, in the Dominion of Canada, at Magog aforesaid, on the 22nd day of December, A. D. 1904, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Isabella Mitchell Auger lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Magog, aforesaid; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Isabella Mitchell Auger, being wholly regardless of the same, at Magog, aforesaid, on or about the 23d day of March, 1908, did utterly desert your libellant and has continued such desertion to the time of the filing of this libel; being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel and your libellant has lived within this Commonwealth for more than five years next prior to the date of filing this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Isabella Mitchell Auger and that the custody of their minor child, a son Jesse Alexander Auger be given to your libellant, said son being now of the age of six years.

Dated this twenty-fourth day of September, A. D. 1913.

EDWARD AUSTIN AUGER.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, Sept. 25, A. D. 1913.

Upon the foregoing libel, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of November next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the libel, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

A true copy of the libel and of the order thereon.

Attest.

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

WATERWAY CONVENTION

be on the safe side and take no risk I would advise the delegates to bring in their baggage," said Mr. McNary.

James J. O'Donnell, owner and editor of the Holyoke Telegram, was one of the speakers selected to present the question of the development of the Connecticut river and valley, and upon being introduced, created a general laugh by stating that perhaps the delegates had left their dress suit cases on the outside because they had more confidence in the strangers on the outside than in the delegates on the inside.

Hon. W. S. McNary

In his opening remarks, Mr. McNary said: "It is not my purpose to make any long speech. There are men here from the different places who will have facts and figures at their finger's tips and they will tell you all about it because they are familiar with the different localities.

"This state is 50 years behind the times in water transportation and it is the association represented here today that can bring us up to date. They have a big work to perform and they are capable of performing it. The outlook is good at the present time. I do not blame our representatives in congress for the little progress that we have made, for I was in congress myself and we worked earnestly on the waterway question, but not until very recently has Massachusetts been properly recognized. We are making very good progress and we are going to get somewhere pretty soon."

The speaker referred at considerable length to the development of Boston port and harbor. He said, however, it was necessary to develop other communities near Boston before Boston would properly develop.

"We want to develop opportunities for water transportation. We want to see it so developed that cities along the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers can get their raw material by water and ship is finished product either by rail or water. In order for a city to develop a city must be a manufacturing as well as a commercial city," he said.

He added that in order to bring about the desired results public terminals must be provided which will be open to all kinds of shipping. The national government will want Massachusetts to co-operate in providing the terminals dredging, etc. In order to get to the point intended by the national government it is absolutely necessary to co-operate in all the movements connected with the development of the various waterways and this convention, today he said, ought to be of great assistance in bringing about a thorough understanding of the question as a whole.

"Here in Boston when there are improvements underway we have to cooperate and contribute toward those improvements, and the policy of the government is fixed and in the future these projects will receive favorable attention by the government providing the spirit of co-operation is made manifest.

"The cost of coal and lumber can be greatly reduced in this community through the medium of water transportation. With the United States government spending $400,000,000 on the Panama canal; with all the nations of the world building new steamships in the belief that the commerce of the world is going to be radically changed, it is time now that we demand that this rich state should realize the situation and co-operate with the government in order that we may be able to take advantage of later day opportunities.

"Other states are growing faster than Massachusetts because of waterway transportation. We must base our prosperity on our ability to get our goods as cheap as possible and in order to do that it is necessary for us to develop our waterways and it is up to Massachusetts to do its legitimate work along this line. The development of our waterways is one of the most important of the problems facing us today and the heartiest co-operation between nation, state and parties is absolutely necessary in order to succeed. Ours is a great manufacturing state and it is held that we will never lose our position in line, but I think the facts are against us and we are liable to go backwards instead of forward unless we hasten the development of our waterways."

John H. Murphy

John H. Murphy, secretary of the Lowell board of trade read a very comprehensive paper setting forth Lowell's needs and Lowell's interest in the proposition to render the Merrimack river navigable from Lowell to the sea. He said:

The people of Lowell are enthusiastic in their belief that the improvement of the Merrimack river will develop new territory, will enhance the value of real estate and will reduce the cost of handling freight and increase the efficiency of transportation. They also believe that the development will have a tendency to decrease the cost of living, because raw materials used in the process of manufacturing and coal both for manufacturing purposes and domestic use can be brought to the city at a reduced cost.

The Merrimack valley is unsurpassed for its beautiful stretches of scenery and is one of the most important manufacturing districts in New England. The population of the cities and towns along its banks number almost a half-million people and the factories and mills employ over 90,000 hands, who earn over $400,000,000 a year. The assessed valuation of property in the valley amounts to $300,000,000.

So much has been said relative to the importance of the developments of this river from a standpoint of commercial interest and from a point of competing with other cities and sections enjoying water transportation facilities that it is hardly necessary to dwell further on this thought at this time.

The Merrimack river is as worthy of congressional favor as any existing waterway project of the country, because it serves a very valuable and important industrial and commercial community and because the proposed development of the river being entirely within the boundry of one state entails co-operation and action of Massachusetts and the federal government. The transportation facilities of the city of Lowell are entitled to consideration both from the state and the government, because of the fact that it is the largest and most important city of the Merrimack valley. The city of Lowell contributes to the Boston & Maine railroad more revenue than any other city of the system excepting Boston and its ever increasing traffic, congested at times, needs the assistance of the river transportation facilities in order to assist in the moving of its extensive freight. At a recent hearing before the interstate commerce commission Vice President Hobbs of the Boston & Maine railroad stated that his company needed 10,000 more freight cars, new and enlarged terminals and more tracks in order to meet the demands of the increasing freight business, and the development of the Merrimack river offers a solution to the congested and increasing traffic of the Merrimack valley and the words of Mr. Hobbs are strong testimony as to the prospective business, which is available and will result from the development of the river.

Loss of Water Power.

While much is heard relative to the loss of water power by the development of the Merrimack, it is well to note that a special act incorporating the proprietors of the Locks & Canals on Merrimack river provided that the corporation will act for the public benefit of those residing along the river and for the purpose of rendering the Merrimack river passable for boats, rafts and masts. This corporation built a canal from the head of Pawtucket falls to the Concord river, which was operated for some time, but went into disuse by reason of the building of the Middlesex canal. After several years the stock of the Locks & Canals company changed hands and the new company has used the water of the Merrimack for manufacturing purposes and the development of power, but the character of the charter of the Locks & Canals Corporation has never been substantially changd. No legislation has been passed changing materially the purpose for which the corporation was organized.

Concerning the present freight business of Lowell the following freight tonnage figures give only an idea as to the tonnage which is shipped from Lowell or received for Lowell at the ports of Boston and New York for the purpose of connecting with transportation facilities.

There is received at Boston by water, exclusive of coal, over 18,000 tons, and there is shipped from Lowell through the port of Boston annually over 76,000 tons, and there is received for Lowell through the port of Boston over 500,000 tons of coal a year. Lowell ships to New York via Long Island sound 24,000 tons and receives from the port of New York about 23,000 tons.

Freight Tonnage

The total freight tonnage handled annually in Lowell is in excess of 2,000,000 tons and the average gain in total tonnage per year is estimated at 25 per cent. This freight coming in consists of coal, cotton, iron ore, wool, lumber, wire and other raw steel materials, brick, cement, leather, etc., and could come by water if the river was improved. It is a conservative estimate to claim that 90 per cent. of the cotton, coal, iron ore and leather could be shipped by water.

Coal

The amount of coal brought into Lowell amounts to about 500,000 tons per year. This in most cases comes from Boston by rail, which necessitates a charge of 21c. per ton for transferring from barge to train at Mystic wharf and an added freight rate of .85 per ton to come to Lowell.

It is stated on fairly good authority that the people of Lowell pay annually $3,000,000 for $2,000,000 worth of coal.

Hon. John Jacob Rogers, member of congress, ably summarizes the details of the Merrimack river project when he outlines the ten necessary steps in order to bring the matter of the development of the Merrimack river to a successful termination. The first seven of these preliminary steps have been taken, which includes an act of congress authorizing a preliminary examination, the preliminary examination, a favorable report upon same, acceptance of the report by the chief engineers, the appropriation of money for a survey, the survey, the acceptance of the report of this survey by the chief of engineers of the United States, the introduction of the matter into congress in regard to an appropriation for completed work, and finally the granting of the appropriation to complete the work.

The Merrimack river project has successfully passed seven of these periods and the final papers of the survey are now being considered by the chief engineers. If they report favorably then the matter is ready to be introduced into congress. It is evident from the standing of the project to date that there are no legal difficulties which cannot be overcome; that the proposition is feasible and that the only thing necessary is continued enthusiasm in order to bring this matter to a final issue. In order to bring about enthusiasm and interest in this matter information should be spread broadcast informing people of the feasibility of the plan and the last favorable report of Hon. Frederic V. Abbott, chief engineer of the United States army should be published in our newspapers in order that the public might appreciate the possibility of bringing this matter to a head within the very near future.

Men From Lawrence

Frederic N. Chandler, president of the Lawrence chamber of commerce, said that a great deal had been said about the unimportance of transportation by water for cities along the Merrimack river because we are being so well served by rail, but he said that in coal alone Lawrence could save $500,000 a year if there was water transportation.

It was at this point Mr. Chandler asked to be allowed to introduce Andrew B. Sutherland, a former chairman of the Lawrence chamber of commerce and member of the Merrimack Valley Waterways commission. Mr. Sutherland was introduced and jumped right in with both feet, so to speak. He said that Massachusetts, so far as recital was made in the most matter of fact way, with no seeming remorse. He said he never drank or smoked—except opium. He asserted that he had not "touched a pill" for two days and a physician declared the prisoner was not under the influence of the drug.

"You have got me dead to rights on the Rexroat murder," Spencer said, "and I know that I shall swing for it in a couple of months. That's why I want to tell everything else and get it out of the way."

In and Out of Prison"

"I have been in and out of prison since I was a boy," he continued. "I have been hunted and hounded all my life. I am sore on the world. My own life does not amount to much and nobody's life has meant much to me."

The proceeds of Spencer's crimes have amounted to more than $10,000 in the last year. He has spent the money on women.

"I killed Mrs. Rexroat because she told me I was responsible for her condition and how badly she needed $300. I did not murder her for the ring. I took it just because it was there."

Two women whom Spencer murdered came from New York. He said he married four times.

Killed Helen Gould's Maid

"I married Helen Gould's maid in New York," said Spencer. "I took her to Fort Montgomery and killed her in the woods nearby. She had about $300 and $800 in diamonds."

"Did you have any other women in New York?" asked Captain Halpin.

"Yes; there was a widow I married. We were coming to Chicago and stopped off at Detroit. We went to Belle Isle, or Windsor. We walked down one of the walks in the park and I shot her. I got $600 and a diamond."

A few nights ago, Spencer said, he robbed the Astor cafe, a block from the detective bureau.

Chief of Police McWeeney believes Spencer is telling the truth. The chief's opinion is strengthened by the familiarity of Spencer with the facts in the matter of the murder of Policemen Pennell and Devine, which Spencer says was his work.

Murdered More Than Twenty

After being questioned for 14 hours, during which the number of murders he confessed to having committed was increased to more than twenty, Spencer, exhausted by the ordeal was allowed to retire in a cell shortly after eight o'clock this morning for a few hours' sleep.

He had been questioned without interruption by Police Captain Halpin and Assistant State's Attorney Sullivan in regard to details in his criminal career ever since his arrest the other night. After the long siege he put his hands to his head and said:

"I am too tired to remember any more just now. I got to have some sleep. The truth of the matter is that I killed so many I can't remember all of them."

From an unofficial source it was learned that Spencer had amplified his story of the murder of one of his wives. He said the woman's name was Nelly but refused to give her surname.

"I was in New York six years ago and one day I visited the art gallery which Helen Gould has installed in the Martha Washington hotel for women," said Spencer. "There I met Nelly, Miss Gould's maid. We were married three days later. I had told her I was a wealthy traveling man."

Killed Wife With Hammer

"One day we took a ride up the Hudson river to West Point and from there went by 'bus to Fort Montgomery. In a secluded spot I struck her with a hammer; killing her instantly. I took $500 from her clothing and returned to Chicago.

"A few days later I robbed a clothing store of 45 suits, which I sold. Then for a while I stole bicycles, getting about 180 of them. The police finally made it so hot for me that I beat it out of town."

One of Spencer's victims of whom he told early today was an unidentified man who accidentally brushed against him and whom he followed, robbed and shot dead. He dragged the body into an alley and fled. This was last spring.

Two months ago he is said to have entered a Park row saloon, where he formerly was employed as porter and killed a bartender with a hammer. He did not give the bartender's name, but said he robbed the man of several hundred dollars.

the government of Great Britain alleged to have been infringed upon in the deportation of Harry Thaw from Canada, this department can find no provision violated by the action taken in connection with this case by the Canadian authorities, either administrative or judicial.

"This department, therefore, would not be warranted in making any representations to the British government in the matter. The inquiry determined is not whether Thaw should be liberated or whether extradition should be granted. But the question before the department is whether there was a violation of any British-American treaty in the Thaw case by the Canadian authorities. The reply must be in the negative. Senator Oliver, who brought the matter to the attention of the department, will be advised accordingly."

FIRE IN MARKET STREET

At 11.44 box 125 called the fire department to a small blaze in Market street which was more smoke than fire. An old fashioned kitchen range with the ash tray underneath caused the trouble.

Instead of having the usual brick for the ash receptacle nothing but a sheet zinc covered the floor in this case with the result that some of the hot coals burned through into the woodwork. Only a small patch of flooring was burned, however, before the chemical extinguished the blaze.

FRACTURED HIS LEG

Boy Met With Painful Accident Saturday Afternoon—Was Removed to Lowell Hospital

Fernand Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delphis Robert, residing at the corner of Moody and Riverside streets, suffered a painful accident Saturday afternoon, when he received a fracture of the right leg.

The boy was working on Bellemare's farm in Dracut, where he helped unload hay by means of a pulley and rope. The boy was suddenly caught by the rope which wound around his leg, and he was raised several feet, later dropping to the ground. A close examination disclosed the fact that the boy's leg had been fractured. The little fellow was removed to the Lowell hospital.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—The so-called Slingsby baby case, involving $50,000 a year income from an English estate, and a charge of baby substitution by Lieutenant and Mrs. Charles Raymond Slingsby, in order to get this income, is to be reopened. It was learned today that A. C. Ross, British consul in San Francisco, has been appointed by the high court of chancery in England to take testimony on the subject for the final settlement of the estate is said to hinge on this proceeding.

The Slingsbys live in Vancouver and are British subjects. More than a year ago the case attained prominence when the Slingsbys claiming the estate were opposed by Lieut. Slingsby's brother, who said the alleged heir was the child of a California schoolgirl, who gave it away.

Mack was at the park early this morning. "The sun was then shining strong on the diamond."

"This would have been our day," remarked Mr. Mack, as he watched the groundkeepers getting the field into condition. "I wish we were going to start the world series this afternoon."

waterway transportation is concerned, has been asleep for the last 25 years. "There have been liberal appropriations," he said, "but we have allowed the south and the west to run away with everything."

Mr. Sutherland made a European trip this summer and gave some very interesting data gathered in different countries on the question of waterway development. "Over there," he said, "they don't wait for the government to move but they go right in and do things themselves. It is time that we would go to work and develop our waterways thoroughly and keep pace with foreign countries.

Lewis R. Hovey

Lewis R. Hovey, of Haverhill, spoke in favor of the development of the Merrimack river. All of the speakers were limited to 15 minutes. Mr. Hovey said:

"Until the year 1912 the improvement of the Merrimack river had been almost entirely a national project. The Massachusetts legislature of that year passed a bill introduced by Senator Nason of Haverhill, calling for the appointment of a special commission of three men and an appropriation of $10,000 for a survey of the river and an investigation of the possibilities of its development. Gov. Foss appointed Congressman Butler Ames of Lowell chairman, together with Judge Chas. C. Payne of Hyannis and Andrew H. Sutherland, then president of the Lawrence board of trade. Col. Ames found it impossible to accept, and the governor later in the summer named me in his place, making Judge Payne chairman.

"In August, 1912, the board began its work under the very broad act passed by the legislature in the spring. We held hearings in all the cities of the valley and collected the most complete records of business, freights, etc. which has ever been made. The delays occasioned by matters over which we had no control made it impossible for us to comply with the act, which called for a report by Feb. 1 of this year, and the last legislature voted an extension of one year.

"Insofar as human beings can do we will have carried out the commands of the legislature by Jan. 1, 1914, and our report will contain the results of our investigation, including maps, plans, specifications and estimates of cost of an 18-foot channel 200 feet wide from the head of tide water at Ward Hill in Haverhill to the foot of the rapids at Hunt's falls, before Lowell, as well as plans, etc., for a lock or locks at Lawrence dam.

"The Merrimack valley waterway board has worked in perfect harmony with the United States engineer, Col. Frederick V. Abbott, and largely as a result of our mutual efforts a favorable report was made by that officer March 29 last. This report was in compliance with instructions given to Col. Abbott under the provisions of the river and harbor act approved by the national congress July 25, 1912, which called for a 'preliminary examination of the Merrimack river, Mass., with a view to securing increased depth from Lowell to the sea in any part of this section of the river.'

"Col. Abbott's report consists of 65 closely typewritten pages and is by far the finest, most complete and most comprehensive document of its kind ever made on a Massachusetts waterway project. It quotes at length from the data secured by the state board, and covers every phrase of the subject in a broad and decidedly friendly spirit.

"Col. Abbott reviews the history of Merrimack river channel development by the national government from 1867 to date. During this time approximately $410,000 has been spent, and today we have a seven-foot channel up to Haverhill, this latter having been completed in June, 1905, under an act of congress of 1902. The work done since has been entirely in the line of keeping this channel clear and removing boulders, etc.

"A 12-foot project in 1905 was turned down by Col. W. S. Stranton on the ground that it would not be of benefit commensurate with the cost. In 1907 provision was made in the river and harbor act for another examination and survey of the Merrimack river 'with a view to providing by locks and dams a channel 14 feet deep from the mouth of the river to the railroad bridge at Haverhill.' The favorable report of Lieut.-Col. Edward Burr is contained in H. R. Doc. 2, 61st congress second session.

"The estimated cost was $500,000, a movable dam at Lion's Mouth, the narrowest part of the river at Amesbury, being included. The war department was unfavorable and it was turned down by congress.

"Col. Abbott's 'preliminary examination,' aided by the state board, caused him to make a favorable report on the worthiness of the project for a complete survey and estimate of cost of providing a consistently deep channel from Lowell to the sea. He closes his report as follows:

"Whether the creation of a channel 18 feet deep and 200 feet wide, suitably widened at the bends, which will safely permit 17-foot draft vessels to navigate the river, is practicable, is largely a matter of cost. If the material can be removed by powerful dredges, without drilling and blastings, the cost may or may not be excessive, depending on the yardage, which can be ascertained only by an accurate hydrographic survey from the bar to the point opposite Ward Hill, where it has been recommended above that the United States turn over the river to the state for improvement.

"If large quantities of rock are found by boring, it may be necessary to combine dredging and slack water navigation below Ward Hill; accurate and numerous borings are therefore unavoidable before any definite project or any approximation to the cost of such a channel is possible. While there are reliable maps of portions of the river, there are long reaches for which no reliable data are available. It is intended to avoid duplicating work by using such known data as are available and supplementing them by new surveys.

"The question of cost must be determined within reasonable limits before it is known to what extent co-operation by the state should be asked; it seems, therefore, that the United States should make an accurate survey of the river up to Ward Hill, provided that the state will undertake a similar survey of a canal from Ward Hill to connect with the pool above the Lawrence dam.

"It is understood that there is a considerable state appropriation now available for such a survey, and there is little doubt that the balance would be provided by the commonwealth of Massachusetts if such provision was made a condition precedent to a survey up to Wards Hill by the United States. By following this course co-operation by the state and the federal government would begin at the very start, and there would be good ground for confidence that the local authorities were thoroughly in earnest, and that the improvement was worthy of being made by the state and the United States jointly.

"It is therefore recommended that an allotment for a United States survey of the Merrimack river from Black Rocks Beacon up to Ward Hill, with a view of the creation of a channel 200 feet wide and 18 feet deep at mean low water, suitably widened at the bends, be made; its expenditure to be conditional upon the provision by the state of sufficient funds for the making by competent state authorities of an accurate survey for a canal to afford 18 feet depth and 200 feet width, suitably widened at the bends connecting the pools, above the Lawrence dam with the channel of the Merrimack river just below Ward Hill.

"Under no conditions should the United States undertake to make a survey above Ward Hill, even if the state offers to defray the cost, for the legal questions as to state and federal relationships to water powers on that part of the river are so involved that the whole matter of the extensions above Ward Hill, survey as well as construction, operation and maintenance of the canal, should be strictly the state's contribution to the improvement of the river.

"As proof of the confidence in the ability of the state officials in charge of the survey above Ward hill to comply with the requirements of their officer here, the war department engineers took favorable action on Col. Abbott's report, made an allotment of $30,000 to do the work recommended by him and today this survey is actually under way. Col. John Willis, the able engineer, who succeeded Col. Abbott in Boston last summer, has charge of the work, and from what he says to our board since he inspected the river a few weeks ago as our guest, we feel sure that he is friendly to our project and will give us every chance to prove to him that it is a worthy one and ought to be carried out by the federal and state governments.

"As our report will be favorable for the making of an 18-foot channel from Haverhill to Lowell, we look also for a favorable report from Col. Millis for a similar channel from Haverhill to the sea.

"As speaking for the Merrimack waterway board, with all due regard for the proprieties, I can safely make the claim that the question of real development of a commercial waterway is nearer a successful conclusion today than at any time in its history, largely because of the creation of this board by the legislature of Massachusetts in 1912.

"We have demonstrated to the authorities at Washington that we, as a state, are willing to do our share. We can make the deepening of our rivers and harbors a certainty by following up the work already done by the Harbor and Land and the various special commissions with a liberal appropriation, to be expended under the direction of the harbor and land board in conjunction with, and in friendly co-operation with the United States engineers. It behooves all of us therefore, whether we are boosting the Connecticut or the Taunton or the Mystic or the Merrimack river, or any one of our many valuable harbors to work together and insist on favorable action by our next legislature on an adequate five-year appropriation bill. If we don't get it, it will be our own fault; and unless we are willing to pay our share, we cannot expect, under present conditions in Washington, any money from the national rivers and harbors appropriation.

"We in the Merrimack valley want and need (and deserve) a deep water channel to Lowell. We are willing to do our part to get, and to take our just share of any state funds which the legislature may vote to put in the hands of the harbor and land commission. Let's pull together, gentlemen, and, in due season, we will get what we want."

The Afternoon Session

The afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock. Charles P. Chase, of Springfield, president of the Connecticut Valley Waterway association, presided. The subject was "Narragansett Bay to Boston Harbor Canal."

The Evening Session

The evening session will be held at Young's hotel and a goodly number of Lowell men will attend. Mayor James E. O'Donnell is down for a speech at the evening session. The principal speakers will be Congressman J. Hampton Moore, president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways association and Congressman John Humphrey Small, member of the national committee on rivers and harbors. John J. Martin, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate exchange, will preside.

LOWELL MAN HAD LUMBAGO 25 YEARS

Gyarcol Gave Prompt Relief Where Many Other Medicines Failed

Mr. E. J. Comerford, who lives at 95 Pawtucket street, Lowell, says:

"For twenty-five years I was troubled with lumbago. I tried a great many medicines but did not get relief. A friend recommended Gyarcol to me and I am pleased to say that it relieved me at once and I continued to take it until I was entirely cured. (Signed)

"E. J. Comerford."

Lumbago is a form of rheumatism and is caused by uric acid poison in the blood. Gyarcol cures lumbago as it does rheumatism by driving out the uric acid poison. It stimulates the kidneys the better to perform their work. Gyarcol is sold by all druggists either in liquid or tablet form, 50 cents and $1.00. The chocolate coated tablets are easy to take and quickly effective.

SULZER TRIAL

Opening for the Defense—Sen. Hinman Makes an Adress

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 6.—This was the opening day for the defense in the impeachment trial of Gov. Sulzer and it was expected that before court adjourned Senator Harvey Hinman would have delivered his opening address and two witnesses, Louis A. Sarecky and Lieutenant Commander L. J. Josephthal, would have been heard. Only an afternoon session of the court was to be held, from 2.15 to 6 o'clock and Hinman planned to occupy half this time with his address. As campaign secretary to the governor, Sarecky handled much of the money contributed to the campaign fund and many checks intended for Sulzer were made out to Sarecky. He said on his arrival here last night that he could prove that at least $21,000 which the governor is charged with not having reported as a contribution really was not such, but came to Sulzer from an entirely different source. Counsel for the impeachment managers asserted they searched for 21 days for Sarecky before he finally turned up here and was subpoenaed. He was never called to the witness stand.

Josephthal is the man who paid off the governor's Wall street account of $26,552. He always has maintained that his testimony would be valuable for Sulzer.

The executive committee appointed last Friday night for the fair to be held under the auspices of the members of the North Billerica Baptist church will hold a meeting in the church vestry next Tuesday evening.

REV. HERMON S. PINKHAM

WASHINGTON CLERGYMAN TO BECOME PASTOR OF FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Hermon Spencer Pinkham, of Washington, D. C., has formally accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Baptist church of this city in a letter which was read to the church yesterday. He announced that he will take up his duties here the first Sunday in November.

Rev. Mr. Pinkham was born at Arlington Heights in 1875. He graduated from Harvard university in 1900 and completed a course at the Theological Seminary of Newton. His first work in the capacity of a clergyman was as the pastor of the First Baptist church of South Paris, Maine, whence he went to Somerville to remain for seven years. He is at present pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church of Washington, D. C.

Rev. Dr. F. A. Alger preached two sermons at the First Baptist church yesterday. He will address the Lowell Baptist Union at this church on Tuesday evening.

TO ABOLISH THE GRADE CROSSINGS

Court Grants Petition for Appointment of Commission to Deal With Ones to be Abolished

City Solicitor J. Joseph Henressy this morning received a notification from the superior court to the effect that the petition recently presented to the court asking that a commission be appointed to look into the advisability of doing away with the railroad grade crossings at Middlesex and Fletcher streets and Western avenue, had been granted, and that such a commission will be appointed.

It will be remembered that when the petition was presented attorneys for the Boston & Maine and Lowell & Nashua railroads objected to the appointment of the said commission and gave for reasons that there was no demand in Lowell for the abolition of the crossings.

In order to ascertain if there was really a demand for the abolition of the said crossings, the court ordered a hearing and the same was held last week with the result that several prominent citizens of Lowell were heard in reference to the crossings. It was brought out at the hearing that there has been a movement on foot in Lowell for many years past to have these railroad crossings abolished, and also that the said crossings are a nuisance and a menace to public safety. The court took the matter under advisement and this morning the city solicitor was notified that the commission will be appointed.

The parties interested are the Boston & Maine railroad, the Lowell & Nashua railroad, the city of Lowell and the commonwealth of Massachusetts. Under the law these parties may agree that the state railroad commission be appointed to look into the matter, but in the event that the parties interested do not agree, they may submit a stipulation requesting the court to appoint men whose names will be furnished by them, and again if the parties interested cannot come to some agreement, they may ask the court to appoint the said commission.

The city solicitor stated this morning he will take up the matter at once and will endeavor to have the four parties interested meet as soon as convenient and come to some understanding, as to the appointment of the said commission.

HE GAVE $10,000 TO GOV. SULZER

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 6.—An unreported campaign contribution of $10,000 developed in the impeachment trial of governor Sulzer this afternoon. I. V. McGlone testified that he handed the governor ten one thousand bills for his employer, Allan A. Ryan, a son of Thomas F. Ryan.

DEVELOPMENT OF OUR WATERWAYS

Interestingly Discussed at State House Today---Mass. Has Muffed Golden Opportunity

The Massachusetts Waterway convention held under the auspices of the harbor and land commission and the Massachusetts real estate exchange at room 431, State House, today, was attended by delegations from various towns and cities, and no city interested sent as small a delegation as did Lowell.

The morning session was scheduled to open at 10 o'clock but it was 10.30 o'clock when the presiding officer Hon. W. S. McNary, chairman of the harbor and land commission, called to order and before proceeding with the opening address Mr. McNary requested that each of the associations present appoint a secretary, and John H. Murphy, secretary of the Lowell board of trade, who was on the list of speakers for the forenoon session, was nominated and elected secretary of the Merrimack River and Valley association.

Some of the delegates had left their dress suit cases and grips in the corridor outside the hearing room and Mr. McNary said that the sergeant-at-arms was a bit anxious as to the safety of them.

"The fact that the dress suit cases were left there is a splendid tribute to Boston's honesty, but in order to

SUPERIOR COURT SESSION OPENED

In This City Today—Long List of Cases—Judge Chase Presides—The Jurors

The October sitting of the superior court opened at the court house on Gorham street at 10 o'clock this morning with Judge Chase presiding. At the opening, prayer was offered by the Rev. N. W. Matthews, pastor of the Gorham Street Methodist church.

A large number of lawyers gathered in the court room prior to the calling of the list and many requested that the cases in which they are interested be continued for a space of time. Judging from the trial calendar the Lowell sitting will last about twelve weeks.

As there was no case ready for trial court was adjourned at 11 o'clock until tomorrow morning at 10.

List of Jurors

The jurors that will hear the trials are: Fred A. Barber, North Reading; Edson J. Blaisdell, Westford; Warren M. Blood, Pepperell; Fred A. Child, North Reading; Alfred W. LURED BY PHONE CALL AND KILLED

Mystery Still Shrouds Murder of Miss Ida Leegson at Chicago

Called to a Fake Address —Body Found in Clump of Bushes

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Mystery shrouds the murder of Miss Ida Leegson, an art student, who was lured by a telephone call to the prairie southwest of the city Saturday and strangled with a silken cord. Little has been found to indicate a motive for the crime.

Miss Leegson is said to have led an exemplary life, had no men callers at any of the places where she is known to have resided and is not thought to have possessed any large amount of money.

Only a few hours before she was lured to her death she answered an advertisement for a domestic, saying she had to have funds to enable her to continue her studies and was not too proud to do kitchen work.

Late Saturday afternoon, a man who gave the name of Wilson telephoned the residence where Miss Leegson lived and asked her to take a position as nurse in a maternity case. She was directed to go to Seventy-First street and Western avenue and walk to an address four miles west. The body was found three miles west in a clump of bushes. The address to which she had been directed does not exist.

There also were fresh tracks made by an automobile.

LAYING OF 24 INCH MAIN

River Rises 3 Inches and the High Water Holds Up Work

Attendance Officers are Still Busy—Other City Hall News

On account of the rising of the water in the Merrimack river, work on the laying of the 24-inch water main in the bed of the river, was this morning suspended for the day. However, the men are not idle, for the gang which worked in the bed of the river was transferred to Aiken street, where the work is being hurried along.

During yesterday the water in the river rose about three inches, and this morning when the men gathered on the job, it was found that it would be impossible to continue the work until the water recedes. However, Commissioner Barrett believes the river will take its normal condition before tomorrow morning.

That portion from the pumping station in West Sixth street to the river bed by way of Ferry lane, is nearly finished, and the bulk of the work is now on Aiken street from the bridge to Hall street. About 600 feet of pipe have been laid in Aiken street, and next week work will be started in Hall street. The main will be extended as far as the corner of Cabot street, where it will connect with the 20-inch main

Henry Spencer Confesses to Murder of Mrs. Rexroat and so Many More That He Cannot Remember All

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The police today began their investigation of the confession last night of Henry Spencer that he is the murderer of 16 persons. Possessing evidence that he killed Mrs. Rexroat, the dancing teacher, on Sept. 25, the authorities are convinced that they will in a short time establish Spencer's guilt of many, if not all, the crimes of his career.

Following his arrest last night for the Rexroat murder, which was made at the home of a woman who had notified the police of his coming, detectives went to Spencer's room, where they found the rattan suitcase that Mrs. Rexroat had taken with her on her faint trip to Wayne.

En route to the detective bureau, Spencer admitted to Chief of Police Halpin, "that you've got the goods on me; I know I'll hang for this."

Then began his extraordinary recital of the murders he has committed, the list of victims growing longer as the questioning continued on through the night. By morning Spencer had asserted that he had murdered 16 persons, of whom six were men and ten women, including two to whom he had been married.

Spencer says he does not know his real name and that the first he remembers he was in the Home for the Friendless, located within a block of the scene of his arrest last night. He has spent half of his 32 years in the state penitentiary at Joliet. He was sentenced twice for wholesale robberies and was returned twice following violation of paroles.

He is short, weighs about 145 pounds, wears glasses and has the appearance of a clerk. He has been a regular attendant at the prayer meetings of the Immanuel Baptist church and was at the wedding of its pastor's daughter three nights before he murdered Mrs. Rexroat.

"Beat 'em and Shot 'em"

Details as to names and dates of his many murders, Spencer could not always supply, but as to whether he "beat 'em in the head with a hammer" or "shot 'em to death," his memory was better. He also remembered approximately how much money or jewelry he got from the victims. His

FIND $16,000 LOOT IN WALL

Searchers Picked Up Money in Stone Wall, Short Distance Away

STONINGTON, Conn., Oct. 6.—Carl A. Koelb, cashier of the American Velvet Co., was held up at the point of a gun and robbed of $16,000 this forenoon by two masked men as he was driving with the money from the First National bank to the mill. After securing the money the robbers disappeared in a northerly direction. Searching parties have started in pursuit.

The money was found in a stone wall, a short distance from where the holdup occurred.

The highwaymen are thought to be in a cemetery and men armed with guns are attempting to surround that place in hope of capturing them.

Robber Fired

The holdup occurred on Bay View avenue and was particularly bold because there are occupied houses along the street. The money was in a large valise which the cashier held on his knees as he was being driven to the mill in an express wagon, the robbers hid around a bend in the road until the wagon was almost upon them. Then they jumped out and covering the cashier and the driver, Charles Ryan, with revolvers, commanded them to stop.

As the wagon halted one of the men covered the driver while the other, revolver in hand, attempted to snatch the valise from Koelb. The latter held on and he was dragged from his seat off the wagon and across the roadway before he was finally compelled to give up his hold by a shot from the robber's revolver which glanced over the back of his hand. With the valise in their possession, the highwaymen jumped over the fence at the side of the road and started north through vacant lots with Koelb running after them. The robbers fired two shots but whether to give the alarm to confederates who might be in waiting with an auto or team, or to scare back pursuers is not known. A trolley car came by before the men disappeared and crew and passengers gave chase.

A little later the valise with the money intact was found in a stone wall near the scene of the holdup where it had been hidden by the highwaymen when the pursuit became too hot. About noon a report was received that the men were believed to be in hiding in a cemetery to the north of the town and posses were hurried there to surround it.

Solicitor Folk Rules that None of Prisoner's Rights Was Violated

Finds No Infringement on Part of Canadian Immigration Officials

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—None of Harry K. Thaw's treaty rights as an American citizen was violated when Canadian immigration authorities forcibly deported him a few weeks ago. That was the ruling today by Solicitor Joseph Folk of the state department.

Thaw asked the state department to make representations to the British embassy in protest against his deportation on Sept. 10. In holding that none of his right had been violated, the department declined to do so.

Solicitor Folk issued this statement: "After careful examination of the treaties between this government and

GREEKS AWAIT THE CALL

They are All Ready to Start for Fatherland if Required to Fight Their Ancient Enemy

The local Greek colony is much disturbed over the present situation between Greece and Turkey, and it is very probable if war is declared between these two countries, Lowell will lose what remains here of the Sons of Athens. The coffee houses in the district are the scenes of large gatherings and the main topic of discussion is the trouble between their motherland and her bitter enemy. Every line of The Sun is scrutinized daily for news from abroad and in this manner the Greeks are keeping constantly in touch with the doings of both countries.

It was stated this morning in the district that in the event of the declaration of war between the two countries, all the Lowell Greeks who are still able to handle a gun will go to the front, and the enthusiasm has reached such a degree that it is believed the men will leave the Spindle City before an order for their return is issued.

Some of the Lowell boys who fought in the Balkan conflict were expected to return to this city within a couple of weeks, but this new trouble has caused their friends and relatives in Lowell to believe they will not return for some time unless a sudden change in the situation takes place. It is feared war will be declared soon and this will eventually cause many Greeks to return to the fatherland.

There are about 2500 Greeks in Lowell who are preparing to return to Greece in the event of a new war, and already arrangements are being made for the care of women and children during the absence of the soldiers. Those who are in business, so stated a prominent member of the colony, are arranging matters so that their establishment will be conducted in the same way during their absence.

In the colony is a regiment of young soldiers which was organized shortly after the Holy Regiment left for the battlefield, and these young men, who number nearly 100 are well trained for war maneuvers, and they are anxiously awaiting the call to depart for Greece.

RT. REV. DR. LAWRENCE

His 20th Anniversary Subject of Sermon by Rev. Appleton Grannis at St. Anne's

Yesterday marked the 20th anniversary of the consecration of Right Rev. William Lawrence, D. D. as bishop of Massachusetts and at St. Anne's church much interest was manifested in the morning service. The rector, Rev. Appleton Grannis, preached an appropriate sermon and the choir sang the same hymns that were sung at the service twenty years ago. Mr. Grannis said in part:

"Twenty years ago today, in Trinity church, Boston, Bishop Lawrence was consecrated bishop of the diocese of Massachusetts. It is fitting and proper that the event should receive special commemoration, for it marks the beginning of a period of conspicuous growth in the life of the Episcopal church in this state. I shall, therefore, speak to you this morning of Bishop Lawrence and of the development that has taken place in the diocese of which he is head.

"The leader in any movement is the embodiment in the popular mind of the cause which he represents. He is closely observed, his words are carefully weighed and his mistakes and failures are noted. Given the right kind of leadership and many an undertaking can be carried through to a successful issue which otherwise would be barren of any results. There are scores of problems today as yet unsolved, not because they are unrecognized, but because the right kind of men, with insight and masterful purpose, have not come forward to grapple with them. When some one appears who will take the lead, others follow.

"But the born leader is rare in any profession or calling. Certain qualities are necessary which are seldom found combined in any single individual—faith and knowledge, tact and courtesy, confidence, courage, the ability to inspire men with enthusiasm and to compel them to act, that indefinable something which for want of a better term we call personal magnetism. All these are essential. And when to these are added sameness of judgment, sincerity and high moral purpose, the individual possessing them becomes a great power for good.

"Bishop Lawrence is, without question, a leader of men, and his personality has played no small part in the achievements that the diocese of Massachusetts has witnessed under his ministrations.

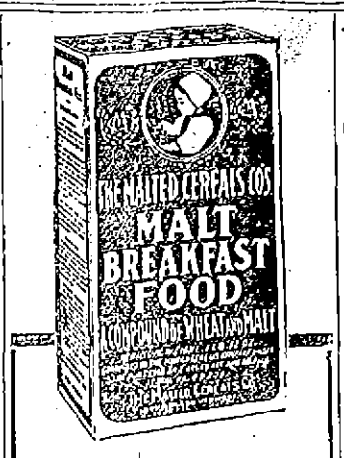

"In 1871 Bishop Lawrence graduated from Harvard university. Four years later he graduated from the Episcopal Theological school in Cambridge and that same year was ordained to the deaconate, and the next year to the priesthood. He served the first two years of his ministry as assistant in Grace church, Lawrence, and was rector of that parish from 1877 to 1883, when he was called to a professorship in the Episcopal Theological school at Cambridge. Three years later he was made dean of that institution, a position which he held until he was elected bishop of Massachusetts to succeed Bishop Brooks, in 1893.

"To the arduous demands of the episcopate, Bishop Lawrence has brought not only habits of industry and the trained and disciplined mind of the student, but a rare insight into men and a vigorous grasp of the vital problems of the day. He has been able to lead men because he knows their needs. And men have trusted his leadership because they have had confidence in his sincerity and common sense. He has been a man of faith and courage; he has had his visions, but they have been translated into realities.

"Let us see some of the things that have been accomplished. In 1893 the diocese of Massachusetts embraced the entire state. There were then 225 clergymen, 169 church edifices, 262 chapels and missions and 52 rectories. The baptisms in that year numbered 2961, the confirmations 1535 and the communicants 31,036. There were 20,653 children in the Sunday schools and the offerings for all purposes totalled $868,668. The value of all parish property amounted to $5,225,614.

"In 1902, 11 years ago, a new diocese was created—the diocese of western Massachusetts—this embraced the western portion of the state, including the cities of Worcester and Springefild. It was set apart by itself under Bishop Vinton. The work of the church in Massachusetts had grown too large to be administered by one man. But what do we find today? In spite of the loss of this large amount of territory, for the diocese covers now but three-fifths of the state, there are 240 clergymen, 150 church buildings, 93 rectories and 192 chapels and missions. The baptisms for the year ending May 1,1913 were 5400, the confirmations 2678 and the communicants had increased from 31,000 to 49,301. The church property had increased in value from $5,225,614. to over $11,000,000 and the contributions from $868,668. to $1,033,373.

"This growth of the diocese necessitated the appointment of an assistant to Bishop Lawrence and in June last Bishop Babcock was consecrated suffragan bishop.

AT NORTH BILLERICA

Rev. E. J. Cornell Preached Last Sermon at St. Andrew's Church—Other Churches

Rev. E. J. Cornell, O. M. I. officiated at both masses at St. Andrew's church yesterday and during the 8 o'clock service a large number of people received holy communion. Rev. David J. Murphy, the newly appointed pastor of the church, was present and delivered a short address to his future parishioners.

"How to Be Happy" was the subject of the Rev. C. H. Williams at the No. Billerica Baptist church yesterday morning. During the course of his sermon Mr. Williams said "Bearing the world's sorrows and striving for achievements and helping those with whom you come in contact is following in the footsteps of Jesus." At the evening service music was furnished by the chorus choir with J. C. Richardson as soloist.

SEC. M'ADOO TO STAY

REPORT THAT HE WILL RESIGN FROM PRES. WILSON'S CABINET IS DENIED AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—From Boston has come a revival of the rumor started in Washington some weeks ago that Sec. of the Treas. McAdoo would soon resign from the cabinet. Coupled with this, according to a story apparently current in Boston, is the report that Charles S. Hamlin of Boston, who for the second time in his career is serving as assistant secretary in charge of customs, will succeed Mr. McAdoo upon the latter's retirement.

It is impossible to obtain in Washington the slightest confirmation of this report. On the contrary it is denied right and left by public officials who ought to know what they are talking about. Furthermore every scrap of evidence worth considering supports these denials.

As a matter of fact there is nothing to indicate that Mr. McAdoo has any desire to quit the cabinet or that the president wants him to leave or would even willingly let him go if the initiative came from Mr. McAdoo. Up to date Mr. McAdoo has shown himself the strongest man in the Wilson cabinet so far as influence at the White House and among his fellow members of the cabinet is concerned.

WANTS TO RETURN TO JOB

Toshesky, Miner, Rescued After Eight Days' Entombment, Receives Congratulations

CENTRALIA, Pa., Oct. 6.—Thomas Toshesky, who was entombed in the Continental mine eight days, his release being effected Saturday morning by a rescuing party headed by Supt. J. H. Heffner, after a long night's sleep, ate a hearty breakfast yesterday morning, later accompanying his wife to Mt. Carmel, where they attended services at the Lithuanian Catholic church. The edifice was crowded, the miner being the center of interest.

He joined in a general prayer of thanksgiving on account of his remarkable rescue, after which he returned here, many people calling at his residence to congratulate and shake hands with him.

He said he was strong enough to start working again at the mines today. Dr. H. G. Fortner, who had charge of the feeding of the Lithuanian while the latter was entombed, said it was dangerous for Tohesky to resume toil so early after the entombment, whereupon the Lehigh officials announced that they would not allow Toshesky to return to work for some time. It is believed thay will pay him well for the time he was entombed and for his enforced vacation.

He has the record of having been entombed and rescued alive longer than any man in the history of the anthracite region.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends and neighbors who lent their assistance during our recent bereavement in the death of F. O. Hadley; also to all who sent floral offerings.
Mrs. Mary E. Munroe and Family,
Billerica, Mass.

Examinations were held Saturday at the high school for the positions of principals and teachers of the evening elementary schools. The examinations were limited to college and normal school graduates and between 15 and 20 men and women took the test.

Rev. F. G. Alger gave an illustrated lecture at the Pawtucket church last night on what the American missionary people are doing in foreign lands. Nearly 90 colored stereopticon slides were thrown on the screen showing the homes of the missionaries and pictures of various educational institutions that are maintained by the evangelists.

Crawford Parlor Stoves

Crawford "Parlor"

"Crawford Parlor." A genuine indirect draft stove with full return flue; the smoke passes down between the firepot and the outside casing of the stove to a flue beneath the ashpan, thence up and out through the back smoke pipe to the chimney, giving more heat and burning less coal. The grate center slides forward for dumping. Large clinker door; wide, deep ashpan; dust damper; nickel rails removable. Four sizes.

"Tropic" Crawford

"Tropic Crawford." With or without down draft back pipe. Draw center grate. Best stove made at the price. Nickel rails removable.

Crawford "Wood Parlor"

Crawford "Wood Parlor." In this new heating stove for wood the front door swings open to give the effect of a fire-place. By moving a slide in this door the fire can be seen without opening the door itself. The slide openings are protected by wire gauze. The main top swings to one side and underneath it is a large plate that lifts to admit large pieces of wood.

This stove is made in both direct and indirect draft styles. It is strongly made and very handsome. Three sizes, to burn 19, 22 or 25 inch lengths.

W. S. HOLT IS PLEASED

His Petition to Stock Forge Pond With White Perch is Granted From Washington

Mr. Willis S. Holt, father of the Lowell Fish and Game association, has just received good news for the fishermen of our vicinity from Washington, D. C. in a letter from United States Fish Commissioner H. M. Smith of the bureau of fisheries.

Mr. Holt filed a petition for white perch fry with Congressman John Jacob Rogers for Forge Pond in the towns of Westford and Littleton.

Mr. Smith has notified Mr. Holt that his petition has been allowed and that a brood stock will be shipped in the spring of 1914 ample to supply the pond in question.

A brood stock of 500,000 white perch was planted by Mr. Holt May 7th, 1912. These fry were from the United States fisheries commission at Washington, D. C. Several small plantings of white perch 4 inches to 10 inches long have been made in the past three years and in a year or two good perch fishing ought to be the rule on this beautiful lake called Mattawanakee lake many years ago, by the Indians of our vicinity. At the meeting of the Lowell Fish and Game Assn. Tuesday evening, Oct. 7th, other petitions for fish and game will be talked up. More fish and more game for our streams and ponds and our woodland covers and protection to our song and insectivorous birds are the worthy objects of this live and busy association.

ORGAN AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Used With Fine Effect—Processions in Several Churches Yesterday

The feast of the Holy Rosary was celebrated throughout the city in the Catholic churches and in several of them, processions were held. The feast day was observed with special services, and sermons dealing with the importance of the devotion of The Rosary.

St. Michael's

The services at St. Michael's church took place with the special distinction which the formal inauguration of the great Cole organ contributed, at the high mass at 10.45. The new organist, Miss Ella M. Reilly, began her duties at the church at the Holy Hour service on last Friday evening and her efforts to bring out the best qualities of the grand instrument yesterday were highly appreciated. Rev. Fr. Mullin was the celebrant of the 10.45 o'clock high mass, and the preacher was Rev. Dennis Murphy. Rev. Fr. Murphy delivered an impressive discourse on the Holy Rosary, the subject being most appropriate to the feast.

The rosary, said the speaker, is a beautiful prayer, and in itself in the various prayers which it embraces, it embodies the main principles of the foundation of the Catholic faith. In its mysteries, joyful, glorious and sorrowful, it portrays and calls to the mind of the faithful Catholic, the various incidents in the life of Christ, His birth, early life, His works, and finally His suffering and death, and also the life of the virgin mother of God, and her final triumphant crowning in heaven. In the opening prayers, it tells of the principles of faith as enumerated in the creed of the apostles, while in each "Hail Mary" are repeated the words of the Angel Gabriel who announced to the Blessed Virgin that she was to be the mother of God.

Such is the rosary, and one can easily realize its value as a means of gaining the intercession of the mother of God in obtaining the various graces needed for happiness in this life and for proper preparation for the life to come.

The choir was under the direction of Mr. James Murphy, and rendered an excellenet program which was as follows:

Asperges ..... Novello
Church Choir.
Processional, "Hail Holy Queen," Waddington
Chancel Choir.
Introit, Gaudeamus omnes, Quartet.
Mass (St. Mary Magdalen) Fr. Turner
Church Choir.
Offertory, "In Me Gratia." Quartet.
Ave Maria ..... Verdi
Mrs. Mabel Ware-Murphy
Communion, "Florete Flores," Quartet.
Chancel Choir.

There was the special afternoon service at 3 o'clock in observance of the feast of the Holy Rosary, and at this hour, the procession of the Holy Rosary was held, being participated in by the children of the parochial school of the parish. The procession was led by the clergy of the parish, and proceeded about the aisles of the church. The officiating priest was Rev. Francis J. Mullin, who led the recitation of the rosary. The ceremony was closed with vesper service and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament at which Rev. Fr. Mullin officiated assisted by Rev. Frs. Shaw and Murphy. There were large congregations at both morning and afternoon services.

Everyone was highly pleased with the grand new organ and members of the parish as well as those from the other parishes were not slow in giving expression to the appreciation of the instrument. The organ was built by James Cole Co. of Boston, one of the most prominent firms of its kind in the country, and was especially constructed for St. Michael's. It is a most modern and up-to-date instrument, the case being of oak, beautifully finished, and the pipes gilded. The action is characterized as pneumatic, the power being provided by an electric motor. Miss Ella M. Reilly gave a brief recital previous to the 10.45 mass. On Sunday evening, October 26, through arrangements which are now being made by Mr. Murphy, the choir director, there will be an organ recital by a prominent Boston organist, and a concert by the choir of the church. Mr. Murphy intends to get the best organ-

At St. Patrick's Church

Yesterday afternoon the procession in observance of the Holy Rosary feast was held at St. Patrick's church and was participated in by members of the various sodalities and other societies of the parish. The procession was headed by Edward O'Neil, who bore the cross and he was followed by the two acolytes. Next came the junior sodalities and Holy Name society, consisting of the pupils of the parochial school. They were followed by the Holy Angels' sodality, Children of Mary and Immaculate Conception sodality and senior Holy Name societies. The clergymen of the church brought up the rear. The procession moved from the church through the side entrance into Fenwick street, thence to Suffolk to the main door, through the beautiful church yard and into the edifice, proceeding along the centre aisle. The rosary was recited as the procession moved about the church and grounds. This was followed by solemn vespers, celebrated by Rev. Timothy V. Callahan, assisted by Rev. Joseph Curtin and Rev. John Kerrigan. Rt. Rev. Mgr. William O'Brien, P. R., was present at the services. The congregations at both morning and afternoon services were extremely large. Special music was rendered by the choir, directed by Mr. Michael J. Johnson, who also presided at the organ. The soloists were Mr. Andrew A. McCarthy and Miss Alice Murphy.

Immaculate Conception Church

The observance of the feast of the Holy Rosary was held in the evening at the church of the Immaculate Conception, a procession about the aisles of the church being held at 6.30 o'clock. There was a large congregation in attendance, and the procession was made up of the children of the parochial schools, the Holy Rosary society and the Immaculate Conception sodality, and the line moved about the aisles of the church. The procession was followed by vespers and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Rev. Fr. Tighe, O. M. I., was the celebrant of the high mass at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and the preacher was Rev. Fr. Fox, O. M. I. of the Tewksbury novitiate. His subject dealt in the main with the importance to every Catholic of the devotion of the Holy Rosary. Rev. Fr. Tighe was also the celebrant of the evening services. At the 11 o'clock mass Rev. Fr. O'Brien, O. M. I., dealt with the history of the Rosary and the three epochs in which the church claims to have secured divine help through the devotion to the rosary.

St. Peter's Parish News

Rev. John F. Burns celebrated the high mass at St. Peter's church yesterday morning and Rev. Dr. Keleher preached an instructive sermon, appropriate to the feast of the Holy Rosary. At the offertory Miss Gertrude E. Keleher rendered a beautiful "Ave Maria," accompanied by Miss Carolyn White at the organ.

Announcement was made of the fact that next Sunday is the regular communion Sunday of the Holy Name society of the parish and the members were urged by the speakers at all of the masses to attend to a man and keep up the record established by the organization in this regard. Rev. Fr. Burns, the director, is working to greatly increase the membership of the already magnificent society, and the results of his endeavors are becoming daily evident. There will be a communion breakfast in Lincoln hall following the service and at this there will be an entertainment.

The committees in charge of the Columbus dancing party of St. Margaret's parish, which is to be held in Lincoln hall on Monday evening next, are forwarding the elaborate preparations for this event, the opening social for the parish.

The opening of the winter series of whist parties under the auspices of the Ladies' sodality of St. Columba's church will be held in the parish house on Thursday evening.

Yesterday the annual collection for the charities of the archdiocese was taken up in all the Catholic churches.

INSPECT BOSTON HARBOR

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—An inspection of Boston harbor was made today by 15 members of the house committee on rivers and harbors. The committee, which left Washington Friday night for a New England tour, was accompanied by a delegation from the Boston chamber of commerce on its trip about the harbor on a government steamer. Among the points visited was the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. at Quincy, where several warships are under construction. On their return to the city the committeemen were entertained at luncheon at the Algonquin club, where they met Governor Foss and Mayor Fitzgerald.

Baby's Terrible Skin Humor Cured

Detroit, June 21, 1913—"About a year ago my two-months old baby was troubled with what they call milk-crusts. The lower part of her body was a mass of sores. It began with small pimples, then they turned to one whole scab. The scab would break open and then it would bleed. She suffered much, as she cried night and day. For one month I tried everything—all kinds of salves, but without relief, until I sent for a sample of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. Upon the first application I noticed a change, and after four days my baby was entirely cured. I cannot praise your remedies too highly, and recommend them to all my friends." (Signed) Mrs. Henry Mosher, 154 Lewerenz Ave.

You need never hesitate to use Resinol. It is a doctor's prescription, that has been used by other physicians for eighteen years in the treatment of eczema, ringworm, pimples and all sorts of skin affections. It contains absolutely nothing that could injure the tenderest skin. Practically every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. For free trial, write to Dept. 12-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

MANUEL ANGRY

Says That False Reports Have Been Circulated About Bride's Illness

MUNICH, Oct. 6.—Ex-King Manuel of Portugal is furious over the insinuations as to the nature of his bride's illness which have been scattered broadcast throughout the world. Prince Wilhelm, the father of the bride, is also extremely angry over the matter. Both attribute the circulation of these rumors to Portuguese republican agents, who are said to be overrunning this place and who never allow the ex-king to get out of their sight if they can possibly help it.

Lieutenant Lavredio, the ex-king's aide-de-camp, Professor von Romberg, who has charge of the case, and the hospital authorities, say that the princess is suffering from influenza of the lower abdominal regions, complicated with intestinal disturbances which caused a high temperature for a few days. She is attended by two ordinary hospital nurses, as her illness is not serious enough to require private nurses.

AERONAUT WAS KILLED

Tried to Reach Hand to Spectator Carried Up By Rope and Fell to the Ground

BARCELONA, Oct. 6—At a balloon ascension here yesterday, a spectator accidentally caught hold of the guide rope and was carried up. The aeronaut in an attempt to assist him fell out of the basket and was killed. The spectator retained his grip on the rope and landed unhurt a few miles from the city.

ANCIENT AND HONORABLES

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—A brief stay in New York today and a visit to West Point this afternoon were planned by the 300 members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company, who, accompanied by a band, started last night for their annual outing, to be held this year at Rochester, New York. The principal exercises will be held at Rochester tomorrow.

MELANCHOLY, DESPONDENT WOMEN

are always afraid "something is going to happen," and will naturally see the dark side of everything when tormented by headaches, backache, dizziness, nervousness, the tortures of a displacement, or an ulcerative, inflammatory condition. Such women should remember that for more than thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the safeguard of woman's health and restored more women to health and happiness than any other remedy and where there is health there is no melancholy.

Pres. Elliott Reports to the New Haven Stockholders

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—President Elliott's first annual report to the stockholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, made public today, shows a deficit for the year ending June 30, 1913, of $4,137,466.07, although dividends were reduced from 8 per cent. to 6 per cent., during the last few months of the fiscal year.

The report covers a period during which the New Haven was under the management of Charles S. Mellen, but is signed by the new president, although he only took charge on September 1.

A significant part of the report is the definite statement by President Elliott that the period in which the road's policy was to buy up adjacent transportation lines and operate them cooperatively with the New Haven is completed. In the opinion of the directors President Elliott declares, the acquisitions were legally made, but the company, he continues, "has no desire to retain these investments except in conformity with law and sound public policy."

Referring to the Westport, the Stamford and the North Haven wrecks, all of which occurred within the period of a year, President Elliott says that "while the human factor was one cause for the deplorable accidents referred to, the management did not attempt to evade its full responsibility." These wrecks and the resulting "demoralization and expenditures" he refers to as being in part responsible for the large deficit for the year, incurred in spite of a large increase in gross earnings.

KILLED BY AUTO

Woman Lost Her Life and Two Men Hurt at Newtown, Conn.

NEWTOWN, Conn., Oct. 6.—One woman was killed instantly and two men were more or less seriously hurt when their automobile, running at high speed over the state highway was wrecked this morning at a turn in the road about a mile south of Stephney village. The dead woman was Miss Elma Best of Bridgeport, 23 years old. The injured are Isaac Hawes of Milford, who is suffering from internal injuries and Charles Merwin of New Britain, who was cut and bruised. A fourth member of the party, Miss May Best, sister of the young woman killed, escaped injury.

Hawes, who was driving, claims the accident was due to a bursting tire. The machine slid from the road, struck and broke a telephone pole and then went over a stone wall.

Hawes has been ordered under arrest pending investigation.

THE POSTOFFICE CLERKS

OF LOWELL AND LAWRENCE HELD JOINT OUTING SATURDAY AT McGLONE'S FARM

The postoffice clerks of this city and Lawrence, about 100 strong, journeyed out to McGlone's farm Saturday, where their annual outing and field day was held. The weather was ideal for the sports and other events on the program and the affair was one of the most successful and enjoyable ever held by the employes at the Federal building.

The party left this city shortly after 1 o'clock and reached the grounds about thirty minutes later. They soon learned that a program full of fun had been arranged and from that hour until nearly 6 o'clock there was plenty of excitement at the grounds.

The features of the day were the ball games between the clerks and carriers of the two postoffices. The Lowell boys were superior to their down-river rivals at all times and when the smoke had cleared away both Lowell teams were on the long end. In the 1st game the carriers of this city defeated the carriers of Lawrence by a score of 11 to 3, and the home clerks won by the score of 9 to 5. The batteries were: Lowell Carriers O'Dea and Dwyer; Lawrence, McKenna and Murray; Lowell clerks, Winston and Dwyer; Lawrence, Murray and Murray. The down river boys were plucky throughout both contests and the side lines were covered with enthusiastic rooters.

The sporting program and results in part are as follows: 100 yard dash, first, O'Dea, Lowell; 2d, Zink, Lawrence; hop, step and jump, first, Dwyer, Lowell; second, Doyle, Lawrence; 100 yards backward run, first, Dwyer, Lowell; second, Smith, Lawrence.

During the afternoon refreshments were served and music was furnished in the pine grove at McGlone's farm.

CONGRESS COM.

Coming to Lowell Wednesday to View the Merrimack River

The congressional rivers and harbors committee will come to Lowell Wednesday and will motor from this city to Newburyport. The committee came to this section of the country ostensibly for the purpose of seeing for itself the need of a 40-foot channel in Boston harbor, so that that port may handle the big express steamships which various lines have promised to put into service, and incidentally in view the Merrimack river and consider the proposition of making the river from this city to the sea.

Congressman John Jacob Rogers is responsible for the committee's plans to visit Lowell and make the trip from this city to Newburyport. Mayor O'Donnell heard that the committee was coming to Boston and he wrote to Congressman Rogers asking him to arrange, if possible, to have the committee come to Lowell and Mr. Rogers succeeded in arranging for the visit.

Twelve of the 21 members of the committee went out in a steamer from Boston today to view the development taking place in Boston harbor. Congressman John Jacob Rogers accompanied them. The party will also make a tour of the Mystic and Fore rivers. Tomorrow the visitors will inspect the Cape Cod canal.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL

PAID VISIT TO REV. FR. O'DOHERTY OF HAVERHILL AND VISITED THE PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell paid a visit to Rev. James O'Doherty, P. R., of St. James' church, Haverhill, this being the first visit of the cardinal to that city since being elevated to his high office in the Catholic church. The cardinal made the journey from Boston by automobile and while in Haverhill visited the parochial schools and the high school making a special study of the curriculum of the latter institution. He congratulated the sisters who are the teachers in the parochial schools. He was given an enthusiastic reception in these schools and in the primary and grammar schools, special programs had been arranged for the occasion. During his stay, he also visited the pastors of the other Catholic churches. The special object of his visit was to see Rev. Fr. O'Doherty, who had just returned after an operation at the Carney hospital in Boston.

If you are a doctor, doesn't it pain you to see your patients, after walking up two or three flights, come into your office completely exhausted? Wouldn't it be better to provide an office in a building where your patients would be carried right up to your office door in an easy running and absolutely safe elevator? The new Sun building provides such a service. Think it over, doctor.

STEEL AND IRON SHOW REDUCTION—U. S. STEEL WEAK AT MARKET OPENING

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—According to reports current in the financial district today independent steel and iron manufacturers are quoting further reduction in prices of manufactured products to consumers in this market and New England. A cut of $2 a ton in steel plates and sheet steel was reported today and other reductions are said to be in contemplation. So far as is known the United States Steel corporation has not deviated from its recent schedule, nor has it in any way intimated any change of policy in this respect. Price reductions have been more or less general for several weeks, but the enactment of the new tariff is believed to be directly responsible for the lower prices of the last few days. United States Steel common and similar issues were weak at the opening of today's stock market, Steel declining to 56¾ in the first hour, its lowest price in months. Some of the selling was attributed to out-of-town sources, particularly Pittsburgh.

Heavy plunging in the short side uncovered a number of soft stocks in today's market. Closing out of margin accounts was a considerable factor in the widespread break in prices. Bear traders operated with boldness, owing to the absence of scale buying and the recent declines. Stocks came out in abundance from all quarters and there was much liquidation, although it was conceded that short selling made up the bulk of the offerings. Tariff uncertainties, the unexpectedly poor bank statement, trade unsettlement and decreasing railroad earnings played a part in fostering bearish sentiment. While steel was subjected to the most conspicuous pressure, weakness was shown in Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, St. Paul and the copper and coal groups. Steel was especially affected by reduction in prices of steel products and talk of foreign competition.

Speculation in the early afternoon was quieter, there being a lessening of the aggressive selling pressure. Occasional rallies produced little result, as offerings were more liberal with prices on the mend. Continued liquidation of Steel, which went down to 56, offset the influence of a rally in Union Pacific. London was an active seller of Steel and certain railroad issues. The banks began the week with a loss of $2,000,000 to the subtreasury.

The market closed heavy. A rise in call money to five per cent. furnished a pretext for further selling. Prices receded little as it was recognized that the flurry was due entirely to the necessities of borrowers who had failed to make arrangements earlier in the day.

DISCUSS CURRENCY BILL

BOSTON, Oct. 6—A meeting of country bankers late this afternoon stands out as the first important event of the annual convention of the American Bankers' association which has brought nearly 5000 bankers from all parts of the country to Boston. This meeting was called by a number of country bankers for the purpose of discussing the currency bill now before congress.

Thus far, said Gordon Jones, president of the First National bank of Littleton, Col., and one of the signers of the call, the bill has been considered mainly from the viewpoint of the large banks in the reserve cities. It is desired to give the country bankers an opportunity to consider certain features which apply peculiarly to their own business. By country banks is meant the small banks, those of $250,000 capital and less, the little fellows in the one and two and three banks, towns out on the agricultural and industrial firing line. Such banks compose at least 75 per cent. of all the banks of the United States.

Consideration of the currency bill is expected to be the dominant feature of the regular sessions of the association, which open Monday.

Meetings of important committees of the association occupied the attention of many of the delegates during the day. In addition the visitors were entertained with automobile rides. This evening there will be a water carnival and fireworks display on the Charles river basin.

LAYING MAIN

which was installed some time ago as far as the corner of Cross and Adams streets. In a couple of weeks, it is believed, work will be started at the corner of Cross and Adams streets on the laying of a continuance of the 20-inch main as far as Liberty square by way of Adams street.

Mayor Busy

Mayor James E. O'Donnell has accepted an invitation to be the guest of the International union of Steam and Operating Engineers at the celebration of the seventh anniversary of the founding of this organization, which will be held at the union's quarters, 35 Central street, Wednesday evening Oct. 8.

His Honor left this noon for Boston, where he is to attend the waterways convention, which is being held at the state house. This evening the mayor will serve on the reception committee at the dinner which will be tendered the delegates at Young's hotel.

Still At It

The attendance officers are still busy distributing age and school certificates to minors, and Mr. Thompson stated this morning over 1000 certificates have thus far been exchanged for old ones, and before the task is completed several hundred more papers will be given away. Young men and women keep flocking into the office of the attendance officers, which is situated on the third floor of city hall, next to the school department's office, and the officers have a hard time to get away even for luncheon.

SHOULD EAT POPCORN

Uncle Sam's Latest Advice to Assist Those Who Seek Relief From High Cost of Living

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Popcorn for breakfast is Uncle Sam's latest advice to assist those who desire some relief from the high cost of living.

Department of agriculture corn investigation specialists declare popcorn is superior, when properly prepared for the table, to many of the breakfast foods now on the market. And $30 worth of popped corn in the form of five-cent packages for the market represents an outlay of only about $1 or $1.50 for raw material, these experts say.

This amount of corn can be grown in a garden 20 feet by 40 feet.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. George Pedneault of West Centralville.

Everything is announced to be in readiness for the grand anniversary banquet of the Mathew Temperance Institute on Thursday evening at their hall in Central street. It is the formal observance of the 123d anniversary of the birth of Rev. Theobold Matthew, known as the Apostle of Temperance.

A most enjoyable municipal concert was given by the Spindle City band, John T. Fairbrother, conductor, on the North common yesterday afternoon, and the musical event was attended by several hundred people who showed their appreciation by their great applause. A feature of the concert was the cornet solo, "Columbia," artistically rendered by John S. Carlson.

BULL MOOSE CONVENTION

In Boston Today—100 Women Delegates — Public Invited to Take Hand in Shaping Platform

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—A method of procedure new to Massachusetts political conventions was introduced when the party managers extended an invitation to the public to take a hand in shaping the platform to be adopted at the progressive party state convention in Tremont temple today. The committee on resolutions had drawn up a tentative draft as a basis for discussion and it was announced that in addition to suggestions from accredited delegates any legitimate proposition advanced by a visitor would be considered.

Of the 2260 delegates given credentials, more than 100 were women. Chairman Matthew Hale of the state committee called the convention to order. Charles S. Bird, the party candidate for governor, was not present, as he is engaged in a campaign trip in the western part of the state.

When the meeting opened Chairman Murphy's reference to Theodore Roosevelt was followed by a full minute of cheering.

Former Speaker Walker

The convention spent several minutes in selecting a committee on credentials and more time was occupied in listening to the report so that it was nearly one o'clock before Joseph Walker, former speaker of the house and the republican candidate for governor in 1912 took the platform as permanent chairman. In his address he said:

"The recent amendment to the constitution of the United States abolishing the election of United States senators by legislatures has wiped out the last vestige of indirect elections. Now every elective office in the United States is filled by the direct vote of the people. This has all been brought about in the face of bitter opposition from the republican machine in Massachusetts, which is now vainly seeking a new lease of life under that seductive slogan, 'The new republicanism.'

Scores "New Republicanism"

"There remains one more great reform to be accomplished before the rule of the people is finally established, namely, direct legislation, or the initiative and referendum, as it is clumsily called. The champion of 'the new republicanism' now gallantly asserts that he is in favor of direct nominations and direct elections and of these measures looking to the establishment of the rule of the people which are already accomplished facts in Massachusetts but at the same time he announces that he is unalterably opposed to direct legislation—that final step which would indeed establish the rule of the people. The issue is clear. Progressivism stands for the control of legislation by the voters. New republicanism is opposed to such control. In this 'advanced' position the champion of the 'new republicanism' is backed by every standpatter in the commonwealth.

"The representative legislature is with us to stay. We do not abolish it if we would but we can and will provide for an appeal from the action or non-action of the legislature directly to the voters. In no other way can the rule of the people be effectively established.

"The Crux of the whole matter is direct legislation. Let us, therefore gird up our loins for the fight which is before us. If the rule of the people is firmly established all other questions must wait."

FEDERAL VICTORY

Additional Details of the Battle at Santa Rosalia

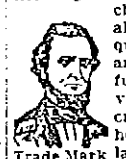

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 6.—Additional details of the federal victory at Santa Rosalia have been received by Guellimo Poras, personal representative of President Huerta in this city, in a despatch from General Mercado, military governor of Chihuahua. What remained to Villa's army of 4000 men broke and fled before the final assault of General Castro's 4700 troops Friday afternoon and split into parts, one going southward and the other retreating to the east. General Marcelo Caravec, with his command, pursued those who fled southward, overlook them and forced an engagement. The harrassed rebels were again defeated with great loss.

The fate of the revolutionists who fled eastward was even more disheartening. General Jose Ynez Salazar had been sent to Conchos by Castro before Friday's assault and the fleeing rebels ran into a surprise. They suffered severely. At last reports they had swung and joined their comrades in flight southward.

General Mercados despatch reports the capture of many horses, guns and ammunition with the taking of Santa Rosalia. In the final assault on the town Castro's army moved forward with General Caravec and General Landa on the left and General Rojas and General Manella and Castro himself on the right. The despatch did not say how much the federals suffered in taking the town.

LAST VIEW OF CULEBRA CUT BEFORE BEING FLOODED; HUGE DREDGES TO CLEAR CANNEL

After the great Culebra cut in the Panama canal has been fully flooded by the destruction of the Gamboa dike on Oct. 10 steam dredges will begin the work of cleaning out the channel of the cut, now filled by the debris from the slides. The bottom picture shows the dredges as they will look at work. The top one is a view of a part of the cut as it looked when the engineers began to let the water in from Gatun lake through pipes under the dike. They planned to let enough water in to act as a cushion for the force of the water from Gatun lake when the dike was blown up. This is the last view of the cut before the bottom of it was covered.

Athletes and Athletics

Jimmy Clabby made a great showing in his battle with Sailor Petroskey and is being hailed by the coast followers of the game as the logical middleweight champion. A match is now trying to be arranged between Clabby and Jack Dillon as the Frisco boxing fans hope to see the middleweight title decided in their city.

Ray Keating could not keep out of trouble even in the "big show." The ex-Lawrence twirler was suspended only a few weeks before the close of the season for not keeping strictly to the training rules of his club.

Connie Mack has bowed to the ruling of the commission in regard to the Athletic players posing as baseball scribes. Baker and Collins have signed agreements to cover the series for several big dailies and it is said that their contracts call for a large sum. Mack has announced that if the commission does not allow his players to keep their agreement that he will play without them and still give them their share of the profits of the series.

Walter Johnson was beaten yesterday at Schenectady when his club of All-Stars failed to do much against a team of negroes. Wickware, the noted colored twirler, shut out the premier pitcher's team by a 1 to 0 score. Two hits were all that Johnson allowed but errors behind him lost the game.

The Giants and the Phillies play an exhibition game today at the Polo grounds in preparation for tomorrow's contest, the first of the world's series. McGraw will use his pitchers very little today, two or three innings being the limit. Both Mathewson and Marquard will doubtless work out.

Tonight will see a line several blocks in length in front of the ticket office waiting until the wicket shall be lifted tomorrow morning. These all night waiters are a regular thing in the world's series and simply go to show how wild the baseball public is to watch the struggle.

Joe Finneran was clubbed pretty hard last Friday when he essayed the rolo of rescuer for the Phillies. Joe may be used today in the exhibition game with the Giants.

Connie Mack and his Athletics engaged in secret practice yesterday afternoon behind closed gates at Shibe park. Every offensive move of the Giants was thoroughly discussed and the manner in which to cut off the various tactics McGraw is expected to use was gone into. All the entrances to the ball park were heavily guarded by special officers during the time that Mack and his club worked out.

The betting on the world's series is very light this year. Even money is the proposition on either team with each club picked to win its first home game. The dopesters are of the opinion that McGraw's team will win tomorrow's contest.

Jack Coombs, once the mainstay of Mack's pitching staff, is in bed in a Philadelphia hospital and will hear the reports of the games by a telephone which his manager has had installed in his room. The surgeons have again diagnosed Coombs' case and assert that he is suffering from a disease of the spine which may yield to treatment although it is doubtful if Coombs ever pitches another game.

Walter Johnson, Washington's great pitcher, and First Baseman Laubert of Brooklyn are the two players who have been chosen by the committee of sporting writers as the men most valuable to their clubs during the 1913 session. Each has been presented with an automobile.

Ty Cobb again stands at the head of the American league batters and his average of .390 stands 20 points ahead of Cleveland's plugger, Jackson. Yingling of Brooklyn is 36 games, batted for .407 while McDonald of the Braves came next to him with .357. Daubert of Brooklyn is the real leader having played in 140 games and hit for .350.

President Gaffney of the Boston Braves is more than satisfied with the showing made by his club. Fifth place for the Boston Nationals is quite a surprise to the Hub fans. Manager Stallings has come in for much praise for his manipulation of the tailenders of last season.

If the team that wins the world's championship is to be the one that has proved most successful in procuring favors from the pitcher this season, then there will be general rejoicing in the Quaker City on or about Oct. 15 and general gloom in Manhattan. For the Athletics have this year proved more adroit in working the hurlers for transportation than have the Giants. The Mackmen have been getting about four bases on balls in each controversy this year, while the McGrawites have been obtaining about three.

To September 1 the American league's pace setters had received 425 walks of the regulation kind while the National league's leaders had been acquiring 349. On neither combination was the lead-off man the individual who had worried the pitcher the most, for the White Elephant who had received the greatest number of passes—Eddie Collins—bats third in the Athletic lineup and the Giant who had been awarded transportation most frequently—Larry Doyle, strikes from fourth place in the McGraw alignment.

Collins has been favored with 76 passes this year, Doyle with 52.

However, both Geo. Burns and Eddie Murphy, the men who lead off for the teams that are to figure in the world's series, have done splendidly this season in getting gratuities, the National leaguer having obtained 59 and the American leaguer 61. Other patient and persevering pitcher workers are Fred Snodgrass, Frank Baker and Tilly Shafer. Snodgrass and Baker each have dawn 46 bases on balls and Shafer has been favored with 43. Many of the passes handed J. Franklin Baker, it is hardly necessary to remark, have been presented to him with malice aforethought.

Selecting the best team of walkers from among the players to play in the world's serious would bring about a combination that would have McInnis at first, Collins at second, Shafer at short, Baker at third, Burns in left, Snodgrass in centre, Eddie Murphy in right, Meyers behind the bat and either Plank or Mathewson on the rubber.

The number of bases on balls received by each New York National and Philadelphia American league player this season will be found below:

Vanguard of Fans Pouring Into New York for Opening Game—Final Arrangements

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—This, the eve of the world series in New York, found the vanguard of fans pouring into the city on every train and with the exception of minor details to be disposed of by the national commission everything is in readiness for the opening contest at the polo grounds tomorrow afternoon. The meeting of the national commission was set for this forenoon shortly after the arrival of President Johnson of the American league. The much discussed question of players writing for the newspapers, it was thought, would not develop the controversy that had been predicted and it was said that whatever action was taken would govern future series rather than the present one.

There was the usual talk this morning that speculators had secured a choice allotment of reserved seats and signs were displayed in a number of ticket agencies announcing this. The casual fan who arrived today found all the 8000 reserved seats disposed of and nothing left for him to do but get in line at the polo grounds early tomorrow morning when the 30,000 unreserved seats are thrown open. It was said again today that it was doubtful whether Snodgrass, the Giants centerfielder, who is suffering with a "charley horse," would be able to take part in the series. Larry Doyle's injured shoulder has completely recovered, however, and it is certain he will be in the opening game. If Snodgrass does not play it is more than probable that Shafer will take his place in the field and Herzog will go to third base.

Even Money Betting

Generally speaking, betting on the series has been light. Some few big bets have been recorded but neither team can be called the favorite. An even-money proposition has been the rule in most bets.

At an exhibition game with the Philadelphia Nationals today, the Giants will have their final workout. Both Mathewson and Marquard will pitch an inning or two, after which McGraw will make his selection of one to open the series.

The Athletics are expected here either late this afternoon or early this evening. Nothing had developed today to indicate that Connie Mack would vary from his regular lineup for the opening game.

How many tickets the speculators have been able to get was a matter of general discussion prior to the national commission meeting. It was said that if it developed they had secured any considerable number of choice seats the commission would institute an investigation at once.

All police arrangements have been completed for handling the vast crowds at the Polo grounds. One hundred and fifty men have been detailed for the work. Thirty men were stationed at the grounds today on the expectation that throngs would besiege the gates, thinking that there was to be a ticket sale as had at first been planned.

The national commission was so busy distributing its allotment of tickets during the early part of the day that it was decided not to call the meeting until the afternoon. Chairman Herrmann said it would be a routine affair, consisting mainly of the instructions to umpires and scorers.

If all Pitchers Were Like Walter Johnson of the Senators

There would be mighty few .300 hitters in the American league if the scouts employed by the clubs of the junior organization could dig up a few more pitchers like Walter Johnson, who stands an excellent chance of winning the auto offered to the American league's most valuable player this season. The Idaho phenom has held his opponents to a collective batting average of .184 in the contests in which he had engaged up to last Monday, no team coming anywhere near acquiring a .300 batting average at his expense. In fact, only one club—Cleveland—had managed to hit better than .200 against Washington's eminent gunner, even the coming champions, the Athletics, who have triumphed over Johnson thrice this season, only having batted at a .185 clip in the games in which they have faced him.

Johnson has twirled 315 and 2-3 innings of ball for the Senators this season, or about 35 nine-inning games. In these contests his opponents have made 295 hits in 1212 times at bat and have scored 49 runs, the average number of safeties and tallies per game being 5.57 and 1.4 respectively. The greatest number of hits made off him in a contest was fifteen, the Red Sox obtaining this total on July 3 in a contest that lasted 15 innings. Cleveland made 13 safeties off Johnson on May 22 in eight rounds and ten on July 13 in nine periods of play. The only team that has knocked Johnson off the rubber is Philadelphia, the Mack-men compelling him to retire on June 26 after he yielded five hits and four runs in three innings. Two days later Sir Walter avenged himself by shutting the coming champions out 2 to 0, and by limiting them to three hits.

The American league pitching averages this year are to show the number of runs earned off the boxmen—information which the National league records revealed last season. Of the 49 runs now charged up against Johnson 36 have been earned, which is just a trifle more than one to the game. Cleveland earned fourteen runs off his delivery, Philadelphia, thirteen, Chicago four, Detroit, three, Boston, one and St. Louis one. The Highlanders have obtained only one run off Washington's great pitcher in 37 innings his year and that run was unearned.

Batsmen have found it hard to make sacrifices, either of the new or old fashioned kind, off Johnson this year. His opponents now are credited with ten sacrifice bunts and three sacrifice flies. Players who have had the honor of making home runs off him this year are Frank Baker, Harry Lord, Ray Schalk, Joe Jackson, Harry Hooper, "Buck" Weaver and D. Johnson. Bakre has made a pair of four-baggers off the man who generally is conceded to be the greatest pitcher in captivity.

RUBBER SERIES

Giants and Athletics Have Twice Before Figured in Big Games

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—When the Philadelphia Athletics and the New York Giants meet in the initial game of the 1913 world's series tomorrow a peculiar combination of baseball complications will be resumed after the lapse of two years. To begin with the coming series will be in the nature of rubber match since these two clubs have twice before figured in world's series and each has a championship to its credit. In 1905, two years after the opening of the existing series between the National and American league pennant winners, the Philadelphia and New York clubs were the contenders. The Giants triumphed in what in many respects was the most sensational world's series ever played. The New York team under McGraw won four out of five games and every game of the series was a shutout.

Joe McGinnity, the Giants' "Iron Man," was at the height of his pitching career while Christy Mathewson was just developing into a master twirler. McGinnity officiated at the polo grounds games while Matty did the pitching for the Giants in Philadelphia. These two famous hoxmen proved effective in every game except the second, when Connie Mack's Indian hurler, Bender, did even better, winning a 3 to 0 victory for his club, the only one gained by the Athletics. The scores in the remarkable series were as follows: New York 3, Philadelphia 0; Philadelphia 3, New York 0; New York 9, Philadelphia 0; New York 1, Philadelphia 0; New York 2, Philadelphia 0.

Connie Mack and his Athletics had to wait six years for revenge but they did not forget and in the autumn of 1911 Philadelphia won the world's championship at the expense of the Giants in such a decisive manner as to leave no question as to which was the better team. In a six game series the Athletics won four. All the games, with one exception, were close, the victor's margin never exceeding two runs and two games went into extra innings. The exception was the final contest played at Philadelphia, when the Athletics broke down the Giants' defense and won by a score of 13 to 2. Of all the players who participated in the 1905 series but five wear the uniforms of the Athletics and Giants today. Danny Murphy, who played second base; Davis of first base fame, and the two pitchers, Bender and Plank, are the Philadelphia veterans, while Mathewson is the sole survivor of the New York team which won the world's highest baseball honors but eight years ago. Of the twenty-nine players who figured in the series of 1911 between these two clubs four are missing from the ranks of eligibles for the present conflict. Lord of the Athletics is no longer under Mack's control and McGraw has released or traded Devore, Becker and Ames.

The batting averages of the players who participated in the series of 1905 and 1911, and who are still eligible for the 1913 games follow:

Large Crowd Gathered at Spaulding Park Saturday

There was a merry crowd at Spaulding park Saturday afternoon and evening, the occasion being the annual field day of the members of the local nest of Owls and their many friends. The affair was attended by several hundred people and despite the threatening weather, a most pleasant afternoon and evening was spent.

The affair was to have been held a couple of weeks ago, but on account of rain the event was postponed, and this gave an opportunity to many more to take part in the event. The committee in charge spared nothing to make the field day a success, and their efforts were well repaid, for the entire program was carried out to the satisfaction of all present, while the receipts were very substantial.

A feature of the afternoon was a baseball game between the C. M. A. C. and the South Ends, the two strongest amateur aggregations of this city, the stake being a $25 purse and the championship of Lowell. The palm went to the South Ends, who won by a score of three to nothing. The game was a good one throughout and was much enjoyed by the large number of rooters, who cheered for their respective favorites.

This game was followed by another, the contestants being the married and unmarried men of the Lowell nest. This part of the program was very amusing and at the close of the contest it was announced that the married men had won by a score of 8 to 3.

A varied list of sports and field events was carried out and the events and winners were as follows:

Two-mile run, first, Joe Christo, $5; second, Goddard, prize $3; third, Lemire, prize $1.

Quoit pitching, 12 two-men teams entered—First, T. Underwood and T. Proctor, prizes, safety razors; second, H. Leavitt and R. Dube; third, J. O'Neill and J. H. O'Hare.

Hop, step and jump—First, Harris, prize, a hat; second, Liberty, prize, a watch.

100-yard dash, open—First, E. Brady, prize, a suit case; second, M. Brady, prize, umbrella.

50-yard dash for ladies—First, Miss Chase prize, gold inkwell; second, Mabel Burns, prize, collar and cuff set; third, Catherine Dempsey, prize, box of candy.

JOHN E. McCALLUM

Maire, prize, gold mantle clock; second, J. Jarett, prize, gold scarf pin.

A midway consisting of booths of all descriptions, where goodies and valuable articles were on sale, had been installed in the rear of the grandstand and an immense business was conducted in that small district.

Refreshments of all kinds were served and in the evening dancing was enjoyed in the open air under the sweet strains of music furnished by the Colonial orchestra. It was late when the crowd left the park and all were unanimous in saying the affair was the best ever.

Those responsible for the success of the event were: John E. McCallum, chairman and secretary; Thomas Burns, Cornelius F. Harrington, William E. Hollingsworth, and James H. Rogers.

SUBURBAN CHAMPIONS

The Chelmsford Cubs by defeating the fast Tyngsboro club last Saturday by the score of 7 to 3 on the North Chelmsford grounds clinched their claim to the title of suburban champions. The batteries for the Cubs was McNulty and Russon, for Tyngsboro Davis and Dolan.

CAPTURE SAN QUENTIN

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 6.—Mexicans from Lower California reported that on Friday 200 constitutionalists under General Ortega captured San Quentin. The port of Felipe on the eastern coast was captured two weeks ago by the constitutionalists, they reported.

MARATHON RUNNER DEAD

WILLIAM J. HACKETT, TWICE WINNER OF BROCKTON RACES, DIED YESTERDAY

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—William J. Hackett, 23, living at 12 Lovell street, North Weymouth, and twice winner of the Brockton marathon, died yesterday.

Ever since 1911, when young Hackett was training for the Olympic games at London, he has been in failing health. The strain of the long distance running is said to be primarily the cause of his illness.

In 1910 Hackett was given a diamond ring by the town of Weymouth in recognition of his victories in athletics. In both 1909 and 1910 Hackett captured the Brockton marathons. He also held several fine records for long distance running.

DELMONT POPULAR

Boston Boxer Has Appeared in Many Battles—Will Meet Phil McGovern, Brother of Terrible Terry

This week's entertainment at the Lowell Athletic club should prove a humdinger. The matchmaker has arranged one of the best cards of the season and without a doubt the members will turn out in large numbers to see what should be one of the best shows ever staged by the club. The principals in this week's bout are well known by boxing fans throughout the country. Al Delmont of Boston will be pitted against Phil McGovern of New York. This bout should be a treat as both boys are past masters of scientific boxing. Delmont is boxing in old time form as he recently demonstrated when he defeated Paddy Callahan at the Atlas club in Boston. McGovern needs no introduction to the members as he appeared here on two occasions last year. He fought Johnny Munloe a draw and knocked out Tommy Flanagan. The semi-final bout should be as good as any main bout staged this year. Joe Morgan of Manchester, one of the cleverest boys in the game will meet Gus Lenny of Boston. Lenny defeated Young Aronson at the club last week and is under the management of Hector McInnis. Morgan is under the management of Mike Gardiner this year. In the first preliminary young Rivet will endeavor to teach young Hamilton a few points. Willie Jones will meet Young Tibetts in the other bout.

ST. COLUMBAS WON

The St. Columbas defeated the Maples Saturday by the score of 7 to 2. The feature of the game was the pitching of McDonald and the fielding of the winners. The St. Columbas claim the championship at 16 years old and would like to play the Glenmores next Saturday.

COBB HOLDS ON

Detroit Slugger Has a Good Lead — Jackson Drops to Third Place

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Joe Jackson dropped to third place among American league batters this week. Cobb still leads but the Cleveland batsman must have found the pace too swift for Olaf Henriksen of Boston, back in the game once more, crowded into second place close on the heels of the Detroit man. The unofficial averages are:

Cobb, .391; Henriksen, .385; Jackson, .367; Speaker, Boston, .361; Collins, Philadelphia, .340; Baker, Philadelphia, .339; Gilhooley, New York, .337; Lajoie, Cleveland, .333; McInnis, Philadelphia, .321; Gandil, Washington, .320; D. Murphy, Philadelphia, 3.15; Leliveit, Cleveland, .314; Crawford, Detroit, .314; Bauman, Detroit, .303; Stoval, St. Louis, .303.

Milan, Washington and Moeller, Washington, are still one two among the base stealers, the former with 60 and the latter with 59.

World's Series Games

That local fans will again have the opportunity of seeing the World's Series games this fall without leaving this city became assured when negotiations were recently completed for the installation at Mathew's hall, Dutton street, of that most ingenious device called the "Perfect Ball Player." This invention was exhibited at the Lowell Opera House during the World's Series last year and proved a tremendous success. It is large enough to fill the entire stage opening and is operated in an upright position.

On the front surface is a complete representation of a baseball field with diamond, bases, pitcher's box, foul lines, etc. By means of a direct telegraph wire from the ball grounds to the stage, every movement of the ball and players is accurately reproduced on this miniature field.

The space below the field is devoted to recording the umpire's decisions, each ball, strike, foul, out, etc., being clearly shown.

The entire operation is so perfect and realistic that the spectator cannot but feel the same enthusiasm as though seated in the grand stand at the game itself. Each contest of the World's Series will be simultaneously reproduced at Mathew's hall on this remarkable device every afternoon that the games are played, beginning at 2 p. m., tomorrow.

Y. M. C. I. NOTES

At a well attended meeting held yesterday, business of importance was transacted. The Columbus night committee reported that everything is progressing for one of the best dancing parties of the season to be held that evening in the Y. M. C. I. rooms. The ladies' night committee for Oct. 7 also made a very encouraging report and all is in readiness for a large attendance on that evening. There were ten new members admitted while twenty-four propositions for membership were turned over to the investigating committee. The committee in charge of the alleys reported that the bowling and pool had started in earnest during the past week and looks forward to a very successful season. Next Sunday morning it is expected a very interesting debate on a question laid over from yesterday's meeting will take place. Brother McGuire is expecting to form an orchestra this winter.

The first of the winter series of ladies' nights is to be observed tomorrow evening next with a delightful and varied program. Members and their lady friends will gather at the club rooms early in the evening when the festivities will begin. The billiard and pool tables, bowling alleys, cards and various other games will be open to the guests, and contests have been arranged for their amusement. There will be a concert by the Manhattan orchestra, and general dancing in the spacious hall of the club-house. Last season, these ladies' nights were held at quite frequent intervals and were in every instance very largely attended, everyone commending the ability of the Y. M. C. I. boys as hosts an entertainers. This year, throughout the winter, the ladies' nights will be held on every Tuesday evening.

The bowling alleys of the institute have been open to the members for about three weeks, but no definite steps toward the forming of the league have been taken as yet. The Y. M. C. I. bowling league has a reputation throughout the city and the ability of the members of the various teams is well known among followers of the game. This is one of the most important and most interesting departments of the society and at the end of the season, the winning team is given a banquet. There will be a meeting of the committee soon to start a movement toward the resumption of activities in the bowling league.

HEARING ON IMMIGRATION

It is becoming recognized more and more yearly that the problems of the immigrant are worthy of the deepest study whether we regard him in his relation to the community in general in which he is to live and whose ideals he will eventually absorb or in relation to the state towards which his ideas are necessarily vague. On coming here from their various countries the minds of immigrants are open and receptive, and on their first impression and the treatment they receive will largely depend whether they are to become a menace to the nation or members of the great army of law-abiding citizens. Fully aware of this fact there are a great many thoughtful people whose interest in the immigrant is manifested in other ways than in the literacy test advocated by Augustus P. Gardner and twice kept off the statute books by presidential veto in recent years.

The last legislature created a commission on immigration for the purpose of making a full investigation of "the way of living, distribution, occupation, educational opportunities and business opportunities and facilities" of our immigrant population and also its "relation to the industrial, social and economic conditions of all the people of the commonwealth." This large program of intended investigation would seem too vague and complex to achieve any real good were it not that the act creating the commission gives as its ultimate object the framing of laws which shall bring "non-English speaking foreigners into sympathetic relations with American institutions and customs."

Naturally this commission will look upon Lowell as the most logical city of the commonwealth in which to make their investigation. This city has been a mecca for the emigrating populations of the earth and the conditions under which they live here are fairly typical of conditions throughout the country, while they are in sufficient numbers to make the study reliable. Consequently all who are human enough and American enough to take an interest in the future of the immigrant will be glad to note that the legislative commission is to hold a hearing in the council chamber of the city hall October 10, at 7 p. m. It is to be hoped that church and fraternal societies, representatives of the various nationalities and any others who have positive views on the various aspects of the immigrant, his troubles, his obligations, his burdens, will be present to help the commission in getting a real insight of conditions as they exist here.

The immigrant problem is far more complex now than formerly owing to the fact that the largest influx of immigrants comes from countries where English is not spoken and consequently are automatically shut out from ready assimilation with other classes here. Their hindrances make them unduly conservative, even suspicious, and make them herd in racial groups, still further preventing them from becoming what we commonly designate as "Americanized." On the other hand the lot of the immigrant now is not nearly so hard as that of the earlier settlers who had to face a far greater degree of dislike and prejudice than that by which the foreigners of today are regarded. Human brotherhood is better developed than it was 50 years ago.

The legislative commission has a great field to cover. It must delve into the housing, working conditions, educational opportunities, social atmosphere, etc., of a great part of our population; it must also go further and make laws that will break down the walls of mutual reserve that keep immigrants outside the community limits proper. Let us hope that the local hearing will help them in their good work.

ONLY HALF WAY

President Wilson had made many more eloquent speeches than that which followed his signing of the tariff bill but he has never made one for which the stage was more appropriately set or which was more significant. One who has followed the slow progress of the bill in its various stages and the firm stand of the chief executive which alone kept some of his followers from wavering, could easily excuse him if he let a note of pardonable personal pride steal into his felicitations, but it is to his credit that he did not indulge in what he called "campaign eloquence" and simply referred to the completed task of such gigantic proportions as a service promised to the people and accomplished as promised. He was greater in his simplicity than he would have been in flights of the loftiest eloquence.

One thing, however, he said that is especially deserving of the closest attention because of its context and the legislative struggle it presages. He followed his expression of satisfaction at the success of the tariff bill by declaring that he and his supporters had arrived at the "accomplishment of only half the journey," and pictured the rest of the way that is to be trod as the arduous way of currency revision. With keen discrimination he argued: "There is no use taking away the conditions of monopoly, if we do not take away also the power to create monopoly." Business and finance is so firmly interlocked that a revision in the one must be followed by a revision in the other if the commercial balance is to be maintained.

If the enormous personal power of the president during the trying tariff discussion may be taken as an index of what is to come in currency revision, we may expect the latter before the next regular session. It is not strictly speaking considered such a peculiarly party measure as was the tariff, but the appeals of the president would result in an almost united party vote, as they have always in the past. It will be well indeed if his followers and supporters are actuated by the fine idealism that prompted him to say:

"I feel tonight like a man who is lodging happily in the inn which lies half way along the journey and that in the morning with a fresh impulse we shall go the rest of the journey and sleep at the journey's end like men with a quiet conscience, knowing that we have served our fellowmen and have thereby tried to serve God."

SHORTER HOURS OF LABOR

On the one hand we are confronted with the growing demand of practically all classes of labor for a uniform eight hour day, and on the other we have the recent protests of mill girls and others against the new law which prevents any one under 18, and all women who work in more than one place, from working more than 54 hours in any one week. Here is a positive contradiction, but in laws of this nature we must expect contradictions. Laws such as the amended one which shortens the hours of women and children and the still more generally unsatisfactory juvenile law will never prove popular with those whose pay envelope is affected by their provision, and unfortunately we still have a great many people to whom the pay envelope is the most important consideration. The poor girl earning $6.00 in the mill, on which a sick mother and younger brothers and sisters are dependent, is not liable to be thrilled with the noble humanitarianism underlying such well meant legislation, if it deprives her of the additional $2.00 made in the store.

If such laws are to be made a benefit instead of the hardship which they have proved themselves in far too many cases, they must be followed by others which will give to the poor the financial relief taken away by the conflicting regulations that are now in vogue. It is preposterous to assume that reform laws are passed for the purpose of throwing women and children on public charity. Before compelling such radical changes in the industrial fabric the state should have arranged to meet the consequences in some adequate manner. No mother of five or six children should be sent to work because the new law takes a boy of 14 out of the mill.

In time, the wisdom of the recent regulations governing labor may be seen but at present their glaring errors are more to the front than their good qualities. When confronted with many examples of their injurious effects it is folly to rave over their paternal idealism.

THE MUTINOUS GARDNER

In refusing to read his prepared speech or to subordinate his personal views to those of the republican convention on Saturday, Congressman Gardner took up an attitude that will undoubtedly mean a lessening of his vote at the coming elections. Even in the present disorganized condition of his party, many of its members will show their mutinous candidate that he is not greater than the political body whose badge he bears. If his grandstand play was meant as an empty manifestation of progressiveness, it missed its mark, for his action is regarded both in his party and outside as an imprudent act of vain presumption. His failure to saddle his hobbies on his party may be taken as a strong indication of his failure to impose on the republican voters of the commonwealth.

It is not surprising, in view of the party's recent past, that Mr. Gardner should try to create the impression of being in the party but not of it. His personal, social and political connections are directly contrary to what popular opinion favors in legislation, and even though his protestations of progressiveness are sincere, he is so hedged with those representing the old order of things that he cannot effect reforms. Mere mouthing will not work wonders, and though we do not know what was in that prepared speech which he refused to deliver, the public was spared the farce of listening to a declaration of the candidate's schemes to catch votes.

Seen and Heard

"Daughter," called the father from his position at the top of the stairs, at the well known hour of 11.15 p. m., "doesn't the young man know how to say good-night?"

"Does he," echoed the young lady in the darkened hall; "well, I should say he does."—Lady's Home Journal.

"Press agents are all very well," said Alfred Noyes, the English poet, at a picnic luncheon at Nahant, "but a press agent won't advance you to success unless you have the real qualities of success within you."

"Before the press agent blows the trumpet of fame for you, you yourself have got to raise the wind."—New York World.

Senator William H. Thompson, the "boy senator" from Kansas, served a long time as judge in his native state before assuming the toga. Kansas is a prohibition state, and there was a great deal of trouble with what is known as the "bootleggers" in that section; that is, men who carry whiskey around for illegal sale in the legs of their boots or otherwise concealed.

A great many of these cases came before Thompson and he frequently paroled the offender. This made for him several enemies, one of whom told on the senator a story which states that one day as Thompson was coming out of the court room he bumped into a big burly colored man standing in a dark part of the hall.

"I begs yer pardin, jedge," exclaimed the son of Ham, bowing profusely.

"I cannot grant you a pardon," Thompson is reported to have replied. "But I will give you a parole."—Washington Star.

Lieut.-Gov. O'Hara said the other day in Chicago, apropos of an employer who paid young women employes $5 a week and less:

"It's all very well for this man to say that starvation wages never lead to vice. He has his viewpoint, his underpaid girls have theirs. And the difference in these viewpoints is startling. It's like the two birds.

"The bird in the hand, tapping the bird in the bush on the shoulder, said seductively:

"'Look here, old chap. It's universally conceded that my job is worth twice as much as yours, but I'll change places with you without asking for a cent of compensation.'

"And the bird in the bush, strange as it may seem, refused this flattering proposal very positively and hastened to fly away."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Toby Hamilton had an experience with an editor of a crossroads weekly up in Michigan when he was general press representative with the Barnum & Bailey show that gave him a new view of finance.

The big show was billed to appear at Owosso, Mich., and the contract agent with No. 1 advertising car had failed to come to terms with the editor of a weekly at a little junction point 20 miles distant. Hamilton went to the little town, sought out the editor and prepared copy for a double column advertisement.

"I'll give you $10 and 20 tickets for two weeks' service in your paper, two columns, mostly cuts," said Hamilton to the editor.

"Oh, no you won't; you'll give me $63 or the advertisement won't go," replied the editor coolly.

"Sixty-three dollars! Great Scott!" roared Hamilton. "That's more than your infernal paper is worth. I never give more than $10 and 20 tickets for our stuff in any country weekly. Man, you're crazy, stark mad!"

All efforts at persuasion failed. The editor remained obdurate. It was $63 or nothing. Finally in despair Hamilton exclaimed:

"Why do you make it $63. You might as well make it $163. It's just as unreasonable."

"I'll tell you, friend," replied the editor calmly. "I have a note coming due shortly for just that amount—and you have got to pay it."

Hamilton did, for he needed the advertising in that particular weekly and the editor knew it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

LOVE SONG

Sweet in her green dell the flower of beauty slumbers,
Lulled by the faint breeze sighing through her hair!
Sleeps she, and hears not the melancholy numbers
Breathed to my sad lute amid the lonely air.
Down from the high cliffs the rivulet is teeming,
To wind round the willow banks that lure him from above;
Oh, that in tears from my rock prison streaming,
I, too, could glide to the bower of my love.
Ah, where the woodbines, with sleepy arms have wound her,
Opens she her eyelids at the dream of my lay,
Listening, like the dove, while the fountains echo round her,
To her lost mate's call in the forest far away.
Come then, my bird, for the pearl thou ever bearest,
Still Heaven's messenger comfort to me—
Come! this fond bosom, my faithfulest, my fairest,
Bleeds with its death wound—but deeper yet for thee.
—George Darley.

Bring Back Its Gloss, Lustre, Charm and Get Rid of Dandruff

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance; freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower; destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

USED COMFORT POWDER FOURTEEN YEARS, FINDS NOTHING BETTER

Mrs. W. G. Conler writes from Asheville, N. C.: "I have used Comfort Powder daily for over 14 years and just cannot do without it. I took six boxes to Panama with me but run out of it on board ship and the minute I struck New York I sent out for two cans. I can't find any other powder that will half way do. To heal and comfort the skin there is nothing like Comfort Powder." Physicians, Trained Nurses and Hospitals everywhere do not hesitate to give Comfort Powder most unqualified endorsement. Be sure you get the genuine with signature of E. S. Sykes on box.

SPLENDID IDEA

Lawrence Sun: An exchange notes that the suggestion is made that the passengers in rear-end railroad smashups would escape injury if the baggage and express cars were hauled at the rear of trains. This change would, perhaps, meet the approval of everybody except the baggagemen and express messengers, but one amateur railroad expert goes even further and suggests a plan to do away with all rear-end collisions by leaving on the last car entirely.

HUMAN INTEREST

Nashua Telegraph: Doubtless there are a great many like the grateful mother in Ohio who has written to Postmaster General Burleson to thank him for the "blessing" of the parcel post which enables her to "send packages from the home garden to the children who have gone to the city to make their living."

TURKEY

Newport News: The phrase "the sick man of the east" was applied to Turkey by a Russian diplomat more than a century ago. Though the sick man has lost a good deal of flesh since then, he is still far from dead. From time to time it has seemed as if the Ottoman empire were on its last legs, but it has kept on them.

GOOD ADVICE

Brockton Times: The new federal regulations for the protection of migratory birds did not go into effect Oct. 1, as planned, because of difficulty in arranging the cooperation with the various states, but let hunters remember the state laws have not been suspended. If in doubt, don't shoot.

QUITE A DIFFERENCE

Philadelphia Public Ledger: The difference between Mr. Bryan and Governor Sulzer seems to be that one worked for his money and the other worked his friends for it.

HEAD TWICE

Manchester Union: "But I decided when I became governor of New York to change my ways. I had always tried to be an honest man." We venture a guess that this part of Governor Sulzer's published statement does not read precisely as the governor would have written it on second thought.

SENATOR LODGE

Springfield Union: Senator Lodge has the sympathy and good wishes of the people of Massachusetts in his present illness and the hope, for his speedy recovery is shared by all regardless of their party affiliations, for however they may differ with him politically they all must concede that he is a man of rare gifts and strong personality whose public service has done much to strengthen the power and prestige of Massachusetts in the affairs of the nation.

THE TARIFF

Providence Tribune: It must be remembered that a considerable measure of protection is still to be given to most of the important industries of the country and the increase in foreign trade and general commercial intercourse with the world at large will help New York and other large seaports very much if the prosperity of the country behind them is not impaired.

MARRIED 25 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Emery F. Gordon Observed Their Silver Wedding—The Affair Was Largely Attended

Mr. and Mrs. Emery F. Gordon, of 9 Wachusett street, observed their silver wedding at their home Saturday. The affair was largely attended by relatives and friends of the happy couple, who showered them with congratulations, best wishes and numerous gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon were married 25 years ago by Rev. G. N. Howard, then pastor of the Paige Street Free Baptist church, and have two children, Harold E. and Marion E. Mr. Gordon is employed by the J. W. Stewart Co. in Bridge street, and is well known in this city. Mrs. Gordon up to a few years ago was very well known as a singer of rare ability and she has held positions in some of the leading choirs of the city.

LOCAL TEACHERS TO MEET

ORGANIZATION WILL RESUME FALL TERM WITH MEETING AT HIGH SCHOOL TOMORROW

Tomorrow, Tuesday afternoon, at 4.15, in High school hall, the Lowell Teachers' organization will hold its first meeting since the opening of the fall term.

A pleasant social hour will follow the brief business session, and the members extend an invitation to every teacher in Lowell and the surrounding towns to be present. Owing to the large size of the teaching force of Lowell it is not often that the teachers have an opportunity to come together for social purposes, and since there are always additions to the teaching staff, each year the officers and members of the organization feel that early in the year is a good time to start a spirit of friendly intercourse.

State Federation to Meet

On Saturday, Oct. 11, the Massachusetts State Federation of Teachers' Clubs will hold its annual meeting at the Riverbank Court hotel, Boston. A social hour at 11 a. m. will be followed by a luncheon at 12, at which delegates from all over the state, members of the state board of education, and invited guests will be present.

The Federation, which has over 8000 members, counts the Lowell Teachers' organization one of its most important affiliations. At the yearly meeting, which comes the second Saturday in October, all important questions are discussed and voted upon by the delegates from affiliated societies. Lowell will number among its representatives Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, president of the Lowell Teachers' organization; Mr. Henry Harris, Miss Agnes Bailey, Miss Ellen Stillings, Miss Mary Tobin, Miss Bessie Huntoon and Miss Marie Sullivan.

The Federation is rapidly gaining in numbers and strength, and through its efficient officers, handles matters of vital importance to public school teachers of the state, such as matters requiring legislation, like the tenure of office bill.

Miss Belle Batchelder, Miss Skillings, Mr. Harris and Miss Sullivan are members of standing committees in the Federation.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Horace Irons of Winnipeg, Man., and Miss Esther Spencer of this city, were married Saturday by Rev. N. W. Matthews at his home, 15 Ellsworth street. The happy couple will make their home in Lowell.

GOODWIN—KERR

George C. Goodwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Goodwin of Danvers and formerly of this city, and Miss Margaret W. Kerr of Peabody, were united in marriage, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride, 65 Washington street, Peabody, the officiating clergyman being Rev. H. W. Winkley. A brief reception was held after which the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip and upon their return after January 1 they will make their home at 8 Putnam street, Danvers.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

All who saw "Her Supreme Sacrifice" at the Opera House last week should not fail to see "Back to Life," the big three-reel feature from the house of Warner which is being shown there today and tomorrow. The story tells of Helen Graydon, a beautiful society bud, who refuses to marry Granville Norton, a wealthy bachelor, and instead gives her heart to Tom Bradley, her brother's chum. Norton's one controlling thought is to dispose of his rival and win Helen. He employs an ex-convict and orders him to kidnap Bradley. The plot is carried out and, on the day set for his wedding, Bradley regains consciousness in an underground prison, to discover that he is chained hand and foot. Norton makes Helen believe that her lover has committed suicide when threatened with a scandal. The lie serves its purpose and Helen agrees to marry Norton. Bradley after a whole lot of difficulty, makes his escape from his underground prison and arrives at the church in time to prevent the wedding of Helen and Norton. The scene closes on the wedding of Bradley and Helen.

KEITH'S THEATRE

"A Bachelor's Dinner," touted as the most legitimate offering on the vaudeville stage today, appears at the B. F. Keith theatre, this week, coming here direct from a week's successful run at the Keith Boston house. It will be presented here by Mr. A. Seymour Brown, the author of the lyrics, score and situations of the piece, and its principal actor. Associated with Mr. Brown will appear not fewer than 25 persons, including a dancing sextet, which comes direct from one of the big musical comedies. These young women have been picked because of their classy appearance, although they are required to sing and dance not infrequently. The costuming during the big scenes is noteworthy.

Mr. Brown, in his story, tells of the last night of bachelorhood of one "Dick Marlowe." All the friends of the young man concoct the plan to tender him a mammoth bachelor dinner. They scour the town and get the Bohemian friends of the young man and plan a night of galety. Mazie, one of the women friends of the man, makes arrangements to get to the place an elderly man, after midnight. This man wants to take just one last dip into the frivolities of life and is pleased at the opportunity. He proves to be none other than the prospective father-in-law of "Marlowe." Of course there are some rip-roaring situations following the disclosure of the elderly guest, but everything is amicably patched up at the fall of the curtain.

Mr. Brown has written some bright musical numbers, which will easily be whistled and which are given in the production with all possible accessories. Among these are: "When Love Comes Knocking at Your Heart," "That Tingling Tango Tune," "Adam and Eve Had a Wonderful Time," "Somebody Loves You." All together there are ten musical numbers, including ensemble numbers, dances, etc.

Several well known comedians assist in the fun. Prominent among them is Russel Randall, as "G. Wellington Smith," the prospective father-in-law; George Walton, as the valet, and John Coleman as "George Gibson." Pauline Thorne, as "Mazie," one of the prime movers in the supper is an attractive young woman, and Cecilia Santon, as "Dorothy Smith," beloved of "Dick," is said to be not only remarkably pretty but vocally of much ability. Others in the cast are Joseph Roberts, Robert Ward, John Ryan, Russell Brown, James Ryan and Arthur Drury, and Misses Martha Dean, Mae Bosch, Olive Dale, Florence Gordon, Kitty Gordon and Beatrice Eastwood.

"War Is ——," a lively sketch by Val Trainor & Co., will make plenty of good fun. The act has never before appeared here. And it is built on an exceedingly fetching little idea. Assisting Mr. Trainor are three women, all in important roles. Alf Holt, known as the "merry mimic," will give a number of personations of famous characters and will also do a line of work which is most uncommon today. He is said to be wonderfully versatile. Emmet and Emmet, in the placid little musical sketch of Ireland, called "On the Banks of Killarney," have one of the prettiest and sweetest of offerings. The music accompanying it is all delightfully reminiscent of the Emerald Isle, and the costuming is also very attractive. It will prove one of the best things of the week.

Billy Davis is a blackface comedian who has a fund of new stories, and who may be expected to deliver over something out of the general run of things. Boothby and Everdean, in a singing and talking and piano skit, are well known light entertainers. The Richards Brothers are Roman ring artists of note. The bill will close with the Pathe Weekly, a group of motion pictures taken in many parts of the world. 'Phone 28.

THEATRE VOYONS

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

A play that makes light work of serious business is "Sham," the delightful comedy in three acts, which is to be the week's presentation by the Merrimack Square theatre players. It was first seen here with Miss Henrietta Crosman as its star, but will be given its first stock showing at this popular theatre with Miss Grace Young in the leading role. It will also afford this popular actress opportunity for wearing her famous X-ray gown which she will do in the second act and allows full scope for excellent stage dressing which will no doubt be one of the many happy features connected with the week's offering. As usual the latest motion pictures will be shown. Seats on sale. Subscription list open at the box office. Why not place your name on it, it costs no more and assures you of your favorite seat every week.

AGAIN WARNS ENGINEERS

Foss Says R. R. Labor Organization is Just as Much Under Public Control as a Railroad

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Governor Foss made public last night a second letter to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in which he takes that organization to task for voting upon a strike before completing its negotiations with the New Haven road.

The governor states in his letter that the big railroad labor organization is just as much subject to public control as a railroad would be when it adopts "a course of action which would disorganize the business of our citizens, throw labor out of employment and interfere with the supply of food and fuel."

Governor's Letter

The letter is as follows:

"I have received your letter of Oct. 3 and must call your attention to the fact that the letter is written upon the assumption that your organization is engaged in a private calling and that the state or nation will in some way trespass upon the rights and freedom of your members if they undertake to regulate the conditions of employment.

"This assumption is wholly inadmissible. The railroads of the country are engaged in a public calling and are, therefore, subject to public regulation. The same is true of the employees of the railroads, and your organization has no more right to resent regulation by the state or nation than have the railroads to resent control by the same authorities.

"When your organization adopts a course of action which would disorganize the business of our citizens, throw labor out of employment and interfere with the supply of food and fuel, it is subject to public control just as much as the railroad would be if, in similar manner, it refused to operate its trains or otherwise perform its duties as a public carrier.

"Public regulation in the one case is as justified as it is in the other, and neither the railroads nor their employees have any right to object to such regulation as an interference with their freedom.

"When capital is invested in the business of transportation, it thereby places itself in a public calling in which it is rightfully subject to public regulation, and the same is true of labor.

"The failure of your organization to realize that its members are engaged in a public calling is further evidenced by the fact that it has seen fit to take a vote upon the strike before the completion of negotiations with the company and, therefore, before either the members of the organization or the public, which is really a party to the controversy, are in a position to know fully the facts in the case and the proper course to pursue. There is great need that some means shall be provided by which a question like this, which affects the welfare of every man, woman and child in New England, shall not be determined by a private organization in advance of a full determination of the facts.

"Taking a vote upon the strike in advance of the conclusion of negotiations seems to indicate a desire to force a settlement by intimidation, rather than by free and open discussion of the merits of the case.

"Your letter further assumes that public regulation of the conditions under which the members of your organization are employed would subject them to the control of the railroads and involve disregard of their rights.

"Such an assumption is quite as unwarranted as would be the similar assumption that public control of the capital invested in the transportation industry involves disregard of the rights of capital. Both labor and capital have rights which must be respected in any plan of government regulation.

"In reference to this point I call your attention to the fact that my proposal is to provide adequate remedies, through an impartial tribunal, for all grievances of railroad employees at the same time that the commonwealth undertakes to prohibit strikes. By such legislation the interests of the employees will be carefully guarded at the same time that means are provided to insure due consideration of the rights of the public.

"Your letter makes clear that the rule of seniority is the real issue between your organization and the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. It does not, however, present any new arguments in favor of the rule and will not change the attitude of any fair-minded man. Upon that point I can only repeat that a strike undertaken upon this issue will alienate the sympathy of the public and compel this commonwealth to adopt suitable measures for the protection of its citizens.

"Yours very truly,

(Signed) "Eugene N. Foss,
"Governor."

Endorse State Ticket and Adopt Walsh's Platform at Convention in Boston

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—The democrats met in state convention at Faneuil hall Saturday, indorsed the ticket headed by Lieut. Gov. David I. Walsh and adopted a platform along lines already announced.

Walsh Makes Speech

Lieut. Governor David I. Walsh made a new departure in his speech of acceptance as the standard bearer of the democratic party in the present state campaign. Instead of leaving the matter to the chairman of the resolutions committee, the candidate for governor himself presented before the convention the tentative party platform. "In order," he said, "that I may identify myself as closely as possible with the party platform which you adopt, and make it clear to the people of Massachusetts that the principles and policies which it contains are not imposed upon me and accepted reluctantly to be shirked at the first opportunity, but spring from my own convictions as well as yours."

Mr. Walsh pledged himself to be true to the platform; then read it to the convention and later moved its acceptance.

In continuing his speech, he said in part:

"The position of our party in favor of many of these principles is by no means new or recent. It was begun by us years ago as political doctrine. For sixteen years we have waged battle for direct legislation. To advocate in those days the direct election of United States Senators by vote of the people, to urge the initiative, the referendum and the direct primary was to invite the most scathing criticism and to cause to be questioned our loyalty to the government and its sacred traditions.

"Time has vindicated us, not only by the adoption of most of these principles, but indeed too by the disintegration of the republican party.

"Is not the logical situation this: That the party that suggested these reforms, that was the backbone of the movement in legislative halls for their adoption, should now receive credit for the judgment and foresight and that all who believe in the wisdom of these principles should co-operate with us in pressing to completion the reforms yet to be adopted?

"The party of privilege in the nation has been defeated. Its alliance with wealth has been exposed and weakened. After years of struggle, of defeat and of humiliation, the day is here when the individual has come into his own politically. He can no longer be over-ridden in caucuses. He cannot be betrayed in conventions. He can cast his own vote for United States senator. He is to be taxed much less on what he consumes. Wealth has been made to assume some of the burdens of taxation. No longer the banker alone,—but the man of moderate means is to be recognized in currency legislation. The individual is on his feet again and his voice is more effective than ever in the making of the laws under which he is to live.

"Men are not ungrateful; gratitude overrides partisanship; it is to the individual then, to the man who loves his government more than mere party labels, who feels now for the first time the new power and influence and responsibility that we have won for him, that we appeal hopefully and confidently.

"What party has brought about this revolution? Our party and our party alone. We have within six months triumphed over and driven from the halls of the national government the forces of wealth, of special privilege and of corporate aggrandizement that have been enthroned there for a generation.

"In the waging of this desperate contest, in the accomplishment of this trying work, it is but natural that those who have been half-hearted and insincere in their devotion to the cause of the people should be found missing from our ranks. Those whose influence has been weakened, whose power has been lost, whose service in our ranks has been for sordid and selfish purposes, rather than the principles we were fighting for, will still embarrass and hamper the progress of this great movement by working upon the prejudices of the people.

"The democratic party has demonstrated that it is no longer weak and tottering; it is no longer a mere party of theory and promises.

"We enter this contest with a platform of principles, every sentence of which is a call and a challenge to ameliorate the political and social conditions of the people.

"Our party in the national government has fulfilled its promises in six months, to a greater extent than even the most loyal and enthusiastic advocates deemed attainable. We may show in the state as our brave president is showing in the nation the sacred obligation of party pledges.

"Let this campaign be one of democratic jubilation! Let the pessimist, the doubter, the calamity crier, the disappointed seeker of public office, the beneficiaries of legislative privilege stand one side while the triumphant procession of democracy and its principles takes the lead on the straight and broad highway which leads to certain victory.

"Sound the loud timbrel o'er Egypt's dark sea!

Wanted!

Perfectly healthy men and women who will voluntarily submit to an experiment which may lead to temporary or permanent impairment of health, or possible death.

This experiment to be conducted with the coffee drug, "caffeine."

Would You Apply for the Job?

Thousands are trying the experiment every day in spite of the fact that physicians and government experts have proven:

That the average cup of coffee contains about 2 1-2 grs. of caffeine;

That caffeine is attributed to be one of the principal causes of headache, biliousness, heart disease, indigestion and kidney, liver and bowel trouble;

That caffeine in doses as small as that contained in two average cups of coffee has killed rabbits, guinea pigs and other animals at the laboratories of the Gov't in Washington and elsewhere.

To be sure a guinea pig or a rabbit may weigh but a pound or two, while the average human may weigh 100 times as much.

A few cups of coffee or a single cup (according to the resistance of the individual) will not kill, but the poison is there and can be added to day by day.

That's why so many coffee drinkers suffer from headache, dizziness, indigestion and other symptoms referable to the poison effect on heart, liver, nerves, kidneys and stomach.

If you know coffee has no bad effect in your particular case and you like it, why, bless your heart, stick to it, but if coffee drinking leaves its tell-tale mark by some symptoms of physical discomfort or peace of mind, it's a good idea to stop and use

POSTUM

This pure food-beverage, made of prime wheat and the juice of southern sugar-cane, makes a rich, seal-brown blend turning to golden-brown when cream is added, which tastes much like real Oriental Java but is absolutely free from the coffee drug, "caffeine."

Postum comes in two forms. One, called Regular Postum, must be boiled full 15 minutes.

The other, Instant Postum, is in powder form and a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water makes the beverage instantly. Grocers keep both kinds.

KILLED AT GAME

A Quarrel Over Cards Resulted in Death of Rumford, Me., Man

RUMFORD, Me., Oct. 6.—In a quarrel over a card game, Luigi Reias was killed and Mario Balba dangerously wounded yesterday. Balba, who is at he hospital with a bullet hole at the back of his mouth, is under police surveillance on the charge of shooting Reias.

According to the police, these two and others of a card party at Reias' home, engaged in a scrimmage, during which Reias and Balba rolled down a flight of stairs together wrestling for control of a revolver, which Balba had. Although fatally wounded by a bullet from the weapon, Reias managed in his last struggle to turn it upon his antagonist, inflicting a throat wound. Balba is expected to recover.

Reias was 35 years old and leaves a widow. He had been employed as a foreman of a ditching gang. The house where the shooting occurred was the scene of a tragedy two years ago, when Joseph Bill, now a life inmate of the state prison, shot and killed his wife there.

C. Y. M. L. EVENTS

One of the most important activities of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum at the present time is the forming of a debating society, and in this the members as a whole are showing deep interest. The preliminary steps for the organization of such a department in the Lyceum have already been taken and without doubt the result will be a full fledged debating club in a short time. It is the intention of those in charge of the arrangements to compete against the debating teams which are being formed by the other organizations of young men in this city, including the Burkes and the Matthews. This certainly would be a novel and enjoyable educational feature of the club life.

Plans for the Lawrence night on Oct. 16 on which evening the Lyceum will entertain the members of the Catholic Young Men's association of Lawrence, and their lady friends at the rooms in Suffolk street, are going forward at a rapid pace. A varied program is being arranged for the evening, including a concert, games and dancing, with refreshments during the evening. The Lawrence society will hold a Lowell night at their club rooms sometimes in the near future at which they will entertain the Lyceum members and their lady friends.

The Holy Name society of St. Patrick's was the winner in the recent tournament of games with the Lyceum at the latter's rooms, and another similar tournament will be held in the near future so successful was the last event. The members plan a very active social season.

in the United States and the deadly germs claim more victims in cities than in rural districts, due no doubt to the increased number of indoor workers in confining quarters and their lack of sunshine.

Tubercular germs always attack when the system is weakened from colds or sickness, overwork, overstrain, confining duties or any drain which has reduced the resistive forces of the body. But nature always provides a corrector and the best physicians emphasize that during changing climate our blood should be kept rich and pure and active by taking Scott's Emulsion after meals; the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion warms the body by enriching the blood—it peculiarly strengthens the lungs and upbuilds the resistive forces of the body to avoid colds and prevent consumption.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or nervous, Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known; it builds energy and strength and is totally free from alcohol or any stupefying drug—every druggist has it.

POLICE COURT CASES

Long List of Offenders Before Judge Enright Today—Wayward Couples in Court

As if to make up for last week's scarcity of police court defendants this morning's docket showed a long list of drunks and various other cases of a more serious nature.

Chinamen Fined

Nine smiling Chinamen trooped in behind their counsel, Judge Pickman, and pleaded guilty to the charge of being present where gambling was being conducted. All of the defendants wore the customary smooth smile of the Mongolian race and seemed to regard the matter as a joke.

Judge Pickman informed the court that his advice was taken by his Chinese clients in the majority of cases and that they had all promised him to keep out of any further gambling scraps. He outlined to the court the kind of isolated life that the Chinamen led in this country and said that gaming was practically their only diversion. Whereas he did not offer this as an excuse for their offence Judge Pickman considered that this phase of the situation should be taken into account when sentence was imposed by the court. All of the defendants were ordered to pay the minimum fine of $2.

Wayward Couples

The two couples rounded up late Saturday night in upper Merrimack street by Sergt. Giroux and Patrolmen Nickels, Gennell and Gillis all appeared in court this morning.

Bernabe Fortier and Emma Caron both pleaded guilty to the charge of adultery. The woman's husband was present and took the witness stand. He accused the man of stealing the affections of his wife and told the court that he had two children at home depending upon a mother's care. The wife was called up to the judge's bench weeping bitterly.

Judge Enright did his best to straighten out matters between man and wife and Caron finally said that he would take his wife back to the family domicile upon her promise to love, honor and obey him alone henceforth. Fortier was given the minimum fine, $75, and accepted his sentence with very poor grace, a sullen scowl being seated up his face throughout the proceedings.

Surelle Tanguay and Frederick Gelinas both pleaded guilty to a statutory offence, but as neither is a married person the penalty was not so heavy as in the previous case. Each defendant received a fine of $15 and was allowed a term of probation within which to pay the same.

It was noticeable that a number of girls apparently of the number shut out of the mills by the new minor law were in attendance to hear the evidence in the two previous cases.

Sent to Jail

Officer Clark again appeared in the limelight when the case of William Alexander was brought to trial. The defendant had an idea that he was a better man physically than the officer, but found out to his sorrow that his hypothesis was altogether wrong. Alexander will spend the next two months in jail where he will have ample opportunity to find another way to circumvent the law as applied by Officer Clark.

Other Cases

Charles Odel had nothing to say in his own defence this morning. Officer Clark arrested him Saturday night in a drunken condition while in the act of taking out his exuberant feelings on the backs of his children with a horsewhip. His wife, a hard working woman who looked completely tired out today, informed Judge Enright that her husband has been drinking heavily of late. Odel was sent up to jail until Saturday when his case will once more be taken up and sentence imposed.

A young Pole by the name of Stanislaw Gogglevitch started something in Middle street last night which he couldn't finish. Officer McCann arrested him in the middle of the street while going through all the gestures of a ring artist. Just previous to this the glass in the doorway of Bertrand's tailor shop had sunken in with a crash, but as the officers did not see him actually break it, the charge was not pressed against him. He was let off with a fine of $2.

With a limp and a groan Peter Glynn took the stand to testify against Thomas Murphy who had beaten him up pretty badly during the sequence to a barroom argument. Although Murphy acknowledged his guilt the evidence in the case was put in before Judge Enright.

Glynn asserted that the defendant had struck him behind the ear after following him out of the saloon and that while he, Glynn, was lying upon the ground, Murphy had kicked him in the hip with such force that he could not use his bruised limb properly today. The arresting officer testified to seeing Murphy strike and kick Glynn.

"You ought to go to the house of correction," asserted the court. The defendant was fined $25.

Elizabeth McDermott was released from jail only a short time ago on account of her weak physical condition and again appeared before the local court on the charge of drunkenness. Judge Enright gave her an opportunity to straighten out, however, and gave her a suspended sentence to the state farm.

Emery Contois, a fourth offender for over-indulgence, received a sentence of four months to jail. His actions when he heard the sentence indicated that he expected a longer term.

John Clancy and James E. Butler, two parole men from the state farm, were sent back to that institution. Thos. J. Murray, who claims Hartford as his home, although he has not been there in over 30 years, was sent up to jail for 15 days in order to sober up.

John Smith, James Day and Adam Colby were fined $15 for their third arrest for imbibing. Joseph G. Weaver was fined $6 for the same offence. Probation Officer Slattery had a list of 12 first offenders all of whom he released.

G. & G. PANTMAKERS' OPENING

A new firm under the management of J. M. Lachance, has leased the store formerly occupied by Cruickshank, confectioner, at 67 Central street, and has transformed it into one of the most attractive on the street. After completing the alterations he stocked it with one of the finest assortments of pants to be seen anywhere in the country for the money. This store is exclusively given to the sale of pants. They have named very popular prices, one, two, and three dollars. From the opening Saturday until closing at night a steady stream of people called to inspect these goods and the new quarters and seemed highly pleased with the general appearance of the latter and delighted with the stock of pants displayed, of which there was a very large and selected stock.

This is the only establishment in our city that deals exclusively in this line of wearing apparel, and judging from the successful opening it looks as if there was no question about its success. Popular prices always catch. There were hundreds of orders received, and there were great values for the money. The store is well lighted, bright, airy and centrally located so that one can easily judge of shade and color of material. Mr. Lachance has engaged to assist him in supplying the public a number of competent clerks and all business done with this new firm is guaranteed to be exactly as represented. There will be no long waits or disappointments at the G. & G. Pant store, 67 Central St.

LINES OF ROAD

County Commissioners Gave Hearing to Residents of Tyngsboro

The Middlesex county commissioners gave a hearing at 10.15 this morning to residents of the town of Tyngsboro on the petition for defining the lines of the road leading from the end of Tyngsboro bridge toward Hudson, N. H.

The petition sought for definition of lines for but a short distance and County Engineer F. H. Kendall was instructed by the commissioners to go over the road carefully with the abutters and attempt to define lines satisfactory to all concerned and at the same time secure needed improvement of this narrow road.

A petition will be presented to the county officials asking that this entire road from Tyngsboro bridge to the New Hampshire line at Hudson, may be put in proper condition. Action on this in the way of a hearing will necessarily be delayed for a few weeks to comply with the requirements of the law.

Conferences were held by the town residents with the commissioners regarding changes in the village approaches to the big bridge to conform to improvements now being made by the town people where the fire occurred last June. It was also suggested that some action should soon be taken looking to reconstruction of Tyngsboro bridge. This is a county bridge, the only one in the county, and is really a portion of a state highway. The county stands ready to relinquish it to the proper authorities under legislative sanction.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system.

They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, you will know them by their olive color.

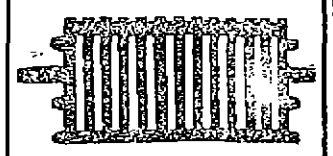

Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

CROXONE SAVES ELDERLY PEOPLE FROM KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Sleep Disturbing Bladder Weaknesses, Backache, Stiff Joints, Rheumatic Pains Disappear After Few Doses are Taken

While people along in years are naturally more subject to weak kidneys, they can easily avoid the tortures of backache and rheumatism, and be saved the annoyance of getting up at night with disagreeable bladder disorders.

Croxone relieves these conditions by promptly reaching the cause and making the kidneys filter the blood and sift out the poisonous acids and waste matter that cause these troubles.

It soaks right in and cleans out the stopped up, inactive kidneys, dissolves and drives out the uric acid and other poisonous impurities that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause rheumatism. It neutralizes the urine so it no longer irritates the bladder, overcomes unnecessary breaking of sleep and helps the kidneys and bladder regain health and strength.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what else you have used. It is practically impossible to take Croxone without results. It starts to work the minute you take it—the first time you use it. An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails in a single case.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully libels and represents Edward Austin Auger, of Lowell, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Isabella Mitchell Auger, now of Magog, in the Province of Quebec, in the Dominion of Canada, at Magog aforesaid, on the 22nd day of December, A. D. 1904, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Isabella Mitchell Auger lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Magog, aforesaid; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Isabella Mitchell Auger, being wholly regardless of the same, at Magog, aforesaid, on or about the 23d day of March, 1908, did utterly desert your libellant and has continued such desertion to the time of the filing of this libel; being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel and your libellant has lived within this Commonwealth for more than five years next prior to the date of filing this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Isabella Mitchell Auger and that the custody of their minor child, a son Jenne Alexander Auger be given to your libellant, said son being now of the age of six years.

Dated this twenty-fourth day of September, A. D. 1913.

EDWARD AUSTIN AUGER.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, Sept. 26, A. D. 1913.

Upon the foregoing libel, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of November next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the libel, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

he on the safe side and take no risk I would advise the delegates to bring in their baggage," said Mr. McNary.

James J. O'Donnell, owner and editor of the Holyoke Telegram, was one of the speakers selected to present the question of the development of the Connecticut river and valley, and upon being introduced, created a general laugh by stating that perhaps the delegates had left their dress suit cases on the outside because they had more confidence in the strangers on the outside than in the delegates on the inside.

Hon. W. S. McNary

In his opening remarks, Mr. McNary said: "It is not my purpose to make any long speech. There are men here from the different places who will have facts and figures at their finger's tips and they will tell you all about it because they are familiar with the different localities.

"This state is 50 years behind the times in water transportation and it is the association represented here today that can bring us up to date. They have a big work to perform and they are capable of performing it. The outlook is good at the present time. I do not blame our representatives in congress for the little progress that we have made, for I was in congress myself and we worked earnestly on the waterway question, but not until very recently has Massachusetts been properly recognized. We are making very good progress and we are going to get somewhere pretty soon."

The speaker referred at considerable length to the development of Boston port and harbor. He said, however, it was necessary to develop other communities near Boston before Boston would properly develop.

"We want to develop opportunities for water transportation. We want to see it so developed that cities along the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers can get their raw material by water and ship is finished product either by rail or water. In order for a city to develop a city must be a manufacturing as well as a commercial city," he said.

He added that in order to bring about the desired results public terminals must be provided which will be open to all kinds of shipping. The national government will want Massachusetts to co-operate in providing the terminals dredging, etc. In order to get to the point intended by the national government it is absolutely necessary to co-operate in all the movements connected with the development of the various waterways and this convention, today he said, ought to be of great assistance in bringing about a thorough understanding of the question as a whole.

"Here in Boston when there are improvements underway we have to co-operate and contribute toward those improvements, and the policy of the government is fixed and in the future these projects will receive favorable attention by the government providing the spirit of co-operation is made manifest.

"The cost of coal and lumber can be greatly reduced in this community through the medium of water transportation. With the United States government spending $400,000,000 on the Panama canal, with all the nations of the world building new steamships in the belief that the commerce of the world is going to be radically changed, it is time now that we demand that this rich state should realize the situation and co-operate with the government in order that we may be able to take advantage of later day opportunities.

"Other states are growing faster than Massachusetts because of waterway transportation. We must base our prosperity on our ability to get our goods as cheap as possible and in order to do that it is necessary for us to develop our waterways and it is up to Massachusetts to do its legitimate work along this line. The development of our waterways is one of the most important of the problems facing us today and the heartiest co-operation between nation, state and parties is absolutely necessary in order to succeed. Ours is a great manufacturing state and it is held that we will never lose our position in line, but I think the facts are against us and we are liable to go backwards instead of forward unless we hasten the development of our waterways."

John H. Murphy

John H. Murphy, secretary of the Lowell board of trade read a very comprehensive paper setting forth Lowell's needs and Lowell's interest in the proposition to render the Merrimack river navigable from Lowell to the sea. He said:

The people of Lowell are enthusiastic in their belief that the improvement of the Merrimack river will develop new territory, will enhance the value of real estate and will reduce the cost of handling freight and increase the efficiency of transportation. They also believe that the development will have a tendency to decrease the cost of living, because raw materials used in the process of manufacturing and coal both for manufacturing purposes and domestic use can be brought to the city at a reduced cost.

The Merrimack valley is unsurpassed for its beautiful stretches of scenery and is one of the most important manufacturing districts in New England. The population of the cities and towns along its banks number almost a half-million people and the factories and mills employ over 99,000 hands, who earn over $400,000,000 a year. The assessed valuation of property in the valley amounts to $300,000,000.

So much has been said relative to the importance of the developments of this river from a standpoint of commercial interest and from a point of competing with other cities and sections enjoying water transportation facilities that it is hardly necessary to dwell further on this thought at this time.

The Merrimack river is as worthy of congressional favor as any existing waterway project of the country, because it serves a very valuable and important industrial and commercial community and because the proposed development of the river being entirely within the boundry of one state entails co-operation and action of Massachusetts and the federal government. The transportation facilities of the city of Lowell are entitled to consideration both from the state and the government, because of the fact that it is the largest and most important city of the Merrimack valley. The city of Lowell contributes to the Boston & Maine railroad more revenue than any other city of the system excepting Boston and its ever increasing traffic, congested at times, needs the assistance of the river transportation facilities in order to assist in the moving of its extensive freight. At a recent hearing before the interstate commerce commission Vice President Hobbs of the Boston & Maine railroad stated that his company needed 10,000 more freight cars, new and enlarged terminals and more tracks in order to meet the demands of the increasing freight business, and the development of the Merrimack river offers a solution to the congested and increasing traffic of the Merrimack valley and the words of Mr. Hobbs are strong testimony as to the prospective business, which is available and will result from the development of the river.

Loss of Water Power.

While much is heard relative to the loss of water power by the development of the Merrimack, it is well to note that a special act incorporating the proprietors of the Locks & Canals on Merrimack river provided that the corporation will act for the public benefit of those residing along the river and for the purpose of rendering the Merrimack river passable for boats, rafts and masts. This corporation built a canal from the head of Pawtucket falls to the Concord river, which was operated for some time, but went into disuse by reason of the building of the Middlesex canal. After several years the stock of the Locks & Canals company changed hands and the new company has used the water of the Merrimack for manufacturing purposes and the development of power, but the character of the charter of the Locks & Canals Corporation has never been substantially changd. No legislation has been passed changing materially the purpose for which the corporation was organized.

Concerning the present freight business of Lowell the following freight tonnage figures give only an idea as to the tonnage which is shipped from Lowell or received for Lowell at the ports of Boston and New York for the purpose of connecting with transportation facilities.

There is received at Boston by water, exclusive of coal, over 18,000 tons, and there is shipped from Lowell through the port of Boston annually over 76,000 tons, and there is received for Lowell through the port of Boston over 500,000 tons of coal a year. Lowell ships to New York via Long Island sound 24,000 tons and receives from the port of New York about 22,000 tons.

Freight Tonnage

The total freight tonnage handled annually in Lowell is in excess of 2,000,000 tons and the average gain in total tonnage per year is estimated at 25 per cent. This freight coming in consists of coal, cotton, iron ore, wool, lumber, wire and other raw steel materials, brick, cement, leather, etc., and could come by water if the river was improved. It is a conservative estimate to claim that 50 per cent. of the cotton, coal, iron ore and leather could be shipped by water.

Coal

The amount of coal brought into Lowell amounts to about 500,000 tons per year. This in most cases comes from Boston by rail, which necessitates a charge of 21c per ton for transferring from barge to train at Mystic wharf and an added freight rate of .85 per ton to come to Lowell. It is stated on fairly good authority that the people of Lowell pay annually $3,000,000 for $2,000,000 worth of coal.

Hon. John Jacob Rogers, member of congress, ably summarizes the details of the Merrimack river project when he outlines the ten necessary steps in order to bring the matter of the development of the Merrimack river to a successful termination. The first seven of these preliminary steps have been taken, which includes an act of congress authorizing a preliminary examination, the preliminary examination, a favorable report upon same, acceptance of the report by the chief engineers, the appropriation of money for a survey, the survey, the acceptance of the report of this survey by the chief of engineers of the United States, the introduction of the matter into congress in regard to an appropriation for completed work, and finally the granting of the appropriation to complete the work.

The Merrimack river project has successfully passed seven of these periods and the final papers of the survey are now being considered by the chief engineers. If they report favorably then the matter is ready to be introduced into congress. It is evident from the standing of the project to date that there are no legal difficulties which cannot be overcome; that the proposition is feasible and that the only thing necessary is continued enthusiasm in order to bring this matter to a final issue. In order to bring about enthusiasm and interest in this matter information should be spread broadcast informing people of the feasibility of the plan and the last favorable report of Hon. Frederic V. Abbott, chief engineer of the United States army should be published in our newspapers in order that the public might appreciate the possibility of bringing this matter to a head within the very near future.

Men From Lawrence

Frederic N. Chandler, president of the Lawrence chamber of commerce, said that a great deal had been said about the unimportance of transportation by water for cities along the Merrimack river because we are being so well served by rail, but he said that in coal alone Lawrence could save $500,000 a year if there was water transportation.

It was at this point Mr. Chandler asked to be allowed to introduce Andrew B. Sutherland, a former chairman of the Lawrence chamber of commerce and member of the Merrimack Valley Waterways commission. Mr. Sutherland was introduced and jumped right in with both feet, so to speak. He said that Massachusetts, so far as recital was made in the most matter of fact way, with no seeming remorse. He said he never drank or smoked—except opium. He asserted that he had not "touched a pill" for two days and a physician declared the prisoner was not under the influence of the drug.

"You have got me dead to rights on the Rexroat murder," Spencer said, "and I know that I shall swing for it in a couple of months. That's why I want to tell everything else and get it out of the way."

In and Out of Prison"

"I have been in and out of prison since I was a boy," he continued. "I have been hunted and hounded all my life. I am sore on the world. My own life does not amount to much and nobody's life has meant much to me."

The proceeds of Spencer's crimes have amounted to more than $10,000 in the last year. He has spent the money on women.

"I killed Mrs. Rexroat because she told me I was responsible for her condition and how badly she needed $300. I did not murder her for the ring. I took it just because it was there."

Two women whom Spencer murdered came from New York. He said he married four times.

Killed Helen Gould's Maid

"I married Helen Gould's maid in New York," said Spencer. "I took her to Fort Montgomery and killed her in the woods nearby. She had about $300 and $500 in diamonds."

"Did you have any other women in New York?" asked Captain Halpin.

"Yes; there was a widow I married. We were coming to Chicago and stopped off at Detroit. We went to Belle Isle, or Windsor. We walked down one of the walks in the park and I shot her. I got $600 and a diamond."

A few nights ago, Spencer said, he robbed the Astor cafe, a block from the detective bureau.

Murdered More Than Twenty

After being questioned for 14 hours, during which the number of murders he confessed to having committed was increased to more than twenty, Spencer, exhausted by the ordeal, was allowed to retire in a cell shortly after eight o'clock this morning for a few hours' sleep.

He had been questioned without interruption by Police Captain Halpin and Assistant State's Attorney Sullivan in regard to details in his criminal career ever since his arrest the other night. After the long siege he put his hands to his head and said:

"I am too tired to remember any more just now. I got to have some sleep. The truth of the matter is that I killed so many I can't remember all of them."

From an unofficial source it was learned that Spencer had amplified his story of the murder of one of his wives. He said the woman's name was Nelly but refused to give her surname.

"I was in New York six years ago and one day I visited the art gallery which Helen Gould has installed in the Martha Washington hotel for women," said Spencer. "There I met Nelly, Miss Gould's maid. We were married three days later. I had told her I was a wealthy traveling man."

Killed Wife With Hammer

"One day we took a ride up the Hudson river to West Point and from there went by 'bus to Fort Montgomery. In a secluded spot I struck her with a hammer; killing her instantly. I took $800 from her clothing and returned to Chicago.

"A few days later I robbed a clothing store of 45 suits, which I sold. Then for a while I stole bicycles, getting about 180 of them. The police finally made it so hot for me that I beat it out of town."

One of Spencer's victims of whom he

"This department, therefore, would not be warranted in making any representations to the British government in the matter. The inquiry determined is not whether Thaw should be liberated or whether extradition should be granted. But the question before the department is whether there was a violation of any British-American treaty in the Thaw case by the Canadian authorities. The reply must be in the negative. Senator Oliver, who brought the matter to the attention of the department, will be advised accordingly."

told early today was an unidentified man who accidentally brushed against him and whom he followed, robbed and shot dead. He dragged the body into an alley and fled. This was last spring.

Two months ago he is said to have entered a Park row saloon, where he formerly was employed as porter and killed a bartender with a hammer. He did not give the bartender's name, but said he robbed the man of several hundred dollars.

Some of the firemen of the Navy Yard are very angry over the fact that a banner of the progressive party was unfurled yesterday on a rope extending from the station in Sladen street, across the road. They claim the banner was placed there without the proper authorization and it is probable that the American flag with the inscription "Progressive Party," will soon be taken down.

FIRE IN MARKET STREET

At 11.44 box 125 called the fire department to a small blaze in Market street which was more smoke than fire. An old fashioned kitchen range with no ash tray underneath caused the trouble.

Instead of having the usual brick for the ash receptacle nothing but a sheet zinc covered the floor in this case with the result that some of the hot coals burned through into the woodwork. Only a small patch of flooring was burned, however, before the chemical extinguished the blaze.

FRACTURED HIS LEG

Boy Met With Painful Acoident Saturday Afternoon—Was Removed to Lowell Hospital

Fernand Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delphis Robert, residing at the corner of Moody and Riverside streets, suffered a painful accident Saturday afternoon, when he received a fracture of the right leg.

The boy was working on Bellemare's farm in Dracut, where he helped unload hay by means of a pulley and rope. The boy was suddenly caught by the rope which wound around his leg, and he was raised several feet, later dropping to the ground. A close examination disclosed the fact that the boy's leg had been fractured. The little fellow was removed to the Lowell hospital.

SLINGSBY BABY CASE

INVOLVING $50,000 A YEAR INCOME FROM ENGLISH ESTATE AND CHARGE OF SUBSTITUTION

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—The so-called Slingsby baby case, involving $50,000 a year income from an English estate, and a charge of baby substitution by Lieutenant and Mrs. Charles Raymond Slingsby, in order to get this income, is to be reopened. It was learned today that A. C. Ross, British consul in San Francisco, has been appointed by the high court of chancery in England to take testimony on the subject for the final settlement of the estate is said to hinge on this proceeding.

The Slingsbys live in Vancouver and are British subjects. More than a year ago the case attained prominence when the Slingsbys claiming the estate were opposed by Lieut. Slingsby's brother, who said the alleged heir was the child of a California schoolgirl, who gave it away.

ATHLETICS STAY HOME

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Instead of taking the Athletics to New York early this afternoon, as he had originally planned, Manager Mack of the American league champs, will not leave here with his players until 8 o'clock tonight. It is his intention to take advantage of the fine weather today and give his men good workouts this morning and afternoon.

Mack was at the park early this morning. The sun was then shining strong on the diamond.

"This would have been our day," remarked Mr. Mack, as he watched the groundkeepers getting the field into condition. "I wish we were going to start the world series this afternoon."

waterway transportation is concerned, has been asleep for the last 25 years. "There have been liberal appropriations," he said, "but we have allowed the south and the west to run away with everything."

Mr. Sutherland made a European trip this summer and gave some very interesting data gathered in different countries on the question of waterway development. "Over there," he said, "they don't wait for the government to move but they go right in and do things themselves. It is time that we would go to work and develop our waterways thoroughly and keep pace with foreign countries.

Lewis R. Hovey

Lewis R. Hovey, of Haverhill, spoke in favor of the development of the Merrimack river. All of the speakers were limited to 15 minutes. Mr. Hovey said:

"Until the year 1912 the improvement of the Merrimack river had been almost entirely a national project. The Massachusetts legislature of that year passed a bill introduced by Senator Nason of Haverhill, calling for the appointment of a special commission of three men and an appropriation of $10,000 for a survey of the river and an investigation of the possibilities of its development. Gov. Foss appointed Congressman Butler Ames of Lowell chairman, together with Judge Chas. C. Payne of Hyannis and Andrew B. Sutherland, then president of the Lawrence board of trade. Col. Ames found it impossible to accept, and the governor later in the summer named me in his place, making Judge Payne chairman.

"In August, 1912, the board began its work under the very broad act passed by the legislature in the spring. We held hearings in all the cities of the valley and collected the most complete records of business, freights, etc., which has ever been made. The delays occasioned by matters over which we had no control made it impossible for us to comply with the act, which called for a report by Feb. 1 of this year, and the last legislature voted an extension of one year.

"Insofar as human beings can do we will have carried out the commands of the legislature by Jan. 1, 1914, and our report will contain the results of our investigation, including maps, plans, specifications and estimates of cost of an 18-foot channel 200 feet wide from the head of tide water at Ward Hill in Haverhill to the foot of the rapids at Hunt's falls, before Lowell, as well as plans, etc., for a lock or locks at Lawrence dam.

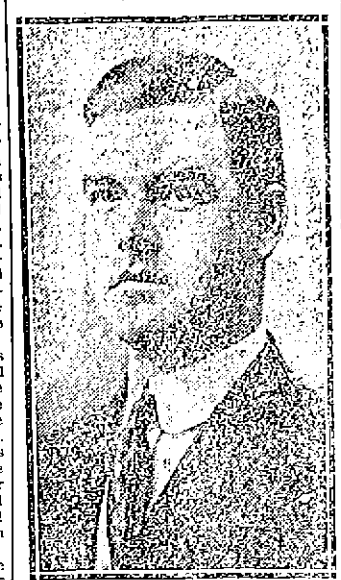

"The Merrimack valley waterway board has worked in perfect harmony with the United States engineer, Col. Frederick V. Abbott, and largely as a result of our mutual efforts a favorable report was made by that officer March 29 last. This report was in compliance with instructions given to Col. Abbott under the provisions of the river and harbor act approved by the national congress July 25, 1912, which called for a 'preliminary examination of the Merrimack river, Mass., with a view to securing increased depth from Lowell to the sea in any part of this section of the river.'

"Col. Abbott's report consists of 65 closely typewritten pages and is by far the finest, most complete and most comprehensive document of its kind ever made on a Massachusetts waterway project. It quotes at length from the data secured by the state board, and covers every phrase of the subject in a broad and decidedly friendly spirit.

"Col. Abbott reviews the history of Merrimack river channel development by the national government from 1867 to date. During this time approximately $410,000 has been spent, and today we have a seven-foot channel up to Haverhill, this latter having been completed in June, 1905, under an act of congress of 1902. The work done since has been entirely in the line of keeping this channel clear and removing boulders, etc.

"A 12-foot project in 1905 was turned down by Col. W. S. Stranton on the ground that it would not be of benefit commensurate with the cost. In 1907 provision was made in the river and harbor act for another examination and survey of the Merrimack river 'with a view to providing by locks and dams a channel 14 feet deep from the mouth of the river to the railroad bridge at Haverhill.' The favorable report of Lieut.-Col. Edward Burr is contained in H. R. Doc. 2, 61st congress second session.

"The estimated cost was $890,000, a movable dam at Lion's Mouth, the narrowest part of the river at Amesbury, being included. The war department was unfavorable and it was turned down by congress.

"Col. Abbott's 'preliminary examination,' aided by the state board, caused him to make a favorable report on the worthiness of the project for a complete survey and estimate of cost of providing a consistently deep channel from Lowell to the sea. He closes his report as follows:

"'Whether the creation of a channel 18 feet deep and 200 feet wide, suitably widened at the bends, which will safely permit 17-foot draft vessels to navigate the river, is practicable, is largely a matter of cost. If the material can be removed by powerful dredges, without drilling and blastings, the cost may or may not be excessive, depending on the yardage, which can be ascertained only by an accurate hydrographic survey from the bar to the point opposite Ward Hill, where it has been recommended above that the United States turn over the river to the state for improvement.'

"'If large quantities of rock are found by boring, it may be necessary to combine dredging and slack water navigation below Ward Hill; accurate and numerous borings are therefore unavoidable before any definite project or any approximation to the cost of such a channel is possible. While there are reliable maps of portions of the river, there are long reaches for which no reliable data are available. It is intended to avoid duplicating work by using such known data as are available and supplementing them by new surveys.

"The question of cost must be determined within reasonable limits before it is known to what extent co-operation by the state should be asked; it seems, therefore, that the United States should make an accurate survey of the river up to Ward Hill, provided that the state will undertake a similar survey of a canal from Ward Hill to connect with the pool above the Lawrence dam.

"It is understood that there is a considerable state appropriation now available for such a survey, and there is little doubt that the balance would be provided by the commonwealth of Massachusetts if such provision was made a condition precedent to a survey up to Wards Hill by the United States. By following this course co-operation by the state and the federal government would begin at the very start, and there would be good ground for confidence that the local authorities were thoroughly in earnest, and that the improvement was worthy of being made by the state and the United States jointly.

"It is therefore recommended that an allotment for a United States survey of the Merrimack river from Black Rocks Beacon up to Ward Hill, with a view of the creation of a channel 200 feet wide and 18 feet deep at mean low water, suitably widened at the bends, be made; its expenditure to be conditional upon the provision by the state of sufficient funds for the making by competent state authorities of an accurate survey for a canal to afford 18 feet depth and 200 feet width, suitably widened at the bends connecting the pools, above the Lawrence dam with the channel of the Merrimack river just below Ward Hill.

"Under no conditions should the United States undertake to make a survey above Ward Hill, even if the state offers to defray the cost; for the legal questions as to state and federal relationships to water powers on that part of the river are so involved that the whole matter of the extensions above Ward Hill, survey as well, as construction, operation and maintenance of the canal, should be strictly the state's constribution to the improvement of the river.

"As proof of the confidence in the ability of the state officials in charge of the survey above Ward hill to comply with the requirements of their officer here, the war department engineers took favorable action on Col. Abbott's report, made an allotment of $30,000 to do the work recommended by him and today this survey is actually under way. Col. John Willis, the able engineer, who succeeded Col. Abbott in Boston last summer, has charge of the work, and from what he says to our board since he inspected the river a few weeks ago as our guest, we feel sure that he is friendly to our project and will give us every chance to prove to him that it is a worthy one and ought to be carried out by the federal and state governments.

"As our report will be favorable for the making of an 18-foot channel from Haverhill to Lowell, we look also for a favorable report from Col. Millis for a similar channel from Haverhill to the sea.

"As speaking for the Merrimack waterway board, with all due regard for the proprieties, I can safely make the claim that the question of real development of a commercial waterway in the Merrimack valley is nearer a successful conclusion today than at any time in its history, largely because of the creation of this board by the legislature of Massachusetts in 1912.

"We have demonstrated to the authorities at Washington that we, as a state, are willing to do our share. We can make the deepening of our rivers and harbors a certainty by following up the work already done by the Harbor and Land and the various special commissions with a liberal appropriation, to be expended under the direction of the harbor and land board in conjunction with, and in friendly co-operation with the United States engineers. It behooves all of us, therefore, whether we are boosting the Connecticut or the Taunton or the Mystic or the Merrimack river, or any one of our many valuable harbors to work together and insist on favorable action by our next legislature on an adequate five-year appropriation bill. If we don't get it, it will be our own fault; and unless we are willing to pay our share, we cannot expect, under present conditions in Washington, any money from the national rivers and harbors appropriation.

"We in the Merrimack valley want and need (and deserve) a deep water channel to Lowell. We are willing to do our part to get, and to take our just share of any state fund which the legislature may vote to put in the hands of the harbor and land commission. Let's pull together, gentlemen, and, in due season we will get what we want!"

The Afternoon Session

The afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock. Charles P. Chase, of Springfield, president of the Connecticut Valley Waterway association, presided. The subject was "Narragansett Bay to Boston Harbor Canal."

The Evening Session

The evening session will be held at Young's hotel and a goodly number of Lowell men will attend. Mayor James E. O'Donnell is down for a speech at the evening session. The principal speakers will be Congressman J. Hampton Moore, president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways association and Congressman John Humphrey Small, member of the national committee on rivers and harbors. John J. Martin, president of the Massachusetts Real Estate exchange, will preside.

LOWELL MAN HAD LUMBAGO 25 YEARS

Gyarcol Gave Prompt Relief Where Many Other Medicines Failed

Mr. E. J. Comerford, who lives at 95 Pawtucket street, Lowell, says:

"For twenty-five years I was troubled with lumbago. I tried a great many medicines but did not get relief. A friend recommended Gyarcol to me and I am pleased to say that it relieved me at once and I continued to take it until I was entirely cured. (Signed)

"E. J. Comerford."

Lumbago is a form of rheumatism and is caused by uric acid poison in the blood. Gyarcol cures lumbago as it does rheumatism by driving out the uric acid poison. It stimulates the kidneys the better to perform their work. Gyarcol is sold by all druggists either in liquid or tablet form, 50 cents and $1.00. The chocolate coated tablets are easy to take and quickly effective.

SULZER TRIAL

Opening for the Defense—Sen. Hinman Makes an Adress

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 6.—This was the opening day for the defense in the impeachment trial of Gov. Sulzer and it was expected that before court adjourned Senator Harvey Hinman would have delivered his opening address and two witnesses, Louis A. Sarecky and Lieutenant Commander L. J. Josephthal, would have been heard. Only an afternoon session of the court was to be held, from 2.15 to 5 o'clock and Hinman planned to occupy half this time with his address. As campaign secretary to the governor, Sarecky handled much of the money contributed to the campaign fund and many checks intended for Sulzer were made out to Sarecky. He said on his arrival here last night that he could prove that at least $21,000 which the governor is charged with not having reported as a contribution really was not such, but came to Sulzer from an entirely different source. Counsel for the impeachment managers asserted they searched for 21 days for Sarecky before he finally turned up here and was subpoenaed. He was never called to the witness stand.

Josephthal is the man who paid off the governor's Wall street account of $26,752. He always has maintained that his testimony would be valuable for Sulzer.

The executive committee appointed last Friday night for the fair to be held under the auspices of the members of the North Billerica Baptist church will hold a meeting in the church vestry next Tuesday evening.

POST SEASON SERIES

CLEVELAND AMERICANS AND PITTSBURGH NATIONALS OPEN AT FORMER CITY TODAY

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 6—The Pittsburgh National league club and the Cleveland American league team were to meet here this afternoon in the first game of a post season series. Gregg or Falkenberg for Cleveland and Adams or McQuillen for Pittsburgh were the likely pitching selections.

The chief interest in the series will be the chance offered of comparison of Hans Wagner and Napoleon Lajoie, respectively the deans of National and American league players and by many regarded as the two greatest players of all time.
